U. S. TO BORROW 900 MILLION AT HIGH 3¾% RATE

Boost Interest to Attract Lenders.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.] — To meet the huge treasury deficits caused by the wide gap between tax revenue, enormously reduced by the depression and government expenditures as yet undiminished. Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills tonight announced an offering for subscription of 900 million dollars of treasury certificates of indebtedness, a record breaking peace time borrowing by the national government.

OGDEN L. MILLS. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

That the treasury may be reasonably assured of finding lenders of this enormous sum to their government, Mr. Mills offers 3¾ per cent interest, the highest government interest rate since the war, on two-thirds of the 900 million dollar issue. This rate, which is one-fourth of 1 per cent higher than the highest recent cost of money of the government, Mr. Mills felt obliged to fix, notwithstanding the New York Federal Reserve bank's reduction of the rediscount rate last week from 3½ to 3 per cent mainly for the purpose of cheapening money in preparation for the treasury's March financing program.

Plan "Baby Bonds," Too.

In addition to the 900 millions of certificates of indebtedness, the treasury is issuing an unlimited volume of 2 per cent one year "baby bonds" in small denominations redeemable before maturity on 60 days' notice which are designed to attract a part if not all of the 1½ billion dollars of gold and currency from the socks, mattresses, and tin cans in which they are being hoarded, according to President Hoover. Mr. Mills emphasized, however, that the issue of baby bonds is not for the purpose of financing the current financial needs of the government.

The borrowings announced today are only part of a program for procuring from loans approximately 2½ billions of dollars for the financing of the government between Jan. 1 last and July 1, next. Further large scale borrowings will be necessitated by the demands on the treasury of the new Reconstruction Finance corporation and the additional expansion of agricultural credit authorized by recent legislation.

Based on No Economies.

On top of the 900 million dollar deficit last year the prospective deficit for the year ending June 30 is 2 billion 100 millions, a total of 3 billions, nearly all of which the government is borrowing. The prospective gap of 1 billion 241 millions between income and outgo in 1933 the government now hopes to fill from the new taxes to be levied under the bill the house ways and means committee completed yesterday.

All of this financing is proceeding on the theory that there is to be no drastic curtailment of government activities and expenditures aggregating more than four billions a year.

Approximately 3 billions of short term treasury obligations fall due in the next ten months, including $1,888,600,000 in certificates of indebtedness, $517,837,000 in treasury bills and $600,446,000 in notes.

Inasmuch as 624 millions of the 900 millions certificates offered today are to be used to take up previously issued certificates of indebtedness maturing March 15 and 35 millions will go to pay interest on the public debt there will remain only 241 millions of new money from this source to meet government expenditures.

Income Tax Shrinking.

This amount Mr. Mills calculates sufficient to meet current needs notwithstanding the expectation that the first installment of revenue from the taxes on 1931 incomes due March 15 will sink to a new low level. If it proves insufficient, treasury bills will be issued until another offering of certificates or of bonds comparable with that of today becomes necessary.

The installmen: of income taxes on March 15 is expected by the treasury to be between 125 and 150 millions. Not more than one billion is expected from this source this year com-

JAPANESE AIR RAIDERS BOMB CHINESE TOWNS

Residents in Flight; Fighting Continues.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 7 [Monday.]—An official Chinese report last night announced that a Japanese air squadron of ten bombing planes flew over Soochow at dawn yesterday and dropped many bombs, after which the planes swooped down and machine gunned sections of the city.

The attack lasted one hour and caused considerable damage, the report said. The Japanese planes then visited Kunshan, where they repeated their bombing and machine gunning. The report said that the populations of Soochow and nearby towns are evacuating, fleeing north along the railway.

It was also announced that a Japanese airplane carrier, previously stationed at Woosung, has moved up the Yangtze river and is now anchored at the adjacent town of Paimaokao, which is about thirty miles due north of Soochow. The object, it is believed, is to facilitate air bombing activities at Soochow and other points along the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

Chinese Ordered to Resist.

Col. Fan Chih-woo, local representative of the Chinese 19th route army, announced he has received a telegram from Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, army commander, stating that the Japanese launched a strong offensive against Chinese troops at Wangtu, Kating, and Lutangchen last Friday, using artillery, infantry, and airplanes. It is claimed that numerous casualties were caused among the villagers and farmers by air bombs. The Chinese claimed that Chinese troops belonging to the 47th division repelled the Japanese offensive and forced part of the Japanese troops to withdraw to Paicra bridge, near Wangtu.

Gen. Tsai yesterday issued the following order to his troops:

"Since the league of nations assembly at a special meeting requested both Chinese and Japanese troops to cease fighting we should comply. If the Japanese do not attack, our troops must likewise refrain from firing, but if the Japanese disregard the league's resolution, then Chinese forces must continue their resistance. Notify all troops at the front to comply with these orders."

Japanese Tell Their Side.

The Japanese official report last night said the clash at Wangtu occurred after the Chinese had fired on a Japanese plane and also on Japanese cavalry and that they were observed constructing defenses in the area. The Japanese claimed that it was necessary for the Japanese to occupy Wangtu to link up with certain Japanese division headquarters in the same perimeter at the town of Hatsukuo.

The Japanese military authorities took their first step yesterday toward the organization of an independent or "puppet" Chinese administration within the area now controlled by the invading forces. They invited Col. Wang Ping-yen to become head of a new military organization or gendarmerie.

Col. Wang formerly headed the soviet volunteer militia which functioned within the Chapei and Paoshan areas north of the international settlement. This force was dissolved two years ago, however, when the national government amalgamated various local and suburban cities into the municipality of greater Shanghai under a mayor appointed by the national government.

Chinese Spurn Scheme.

Since then Col. Wang has been engaged in business. Yesterday he approached local Chinese organizations, including the chamber of commerce, and asked as to whether he should accept the Japanese proposal to organize an independent military force under Japanese auspices with a number of Japanese reservists acting in an advisory capacity.

The chamber of commerce expressed strong disapproval of the scheme and immediately referred the matter to Mayor Wu Teh-chen, who telegraphed the facts to the national government and asked for instructions.

The Japanese move to create a puppet régime here is similar to their action in Manchuria. Numerous proposals are being made here both in Chinese and foreign circles to head off the Japanese move. One proposal is that the municipal council of the international settlement should take over the policing of the Chapei and Nantao districts pending a final ad-

PERU PRESIDENT SHOT AT CHURCH BY POLITICAL FOE

LIMA, Peru, March 6.—(AP)—President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro was shot and slightly wounded today at a church in the summer resort of Miraflores, near here. His assailant, who shot two other persons before he was wounded and captured, was officially identified as José Melgar Marquez, a member of the Aprista [opposition] political party.

Col. Antonio Rodriguez, chief of the presidential staff, was wounded seriously when he stepped between the president and his attacker.

After the attack an angry populace sought to lynch the assailant, but he escaped, only to be arrested later. President Cerro was shot in the chest. Doctors said the wound is unimportant.

Takes Poison and Goes to Park Police Station

Leon J. Bertholet, 24 years old, of Savanna, Ill., walked into the Lincoln park police station early this morning, seeking shelter from the cold. As he stood at the radiator Sergt. Barney Rosenberg noticed he appeared ill and questioned him. Bertholet then admitted he had swallowed poison a few minutes before. He was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital, where, after emergency treatments had been given, it was said he would recover. Bertholet described himself as a member of the 52d U. S. ordnance corps.

The cold wave which swept down on Chicago from the frozen Canadian plains on Saturday continued in full force yesterday and the official forecast indicated it will be little, if any, milder today and tomorrow.

A minimum of 5 above zero was recorded at 7 a. m. and a maximum of 15 at 3 p. m. The mercury again took a downward course during the afternoon and evening and stood at 8 above at 9 o'clock.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said that a temperature close to the zero mark would be reached this morning, although he was inclined to believe it would stay a degree or two above the spot that has not been touched in Chicago for more than two years. Tomorrow morning, he indicated, might be just as cold.

Predicts Mild Spring.

John F. Barrett of River Forest, veteran member of the Board of Trade who won large sums last winter by backing a prediction that it would not reach zero, declared last night he did not believe that mark would be touched today or tomorrow.

"After this it will be a nice, mild spring," he added.

Mr. Barrett makes his forecasts several months in advance, predicting them on the direction of the wind on ember days.

Abnormal cold prevailed in Canada, where temperatures as low as 25 below zero were noted, and over practically all the United States east of the Rockies yesterday. Los Angeles was the warmest place in the country, with a maximum of 75.

At Carbondale, Ill., it was reported severe damage had been done the southern Illinois peach crop. Many trees were reported to have budded. At Pana the mercury fell to 4 above, the coldest since the winter of 1930-'31. Further north it was said fruit crops had not been harmed, as the trees were not far enough advanced.

In Chicago the cold was made more unpleasant by a steady wind that reached an official 27 miles an hour. The anemograph showed that at the top of Tribuno Tower the wind was 30 miles for several hours, with gusts of 45 miles for short periods.

Autoist Kills Man; Finds Victim Is Brother-in-Law

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 6.—One dead, four dying, 40 more injured, and 200 arrests was today's presidential election campaign toll in Berlin. The chief encounters took place between Hitlerites and communists, who started campaigning soon after dawn.

About 50,000 "Iront Front" members, mostly Socialists, assembled in Berlin's Lustgarden to demonstrate for President Paul von Hindenburg this afternoon. Their chief, Otto Wels, spoke while "iron front" airplanes decorated with Von Hindenburg's name cruised overhead. Fifty autos and several hundred motorcycles roared through Berlin streets bearing pro-Hindenburg speaking choruses and propaganda.

HOLD UP CHARITY OFFICE; MENACE GROUP OF NEEDY

A dozen cold and miserable charity seekers were standing in line yesterday afternoon in the offices of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid society, 1214 South Clinton street waiting to make their appeals for help, when two armed men entered.

Without delay the newcomers forced the unfortunates and three employés of the office, Miss Florence Rosenberg, Miss Sarah Jacobson and M. C. Elman, to raise their hands. Then one of the pair went with his pistol into the office of Adolph Copeland, president of the society, and forced him to surrender $250 and checks for $150.

Bremen Breaks Its Own Record Across Atlantic

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Arriving today, the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, despite one day of heavy, foggy weather, broke her own previous crossing record and came within four minutes of the mark of the Europa, the present speed king of the Atlantic. The liner reached Ambrose, the finish line, at 5:34 a. m., 4 days 17 hours and 10 minutes after leaving Cherbourg breakwater. Her average speed was 27.3 knots.

Chocolate Sundae Addict Holds Up Cafe Patrons

A sundae-eating bandit held up Miss Elizabeth McCullough, 1639 Hinman avenue, Evanston, cashier in Cooley's cupboard at 1631 Orrington avenue, Evanston, early this morning and stole $200. Seven patrons, besides the cashier, were threatened but not otherwise molested. The robber ordered and consumed a chocolate sundae before committing the holdup. He escaped in a parked car outside.

Brief Thrill for Waukegan in Baby Hunt

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, with his wife at his elbow, last night held a telephone in his home near Hopewell, N. J., and listened while a physician in Waukegan described to him a plump boy baby with crinkly blond hair. The infant had been examined in the belief that he might be the kidnaped Lindbergh child who has been sought since Tuesday.

"Thirty-three inches tall, curly blond, seven upper teeth, nine lower," said the physician, Dr. John Foley, city health officer of Waukegan.

Col. Lindbergh asked impatiently for more details.

"Reached for the telephone," continued Dr. Foley.

"That's what he'd do," was the reply from the colonel.

Brown Eyes Wreck Hope.

"Brown eyes."

"Brown—?" the voice of the flying colonel trailed off. There was a conference in the Lindbergh home, participated in by Capt. J. J. Lamb of the New Jersey state police and the Lindberghs.

"Are you sure the eyes are brown?" This from Capt. Lamb.

"There can be no doubt," asserted Dr. Foley.

Another brief conference, and then Capt. Lamb suggested that the little boy and the couple with him be allowed to go their way. The Lindbergh baby has blue eyes that could not be mistaken for brown, the captain said.

The youngster on whom the action centered is Earl K. Woodley Jr., of 113 South 11th street, Minneapolis. His father, Earl K. Sr., entered the Karcher hotel in Waukegan and registered late in the evening. As he was going to his room the mother of the child entered the hotel lobby and started upstairs. In her arms was little Earl.

Hotel Man Grows Suspicious.

As Woodley joined her the hotel manager, G. W. Benfer, asked him if she was his wife. Receiving an affirmative answer, he required the guest to add "and family" to his signature. The infant was wrapped in a blanket.

A little later, when a hotel employé went to the Woodleys' room with food, the child was still covered and Benfer's suspicions were aroused. He called Sheriff Lester Tiffany and five minutes later the sheriff asked Woodley to go with him to his office.

"About the Lindbergh case!" asked Woodley. He then related that he was northwest representative of the Bear Manufacturing company of Rock Island, machinery manufacturers. He was driving to Minneapolis from Toledo, he added, and he had already been halted in Gary by some one who believed little Earl might be Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Tiffany Calls Lindbergh.

Sheriff Tiffany called the Lindbergh home. Col. Lindbergh, informed by Capt. Lamb that there was possibly information, went to the phone. The baby, as described while asleep, aroused his excitement.

"He kicked like the devil when I touched him," said the sheriff.

"That's his temperament," declared the colonel.

Then the father of the missing child suggsted that a physician be sent to examine the baby and give a full description. Also, he continued, the child, if he was Lindbergh Jr., would reach for the telephone when placed near it. Little Earl performed that part of the play perfectly. He, too, was a telephone addict. But his eyes were brown and his parents were allowed to go.

Sheriff Tiffany said that in the Woodley car were found maps of New York, several eastern states, and Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Mrs. Woodley, who made no particular remonstrance while the physician's examination was being conducted, said that little Earl is 23 months old. She and her husband hope that all persons who suspect them between Waukegan and Minneapolis know that the Lindbergh baby has blue eyes.

BABY'S PARENTS BASE HOPE NOW ON UNDERWORLD

Only Silence Adds to Suspense.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Sinister silence blanketed the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J., tonight as a nerve-racked father and almost hopeless mother kept vigil for the fifth day, vainly awaiting gangland's response to a plea to return their kidnaped baby.

A vengeful hunt for the little lost Lindbergh heir by an army of troopers and detectives continued unabated and at direct variance with the father's personal negotiations with the underworld.

Tonight little known progress had been made in either direction and there was a minimum of activity apparent in the storm buffeted white house on Sourland hill.

Fail to Get Results.

The best efforts of "Salvi" Spitale and Irving Bitz, known in the underworld as "right guys," and named last night by the Lindberghs as go-betweens with the kidnapers, had not served to bring the stolen boy back to his blue and white nursery. The appeal to the abductors to open negotiations through two gangland characters appeared no more productive than the Lindberghs' earlier pathetic promise of immunity if the baby was returned.

Persistent reports that the kidnapers had made contact with the two intermediaries, that the money would be planted in New York for them tonight, and that Baby Lindbergh would be returned within 48 hours were denied in Trenton by Charles A. Schoeffel, deputy superintendent of New Jersey state police, who has been close to Lindbergh since the abduction.

Certain No Word Received.

Maj. Schoeffel, the only official link between the family and the public, said he was certain Col. Lindbergh would be the first to hear of any contact being made.

Col. Lindbergh's attempt to enlist the aid of underworld characters in the search for the missing baby was made "without consulting any of the state police," the major said.

Many credited Col. Henry Breckenridge, a close friend and legal adviser of Lindbergh, with originating the scheme of calling in gang go-betweens, while others were equally confident it originated with Police Commissioner William P. Mulrooney of New York at the conference of crime experts called in Trenton Saturday by Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey.

Spitale "Man of Word."

In police circles it was said that whoever selected Spitale made a wise choice, for the gangster is known to all of his associates as "man of his word."

Police in New York and New Jersey have maintained indifference toward the entry of Spitale and his gun bearer, Bitz, in the case and have protected rather than sought to question the two contact men. New York police even went so far as to remove all records and pictures of the two men from the rogues' gallery.

Spitale is the part owner of Harlem clubs and midtown speakeasies and is on good terms with most of the city's gangs. He was first a friend and later a bitter foe of the late Jack [Legs] Diamond.

The indifference exhibited by the police toward the entry of Spitale into the kidnaping case became even more confusing when it was revealed that three followers of the racketeer had been arrested recently in Brooklyn just in time to prevent a rival bootlegger from being kidnaped. One of these men was released three days before the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Prefer to Work Alone.

At least a part of the police, it appears, are ready to admit failure in the frantic chase and turn the entire matter over to the underworld. The Lindberghs are known to favor the conducting of their own negotiations without official interference.

Spitale has been "interviewed," trailed, and seen in a dozen places since he entered the case. His automobile, driven by a chauffeur, has been busy. It was stopped twice at Staten Island ferries, but was permitted to proceed as matters were explained. Late this afternoon the automobile returned to Manhattan with a man, a woman, and a 5 year old child. They were said to be members of Spitale's family.

A staggering lot of rumors sprang up about the gangster's activities during the day. It was even whispered as near the Lindbergh home as Hopewell that the baby was on his way home and would be returned within a few hours.

Developments this afternoon tended to discount early reports that kidnapers holding the baby had communicated directly with Col. Lindbergh and that the appointment of Spitale and Bitz was made at their suggestion. Tonight it is believed the appointment of the go-betweens was a move of desperation—a shot in the dark—made in the frantic hope of breaking down the wall of silence that has surrounded the baby and his kidnapers since last Tuesday night.

The underworlds of New York, Chicago, and the other great cities of the country seethed with whispers tonight. Here it was said every gang leader had pledged his support to Spitale and many of them were actively working on the case.

Stormy at Lindbergh Home.

In the Hopewell home, however, there was only quiet tonight. Rain, snow and at times hail beat against the windows of the new stone house, and the wind rattled shutters even more noisily than on the night the baby was stolen.

The terrific storm kept the Lindberghs inside and they managed to get more rest than they have at any time since Charles Jr. was first missed. Col. Lindbergh developed a heavy cold today, and Mrs. Lindbergh is still suffering from the cold she contracted Tuesday night. For a time this afternoon Col. Lindbergh talked with troopers quartered in the garage and watched the messages coming in over police teletypes.

Police Head Interviewed.

The only authentic bits of information garnered during the day in Hopewell came via way of Trenton in the form of a telephone interview with Maj. Schoeffel. The formal questions and their answers follow:

Q.—Who suggested Spitale and Bitz as mediators? A.—I know nothing about it. It is a private matter of Col. Lindbergh. He prepared the message without consulting any of the state police.

Q.—Have Spitale and Bitz been able to contact the kidnapers or receive any message from them? A.—I don't imagine so, or else Col. Lindbergh would have heard from them by now.

Q.—Have Spitale and Bitz gone to work on the case? A.—I never heard of either of these men until the statement was issued. I have never seen them and Col. Lindbergh has never spoken to me about them. Col. Lindbergh does not explain the things that he does.

Questioned About Ald's Status.

Q.—In case Spitale and Bitz bring the kidnaping to a successful conclusion, what would their legal position be with regard to future prosecution? A.—I refer you to the attorney general.

Q.—Did either of them communicate with Lindbergh, or any of the police? A.—They have not communicated with the state police. I do not know if they have talked to Col. Lindbergh or the New York police.

Q.—Why were reporters not told about plans for the announcement Col. Lindbergh made early this morning about the intermediaries. A.—It is strictly a private matter and Col. Lindbergh would like to get his baby back.

Q.—The Englewood chief of police says Capt. John J. Lamb, who is at the Lindbergh home, asked him to have Henry [Red] Johnson taken into custody; why was he wanted? A.—I think Johnson is a friend of Miss Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse. He left Englewood the same day or the day after the kidnaping. We wanted him for questioning. Men from Hopewell will question him in Newark.

Questioned About Nurse.

Q.—Is Miss Gow under arrest? A.—No, she is at the Lindbergh home doing her usual duties.

Q.—Could she leave Hopewell any time she wished? A.—She is not under arrest.

Q.—How can the kidnapers get in direct touch with Col. Lindbergh if the state police are intercepting all communications, even those of a strictly personal nature? A.—They cannot unless they telephone and he gets on the telephone, or unless they send one of his personal friends to see him.

Q.—Is there any friction between the various branches of the police on the case? A.—The coöperation is excellent.

Q.—Is there any lack of harmony between Col. Lindbergh and the police? A.—There is none so far as the circumstances of the crime and investigation go; he does not discuss personal affairs.

Q.—Is any one under arrest? A.—No; Johnson, the sailor, is being detained.

Q.—Has Miss Gow a police record? A.—Scotland Yard says no.

Capt. John J. Lamb, in charge of the state police in the home of Col. Lindbergh, gave the following interview:

Q.—Has Spitale or Bitz ever been at the Lindbergh home? A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—Have they communicated with the Lindbergh home or with the colonel or with any one connected with the case? A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—Are there any indications that the introduction of Spitale and Bitz will insure the safe return of the baby? A.—I have no knowledge that they were introduced into the case.

Q.—What are the latest developments? A.—Nothing now.

Q.—Have the kidnapers designated any representatives to get in touch with Spitale and Bitz or to act as intermediaries? A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—Miss Gow, in a statement to her mother several weeks ago, said she was afraid something would happen to the baby. Have you questioned her to determine what she meant? A.—There is nothing official yet that she made that statement.

Q.—How long did Johnson ride around in an automobile on the night of the kidnaping and who was the person in the car with him? A.—Johnson is still being questioned by the investigators. A report has not yet been received.

Q.—What was the outcome of the questioning of Johnson? A.—That questioning took place at Newark and the report will be received tomorrow when the investigators return.

Q.—Do the police think Johnson gave the lay of the land to the kidnapers? A.—That cannot be answered, as the statements are not here.

Q.—Do you think he may have done so unintentionally? A.—That cannot be answered.

Q.—Will Gov. Moore declare martial law in the vicinity of Hopewell in order to permit a thorough search of the territory there? A.—Gov. Moore will have to answer that.

Newspaper men requested Capt. Lamb to ask Col. Lindbergh if he would consent to be interviewed by them at any time convenient to him. Col. Lindbergh sent back word saying he was sorry but he could not grant an interview at this time.

Q.—Is there any verification of the rumor that the coast guard has been ordered to stop and search a yacht called Anna? A.—Not from these headquarters.

Q.—Have you verified the rumor that the child is to be returned in a specified time? A.—We cannot verify that rumor.

Q.—Have either Col. or Mrs. Lindbergh left the estate? A.—No.

Q.—Has Johnson got an uncle, John Johnson, chauffeur for a wealthy family in West Hartford, Conn? A.—We have not received reports from the detectives investigating up there as yet.

Q.—Has Betty Gow visited them frequently and did she spend her Christmas vacations there? A.—No.

Capt. Lamb was asked the name of the West Hartford family. He said the report has not been received.

The last question was:

Q.—Who is the woman picked up by Trenton and state police at Trenton to be taken to Hopewell? A.—There is no authorization out of here to pick any woman up.

Johnson Taken to Newark.

The high spot in the day's activities, so far as the police were concerned, was the transfer of Henry [Red] Johnson, the nurse's friend, from Hartford, where he was seized on Friday, to New Jersey for further questioning. Johnson was held in Hartford by Hugh M. Alcorn, prosecutor, "on the strength of his own story," which concerned a "date" with Betty Gow on the night of the kidnaping, but which was called off by telephone that night.

Johnson and one of his friends, Johanson Junge, a marine surveyor, were questioned tonight in Newark. Johnson claims to have passed last Tuesday evening in Junge's company.

After questioning the men for hours Deputy Chief of Police Brex announced that Johnson would be held but that Junge was released.

Junge, whose wife is employed as a maid in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, came to this country about three months ago. He came from Germany.

Plans for Party Told.

Junge and his wife and Johnson and Miss Gow, it developed, have been close friends for several weeks and have spent much of their free time together. On the night of the kidnaping, they say, they had made arrangements to go out together on a party. Early that evening, it is claimed, Johnson went to Junge's house in Englewood in his automobile and picked up Junge.

Before they left Junge's house they met Mrs. Junge and she told Johnson that Betty Gow had telephoned she would be unable to go on the party as the Lindberghs had decided to stay on at Hopewell. Johnson then decided to telephone Miss Gow that he intended driving to Hartford the next morning. He made the call, he told the police, went for a drive, and then went to his rooming house and retired.

Questioned about the milk bottle found in his car in Hartford, Johnson said he had bought the milk from a store in Englewood before starting for Connecticut to visit his brother John. Investigation developed that Johnson was a daily drinker of milk and patron of the Englewood shop.

Johnson described his work on the Thomas W. Lamont yacht, told of his acquaintance with Miss Gow and was said to have freely answered all questions. He was described as being cheerful but very nervous.

Little Activity at Home.

The courtyard of the Lindbergh home took on the appearance of a muddy pool as a driving rain continued to beat down tonight. The troopers on duty at the house remained close to their garage quarters and only occasional dashes outside were made in police cars and on motorcycles.

'Salvay' Spitale Well Known in Underworld of New York

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—"Salvy" Spitale, who, together with Irving Bitz, was authorized by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh at midnight last night to act as go-between to the kidnapers in an effort to get the child back, is well known in the underworld.

He is reputed to be intimately connected with no gang but to have the confidence of most of them. According to both the police and his associates, he has the reputation of being "on the level."

He is known as a lesser, though familiar figure in the world that includes night life. His name has been variously mentioned in night clubs, speakeasies, bootlegging, kidnaping and narcotics but the police have never pinned any law violation upon him.

Spitale is married and has a daughter 12 years old and a son 5. Both are being educated carefully in surroundings more favorable than the father enjoyed in childhood.

Spitale Has 2 Children.

Spitale is quoted as having explained his connection with the Lindbergh case in the following words:

"Nothing in the world would have brought me into the very delicate situation if I did not know what it is to be a father—having two children of my own—and if I did not know that the missing child is not only the child of the Lindberghs but the child of America."

"We were asked by a representative of Col. Lindbergh to act for him in the hope that the kidnapers would get in touch with us," Spitale said.

"We had no ulterior motives in sacrificing ourselves—because sacrifice it is—to aid the Lindberghs.

"We hope for no personal profit whatsoever.

"Further, we have not been in communication with the kidnapers nor have they been in communication with us."

Lives in Penthouse.

According to people who know him, Spitale started his career as a bouncer in a Williamsburg dance hall. He is a suave and dapper and genial man, well adapted to win his way forward. Gradually his importance increased until he is now reputed to have a large interests in Harlem cabarets and in restaurants in the mid-town section. He has been recently living in hotels and apartment houses and at present has a penthouse apartment on Central Park West.

Spitale also has a summer home in Greene county in the Catskills, where he is listed as having a permit to carry a pistol. He has a brother, Guy, a druggist, who operates a summer boarding house at Acra.

Spitale's connection with the Catskills, where the late Jack Diamond engaged in beer wars and gun battles, is a pointed coincidence.

Considered Foe of Diamond.

Although Spitale is reputed to have successfully kept clear much of the strife that has made life in the New York underworld precarious, both the underworld and the police consider that he was one of Jack Diamond's bitterest enemies.

Bitz is a much less important figure and is known chiefly as Spitale's right hand man. Bitz' record is not so clear as Spitale's, for the police say he has served a term in federal prison on narcotic charges.

Bitz is said to have gone under the name of Morris Grossman until recent years. He was arrested four years ago in connection with the robbery of the Rozoff jewelry store at Fulton street and Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, but was discharged.

MINISTER REFUSES TO JOIN IN PRAYER FOR BABY'S RETURN

Battle Creek, Mich., March 6.—[Special.]—In a sermon on "Hypocrisy" this morning the Rev. Carleton B. Miller, minister of the First Congregational church, explained why he did not join other churches today and offer a prayer for the return of the Lindbergh baby.

"If God does not have it in mind to prevent such crimes," he said, "it can do no good to pray for the child's return."

"Uncle Sam is a great fellow to lock the garage after the car is stolen," said the Rev. Mr. Miller. "Until we have an enlightened public opinion there will be no relief from crime, immorality or wrongdoing."

The minister named five things "enlightened public opinion" should bring about:

A cleanup of the dope centers in large cities; sterilization of mental defectives and venereal diseased humans; maternal health clinics to teach contraception; service and support for character building institutions.

BOY DISAPPEARS AS HE HUNTS FOR LINDBERGH BABY

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—A Brooklyn boy's desire to "help the Lindberghs find their baby" led him to leave home Thursday on that quest, and he hasn't returned since, his distracted father reported to police today. The boy is David Adams, 11, a pupil in a public school.

Reading news of the kidnaping, he tried on Wednesday to organize a band of his playmates "to go to Hopewell and join in the hunt." But the others were too timid to volunteer, and the next morning, after starting supposedly for school, he is believed to have gone instead to New Jersey.

His father, Frank Adams, who moved to Brooklyn with his family from Paterson, N. J., only a month ago, asked that a general alarm be sent out for him. Among his raiment when he vanished was a black leather "Lindy" aviator's coat with a fur collar and a woolen aviator's cap.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Victims' Faces Disfigured with Acid; Blame Gang.

Two women, believed to be the ones who registered last week in a hotel at St. Paul, Minn., as Marjorie and Margaret Perrie of Chicago, were found murdered early yesterday in a burning automobile at Turtle Lake, Wis.

The murders had the appearance of gang killings. Two men, riding along a country road near Turtle Lake, came upon an automobile, blazing in the midst of a snowstorm. They attempted to put out the fire with snow, and then saw the bodies of the two women in the back seat.

Sheriff James Olson of Polk county, in which the killings took place, was summoned from the county seat at Balsam Lake and took charge of the investigation.

Faces Disfigured With Acid.

Not only had the killers covered the bodies with gasoline and set them afire, but they had previously disfigured the features of the dead women with acid. The bottle containing a few drops of acid was found in the automobile.

One of the women had been shot in the forehead. Sheriff Olson found that she had been shot outside the automobile, probably in an attempted flight. He found blood and a spot in the snow where her body had fallen.

The skull of the other woman had been fractured. Whether this was done by a glancing bullet or with a club the ravages of fire and acid made it impossible to determine.

The license plates were missing from the automobile, a 1931 model. The serial number on the motor block had been obliterated and a new number stamped in, a practice common with automobile thieves.

Slayers Overlook Purse.

In their efforts to hinder identification of the bodies the killers overlooked the purse of one of the women, however. Aside from the usual supply of cosmetics, the only contents of the purse were two envelopes, stationery of the Ryan hotel in St. Paul.

Employés of the hotel said that one of the women appeared to be an Indian.

One of the pair, the one who called herself Marjorie, and a girl who declared she was Clara White but who, he authorities believe might have been Margaret Perrie, went to the Elgin hotel in Minneapolis on Saturday and registered. They left that hotel soon afterward and never returned to their room. Investigators learned from attendants in a garage near the Ryan hotel that there were no license numbers on the car they arrived in.

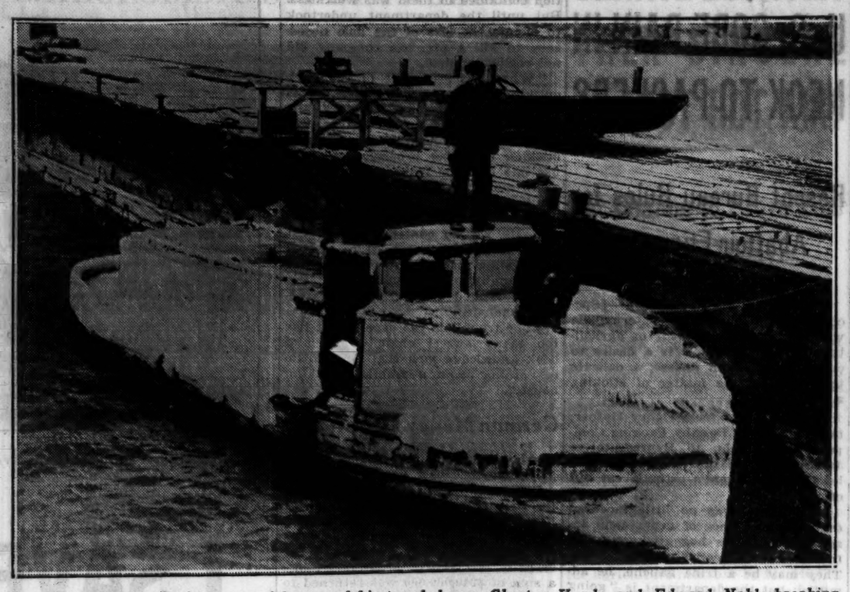
Sheriff Olsen and his deputies will try to identify the women with the help of dentists. Both had elaborate gold work and casts of their teeth are to be made.

Turtle Lake, where the bodies were found, is about 70 miles northeast of St. Paul. The roadside spot where the murders took place is a short distance from U. S. Highway 8, which enters St. Paul.

Gang Holds Up Theater and Escapes with $1,200

Five bandits, one of whom carried a sawed off shotgun, held up the Lawndale theater, 4015 Roosevelt road, last night and fled with the evening's receipts, $1,200. Herman Nelson, 1230 Independence boulevard, the manager, and Harold Keller, a doorman, were forced to give up the money in the ticket cage in the lobby. The robbers escaped in an automobile with a sixth man.

Fishermen Reach Port After Drifting for Day on Lake



Frank Reckendorf, master of boat, and his two helpers, Chester Kunde and Edward Nehl, breaking ice off White Flyer after they had brought it into the mouth of the Chicago river yesterday while coast guardsmen were preparing to go to rescue. They had drifted for 26 hours. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ice Covered Boat

Frank Reckendorf, 50 years old, 202 Harvard place, Waukegan, a fisherman, with two other men, brought his crippled 40 foot motorboat, the White Flyer, into the mouth of the Chicago river yesterday after fighting the storm on Lake Michigan for 26 hours. Capt. John O. Anderson, commander of the coast guard station, sighted the craft as he was preparing to leave with a crew to search for it. Reckendorf, with Edward Nehls and Chester Kunde, both of Kenosha, Wis., left Waukegan harbor to set fishing nets early Saturday. In the storm the craft struck a submerged log which ripped a hole in the bow, and the three men were forced to devote all their energies to keep the boat afloat.

Capt. Anderson gave the exhausted men dry clothes and dinner in the coast guard station. Reckendorf said he would remain here until his boat is repaired.

out. After they had launched the boat and were half a mile from shore the boat capsized.

Capt. Turner aided his men to reach the upturned craft. They clung to it. The capsized boat drifted toward the pier and life preservers were hurled to the men. One of the men was aided by a rope tied to a preserver, but the rope broke and the men disappeared. Turner alone was thrown upon the beach by the waves half an hour later, numb from the cold.

A second surfboat was launched by three men in an effort to find Barton and Livingston. They have not returned and are believed drowned.

THEIR HOME CROWDED BY POLICE, LINDBERGHS EAT A PANTRY LUNCH

Hopewell, N. J., March 6.—[Special.]—With their home transformed into a police center and every room on the ground floor occupied, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh hid away together for a few minutes tonight and ate a pantry lunch in the small alcove off the kitchen.

Mrs. Lindbergh had remained upstairs most of the day, while her husband was closeted with police officials. She came downstairs tonight and beckoned to her husband and they went to the pantry and the colonel buttered bread for sandwiches while Mrs. Lindbergh poured milk into two glasses.

Mrs. Lindbergh wore a dark hued woolen dress, while her husband adhered to the gray suit in which he has been seen for the last few days.

For the first time since the police assumed charge of the Lindberghs' affairs state troopers were in the background tonight. A guard was stationed at only one point on the road leading to the home. That was at the farmhouse three-quarters of a mile from the courtyard.

Crowds at Grandmother's.

Detroit, Mich., March 6.—(AP)—Grosse Pointe police today stationed patrolmen near the home of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh Sr., grandmother of the kidnaped baby, to keep traffic moving.

500 CHILDREN IN ORPHANAGE PRAY FOR LINDY'S BABY

Hopewell, N. J., March 6.—[Special.]—Five hundred children, wards of the St. Michael's orphanage here, have been praying daily that the missing Lindbergh baby will be left on the threshold of their orphanage.

The desolate little orphans or those whose parents could not support them have been stirred more, perhaps, than others by the grief of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh for their lost son.

IDENTIFY CROSSING VICTIM.

The body of a woman killed Saturday night by a Douglas Park elevated train at a surface crosing at 57th avenue in Cicero was identified yesterday as that of Mrs. Mary Saidl, 58 years old, 2113 South 58th court, Cicero.

FLORIDA SWEPT BY GALES; ONE KILLED, 4 HURT

Trees Are Uprooted; Wires Torn Down.

Miami, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—Sweeping eastward from the Gulf of Mexico a storm called by the Miami weather bureau one of unusual dimensions and intensity shook entire Florida early today with fifty mile gales.

Communication lines throughout the state were crippled, lights were cut off, trees uprooted, and house awnings and tiles torn off. At Jacksonville a 5 year old boy was killed and four members of his family were injured when the storm demolished a house.

Northeast storm warnings were placed late today from north Florida east coast up into Carolinas, where the storm, increasing in intensity, is expected to pass.

Chicagoans Rescued.

Sarasota, Fla., March 6.—[Special.] Mrs. John P. Flanagan and son Donald, 7, Chicago, were among a party of winter visitors taken from St. Armand's key in the Gulf of Mexico, near here, early this morning when an 8 foot tidal wave swept over the key, swamping houses and endangering lives. First news of their danger came to Sarasota when Mrs. Randall Burroughs, daughter of William J. Burns, internationally famous detective, telephoned from her father's home on the key asking help be sent.

Boatswain L. P. Toolin, commanding the coast guard patrol boat 295 and a party of sea scouts, fishing guides, and other volunteers worked all during the night taking residents from the key to a place of safety.

East Coast Hit.

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Five coast guardsmen from the Atlantic City base are missing and believed to have been drowned today when they dared seething seas tossed up by the wind that wreaked damage all along the Atlantic coast to attempt rescues, the first of a fishing sloop and the second the first rescue party.

On receipt of word that a fishing sloop, the Anna, was in distress the first crew, consisting of Capt. James Turner, Surfman William R. Barton, and Machinist Harold Livingston, set

LINDY'S COUSIN CALLS KIDNAPING AN INSIDE JOB

Among the most interested followers of the news of the Lindbergh kidnaping case are Earl Lindbergh Seal and his family of 1404 East 63d place. Mr. Seal is a first cousin of Col. Lindbergh, his mother being a sister of the colonel's father.

"We met Col. Lindbergh, Mrs. Lindbergh, and the baby in Baltimore about a year ago," said Mr. Seal. "Mrs. Lindbergh is charming and the baby a fine, healthy boy. Like many other people, we believe the kidnaping was an 'inside job'; that it must have been accomplished by some one familiar with the home at Hopewell."

Mr. Seal is a meat inspector for the department of agriculture and assigned to the Armour & Co. plant here. He and his wife have two children, Earl Jr., 13 years old, and Margaret, 9 years old.

Margaret has the distinction of being one of the few girls to refuse a kiss from the colonel. In 1927, when the family lived in Washington, Mr. Seal took Margaret to meet the colonel, shortly after his flight across the Atlantic. They were introduced. Margaret curtsied and Lindbergh stooped to kiss her. But Margaret was shy and hid behind her mother's skirts.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Longley, 1700 South 3d avenue, Maywood, at whose home Col. Lindbergh roomed when he was an air mail pilot, asserted that if any one in Chicago had the baby and would take it to them they would be glad to keep him "until Slim can get here."

Mr. Longley's daughter, Leonore, is married to Harold Knoop, an air mail pilot of Riverside. Mr. Knoop said that he and his wife were following the news of the case with interest.

Chicago detectives yesterday were investigating a report that a strange couple with a blue eyed baby had been seen in a flat building in the 800 block of Tower court. Harry Daugherty, manager of the Union League club, said that he saw the couple about 5 p. m. Friday.

Sergt. Ray Gilso of the detective bureau and two of his men searched the block and questioned residents there. None had a blue eyed child and none had seen the couple.

It is claimed, however, that the Japanese opposed this scheme unless the Japanese were given control of the municipal council. This was opposed by the British and American interests.

Fear March on Nanking.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

SHANGHAI, March 7.—[Monday.]—The arrival of the more Japanese reinforcements today and an admission that one or two more divisions were en route from Tokio prompted Chinese government circles today to charge that they feared Japan might attempt to capture Nanking.

The possibility of further inland invasions, the Chinese announcement said, led a plenary session of the central executive committee to designate two cities as temporary capitals of China.

Honanfu [Loyang] has already been designated as the temporary capital, and today Sianfu, the capital of Shensi province, was announced as a co-capital to be known as the western capital.

5,000 Jap Troops Land.

While fighting continued, 5,000 more Japanese soldiers were landed and both sides consolidated their positions west of Shanghai today. Chinese newspapers said China's 19th route army planned to launch a counter attack within a few days.

It hoped to regain territory recently evacuated when the Japanese advance pushed the Chinese farther than 12½ miles away from Shanghai, the newspaper said. An anonymous spokesman was quoted as saying that the Japanese were endangering Kunshan and Soochow, apparently planning to advance toward Nanking. Therefore, he said, the Chinese would counter attack as soon as new defense lines were completed.

Admitting that one or two additional divisions were en route, Japanese authorities said these troops and their supplies had started from Japan prior to the cessation of hostilities.

Japanese Seize Looters.

Meanwhile Japanese bluejackets threw a ring of barbed wire around Chapei today to keep out looters, hundreds of whom have been arrested by the Japanese military authorities. The looters were principally Chinese, it was said, although many Japanese were mixed among them, and they were active in Hongkew as well, where municipal authorities were taking a hand.

Bluejackets and civilian Japanese assistants began to clear Chapei today, removing the dead for burning and disposing of unexploded shells. Within Hongkew the utilities companies began the gigantic task of repairing power, light, and electric railway and telephone lines, destroyed during the month or more of hostilities.

JAPANESE TROOPS ON MANCHURIAN BANDITS' HEELS

HARBIN, Manchuria, March 6.—(AP)—The main body of a Japanese brigade, under Gen. Amano, reached Ninguta, Manchuria, today to join the advance detachment which occupied that city yesterday.

The main force advanced afoot from Hailin, accompanied by motor truck outfits, after having moved as far north as Hailin on troop trains over the Chinese Eastern railway.

Just before the arrival of the Japanese troops at Ninguta the insurgent Chinese band under Wang Teh-lin compelled the local chamber of commerce to pay $30,000 Mexican to prevent looting and then fled the city.

China Rushes Troops to Fight New Red Outbreak

SHANGHAI, March 6.—(AP)—Dispatches from Kiangsi reported serious communist outbreaks in the southern part of Kiangsi province tonight, with the communists laying seige to Kanchow. Provincial troops were opposing the communists, the dispatches said, while it was understood that the Chinese national government had ordered three divisions to go into Kiangsi and undertake to suppress the outbreaks.

NURSE HAD A HUNCH OF SOME TROUBLE IN HOME OF LINDBERGH

LONDON, March 6.— (AP) —Betty Gow, the Scottish nurse of little Charles Lindbergh, had a "premonition" that something unusual was going to happen in the Lindbergh home, it was revealed today.

A "Mrs. Taylor," Miss Gow's mother, a resident of Glasgow, Scotland, told the Sunday Express that Betty recently had written her expressing the fear that "something was going to happen."

The nurse had made this statement to her mother in promising to come home soon.

Mrs. Taylor told the Express that she was sure her daughter "had never dreamed of the baby being kidnaped."

Mrs. Taylor revealed yesterday that she had feared for her daughter's safety ever since another of her children, a son, was accidentally killed by an electric shock in the United States last September.

"Betty is my youngest child," Mrs. Taylor said, "and she went to America three years ago. Ever since my boy was electrocuted I have been in dread for Betty's sake."

Mrs. Taylor said she expected Miss Gow to come home to Scotland probably late next summer for her vacation. The mother explained that her daughter had been away for three years now, although she had been with the Lindberghs only one year.

JAPAN RUSHES MORE TROOPS TO SHANGHAI FRONT

TOKIO, March 6.—(AP)—Troop trains continued to roll westward across Japan tonight laden with reënforcements bound for Shanghai, although so far as Japanese officialdom was concerned the guns had ceased to roar in China. A war office statement explained:

"Troops previously designated as a part of the Shanghai expedition are continuing their movement as scheduled. Our military authorities are doing their utmost to insure complete cessation of fighting in accordance with the statement of Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa of March 3, but it is impossible to tell how the Chinese will behave."

The statement indicated that the movement of reënforcements will be halted when Japan was assured that "Chinese provocative actions" were ended. It was learned that the reënforcements referred to by the war office comprised an unnamed division and strong auxiliary forces. It was possible that this force would be diverted to Manchuria to replace various units there if it were not needed at Shanghai. War office authorities professed an inability to halt Shanghai reënforcements owing to the danger of fresh Chinese troop arrivals to resume the conflict.

JAPAN IS URGED TO QUIT LEAGUE; AGITATION GROWS

TOKIO, March 7.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Agitation for Japan's withdrawal from the league of nations appeared to have been strengthened today by an irritating effect on Japanese opinion of speeches made by spokesmen of the smaller nations in the league assembly at Geneva.

This agitation was strong, even in official quarters, where there were many advocates of withdrawal from the league after the present conflict with China is settled.

Representatives of the smaller nations, which have no material interests in the far east, condemned Japan's invasion of China before the special assembly of the league Saturday and urged that all the league's resources be employed to end the struggle.

JAPANESE BAR TRIBUNE WRITER COVERING WAR

Refuse Him Official News of Military Activities.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 7 [Monday.]—THE TRIBUNE correspondent was informed today by Japanese military and naval authorities that his name has been removed from the list of correspondents entitled to receive official communiques of Japanese military and naval activities.

JOHN POWELL.
[Harris & Ewing.]

The information was conveyed verbally through K. S. Innui, official spokesman, who said that Japanese agents in the United States had notified the Japanese military and naval commanders at Shanghai that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE had published articles from the correspondent at Shanghai as well as editorials and cartoons which were detrimental to the prestige of the Japanese army and navy operating in China.

Asks Specific Information.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent demanded specific information concerning the particular articles which had aroused Japanese criticism in order to determine whether they constituted a faithful account of actual occurrences, but it was insinuated that he must merely comply with the order. It was stated "that numerous articles had appeared and that they were sufficient to justify the Japanese action."

The Japanese also announced that the daily conference with foreign newspaper men aboard the flagship Idzumo would be discontinued, but the reason was not stated. Several days ago the Japanese withdrew official passes allowing correspondents to visit military headquarters or the areas adjacent to the lines. This action was taken after the publication in the American owned paper, the Shanghai Evening Post, of an eye-witness account of a Japanese military execution of Chinese civilians alleged to have been guilty of sniping activities. When the correspondents, including THE TRIBUNE'S, raised an objection, the military spokesman declared that a certain correspondent was cabling "unbalanced accounts," and when the situation was corrected the passes would be validated.

Has No Practical Effect.

The passes are not yet validated, but recently certain correspondents have been taken on personally conducted tours of Japanese headquarters, accompanied by the official military spokesman. On these expeditions favored correspondents have been shown evidence of alleged Chinese atrocities including samples of dumdum bullets said to have been fired by Chinese soldiers.

The deletion of THE TRIBUNE correspondent's name from the list of correspondents entitled to receive official Japanese military and naval communiques can have no practical effect, since Sino-Japanese official communiques are broadcast locally to all foreign newspapers. Hence they are public property and hence the Japanese action constitutes a gesture of disapproval of THE TRIBUNE'S policy in presenting the facts of the Sino-Japanese situation further.

We told him we had a group of overcoats—regular Rogers Peet overcoats—we were planning to price for quick clearance at $28. We showed him the coats—beautiful fabrics, hand-tailored, correctly and newly-styled.

But when he read the former price tags—some of 'em up in the $60 and $70 class—he lost his sense of humor completely.

Of the new 900 million issue, 300 millions are to be seven month certificates of indebtedness maturing Oct. 15, 1932, bearing interest of 3⅛ per cent. The remaining 600 millions bearing 3¾ per cent interest will mature March 15, 1933.

The new obligations will be bearer certificates in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000. These certificates will be exempt both as to principal and interest, from all taxation, federal, state and local, except estate and inheritance taxes.

Treasury certificates maturing March 15, 1932, will be accepted at par in payment for the new certificates and subscriptions for which payment is to be tendered in such manner, will be given preferred allotment.

The new certificates will be accepted at par, Mr. Mills stated, "during such time and under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed or approved by the secretary of the treasury in payment of income and profits taxes payable at the maturity of the certificates. The certificates of these series will be acceptable to secure deposits of public moneys, but will not bear the circulation privilege."

The treasury is issuing the baby bonds for hoarders without any enthusiasm because of the consideration that they may draw as much money from deposit in banks as from hiding places in the home. The administration plunged headlong into the baby bond project and was brought up at a round turn by the protests of the banks whose officials contended that the scheme was likely to do more harm than good. Then the treasury began to softpedal on the plan which it was too late to rescind.

Move to Assuage Banks.

In order to repair the administration's blunder the treasury has given assurances that if deposits are withdrawn to invest in the baby bonds the government will redeposit the proceeds in the same institutions, provided they are government depositaries or can qualify as such. There has been a considerable response to notices sent out by federal reserve banks stating the qualifications of depositaries. In an appeal tonight to hoarders to put their money back in circulation Mr. Mills subordinated the baby bond investment.

"As a matter of enlightened self-interest," he said, "every one who holds these idle dollars should put them back to work, through the placing of deposits with sound banking institutions or through the purchase of sound investments. I cannot assume to advise as to which method should be selected.

"But the treasury department is making available for purchase by the holder of idle dollars a special obligation of the United States government. He or she may turn over the currency to the treasury department through the federal reserve banks and receive in return a promise of the government to repay the funds on 60 days' notice, with interest at 2 per cent."

STICKING PIGS BY U. S. CODE PAIN IN NECK TO PACKERS

Resent Bureau Rules for Abattoir Etiquette.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Latest among the paternalistic whims of the department of agriculture, it now develops, is a desire to cultivate a certain finesse, a delicate technique—in the matter of sticking a pig.

It was a letter from Henry Hafner, manager of the Danahy Packing Company of Buffalo, to Representative James M. Mead of New York which let the department's esthetic cat out of the bag.

Mr. Hafner was no little incensed over the insistence of department inspectors that his hog stickers failed to observe the niceties of pig sticking. They may be a trifle gauche, he admitted; but the department is "going too far" in insisting they become dilletantes in the matter.

The myriad publications of the agriculture department have brought protests before from the Danahy company on the ground that the information contained in them was worthless. But until the department undertook to dictate the size of the hole necessary to kill a pig, the company did not really get mad.

"What business is it of the agriculture department if the hole in the pig's neck is large or small?" Mr. Hafner demanded in his letter. "If the inspectors insist that we arn't sticking our pigs properly let them use one of their inspectors to put a chalk mark on the hog's neck showing just where they want him stuck."

The department's inspectors in Buffalo, Mr. Hafner contended, are "just trying to ride a good horse to death." A traveling inspector recently termed the Danahy plant "one of the best in the United States," he declared, and concluded:

"The trouble is the department has too many swivel chair clerks and book knowledge men that know little or nothing about a practical packing house."

German Money Hoarders Return Cash to Bankers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 6.—Finance Minister Hermann Dietrich in a speech at Koenigsberg today announced that the Germans are beginning to give up the money they have hoarded since the crisis of last July. In January alone a sum of $240,000,000 was returned to the Reichsbank and the same amount dribbled back in February, Herr Dietrich said.

In a $23,000,000 company noted for Quick Settlements"

BLYNN: "Do you save anything on your automobile insurance, Blake?"

BLAKE: "No, never thought of such a thing. How do you do it?"

BLYNN: "Just send for a Liberty Mutual Insurance representative. He will write you a car policy that pays dividends."

BLAKE: "How much dividends?"

BLYNN: "Well, the dividend on my Packard policy last year was $27.23. Nice little reduction without much effort."

BLAKE: "Didn't they charge you more for the policy in order to pay the dividend?"

BLYNN: "Do you think I am as easy as that? Liberty Mutual rates are standard manual rates, the same as other insurance companies."

BLAKE: "Is Liberty Mutual a strong company?"

BLYNN: "I looked into that, too. Liberty Mutual is a $23,000,000 company—the largest mutual casualty company in the world."

BLAKE: "Will they settle quickly if I have an accident?"

BLYNN: "I inquired about that, too, and found that Liberty Mutual is noted for prompt and fair settlements. They settle 990 out of every 1,000 cases without trial in court."

BLAKE: "How much do you suppose I would get in dividends from Liberty Mutual on my Buick Car policy?"

BLYNN: "You ought to get about $22.00."

BLAKE: "How can they charge regular standard rates and yet pay these dividends?"

BLYNN: "That's simple. Liberty Mutual is a mutual insurance company, which means that they have no stockholders to draw dividends. All the dividends go to the policyholders. Besides, they pay no commissions to brokers or agents and insure only careful drivers."

BLAKE: "Well, Blynn, a dividend of $22.00 looks wonderful to me. I am telephoning for a Liberty Mutual representative right now, before I forget."

HOOVER APPEALS TO HOARDERS TO FREE 1½ BILLIONS

Declares They Can Help End Depression.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—President Hoover in an address tonight appealed to the millions of people who are hoarding money to take their funds from their hiding places and restore them to circulation by depositing in banks or by investment.

The President, who estimated the amount of money withdrawn from circulation at one billion 500 millions of dollars, urged the hoarders to comply with his plea as a patriotic duty to their country in the hour of need for more effective measures to end the depression.

A Good Word for Congress.

Praising congress for the ability, cooperation and loyalty with which it has legislated "to restore economic stability and prosperity," Mr. Hoover addressed to the hoarders "a call to service for the common good of our country, a call to protect the individual home by means of assuring the safety of the nation as a whole." The response to his appeal, he said, "will be the touchstone of your loyalty and your sense of individual responsibility for the welfare of the whole community.

"The word 'depression' is an accurate but an obnoxious one," Mr. Hoover continued. "It is intensified by fear and apprehension, and by the loss of faith and courage. The true basis of wealth and the creator of prosperity are the industry and resourcefulness of the people when inspired by vision and sustained by faith.

Safest Risk in World.

"The summons tonight is a call to the faith of a people. Not to faith in some rosy panacea or pretentious theory, but to their intelligent faith in themselves and in their individual resourcefulness and enterprise, and to the sense of responsibility of every man to his neighbor. The safest risk in the world is a share in the future of the American people.

"The American people have at this moment one of the greatest opportunities in their history to show an assured confidence and an active faith in their own destiny which is the destiny of the United States—and by that faith we shall win this battle."

Blames Slump on Overspeculation.

Reviewing the causes of the depression which he attributed to "overspeculation" at home and repercussions of the world war abroad and enumerating recent measures to relief of banking, industry and agriculture, the President said that the time has come for the people to do their part by enlisting in a war on hoarding, which is restricting credit facilities, increasing unemployment, and depreciating "prices to our farmers."

"I believe," he went on, "that the individual American has not realized the harm he has done when he hoards even a single dollar away from circulation. He has not realized that his dollar compels the bank to withdraw many times that amount of credit from the use of borrowers. These borrowers are the local merchants, the local manufacturers, the local farmers; and their borrowings are the money they use to buy goods, to pay wages and the cost of keeping their business going.

"One hoarded dollar deprives some wage earner of at least some part of his pay. Multiply this simple example by nearly a billion and a half of dollars of idle money now hidden in the country, and you may get somewhere near a true picture of the enemy of our national securitiy that we vaguely call 'hoarding.' It strangles our daily life, increases unemployment, and sorely afflicts our farmers. No one will deny that if the vast sums of money hoarded in the country today could be brought into active circulation there would be a great lift to the whole of our economic progress."

Dawes O. K.'s President's Appeal.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and himself a banker, seconds the President's appeal for the return to circulation of hoardings which he estimated at one billion dollars. But he hoped no one would withdraw bank deposits to buy baby bonds.

"The primary purpose of this campaign," he said, "is not to sell government bonds of small denominations to raise money for the government, but to get hoarded money into circulation in order to revive business and employment and bring back normal conditions of living.

Buy Government Bonds.

"Where the bonds can be sold for currency which has been hoarded the sale puts this money into circulation and at work again. But where money is already in the banks and is therefore circulating and at work, when you pay for the bonds by checks on a bank and not in currency, the money in circulation is not increased and the real purpose of this campaign is not subserved.

"If, therefore, you buy government bonds to carry out the purposes of this national effort, pay for them in currency. Remember that the man or woman who is in a position to put back a sum of hoarded money in a sound bank, or buy a government bond with it, is directly contributing to a return of prosperous conditions. You are all suffering from this business depression and all will benefit if it can be checked."

OPEN DRIVE HERE TODAY

The nationwide drive to bring hoarded money out of hiding and put it to work opens this morning. In Cook county some 82,500 persons, headed by Walter S. Ross, district director of the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization, will start their work which will consist of making personal calls, giving short talks in various places and distributing leaflets and posters.

One effort of the workers will be the promotion of the sale of United States treasury certificates in denominations of $50 and up among persons who have money hoarded, whether in caches in homes or safety deposit vaults. Actual sale of the certificates will be made at the banks. The certificates will mature in a year but will be redeemable at par on sixty days' notice. They will bear 2 per cent interest.

Heads of the drive plan to distribute 5,000,000 slips in gas and light bills, milk bills, merchandise parcels, etc. These slips carry the following message:

"Don't let idle money keep men out of work. One trouble with our country is that millions of dollars have joined the ranks of the unemployed. Idle money is crippling business, forcing men out of work, slowing down industry. It is hurting you and hurting your neighbor. It is your problem, rich and poor alike."

Along with the anti-hoarding drive there also will open this morning a campaign for the "reëmployment of men and money" patterned after the Rochester plan. Groups canvassing each ward will endeavor to find jobs for the unemployed. This effort is connected with the American Legion's drive to provide jobs for those who need them.

More than 1,000 chiropodists from the central states attended a conference of the Illinois Association of Chiropodists and Foot Specialists in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. Dr. Harry Klink of Chicago, president of the association, said it was the largest gathering of the kind on record. The latest methods of modern chiropody and bloodless surgery were demonstrated at the meeting. A free clinic was held and 200 unemployed persons were treated. The chiropodists of Chicago, who are members of the association, were urged by Dr. Klink to devote several hours each week to clinical work for the unemployed.

Lawyer to Open Fight on Illinois Income Tax Today

Attorney Walter Bachrach said yesterday that he would appear today before Judge Fred G. Wolf in the Sangamon county Circuit court at Springfield and ask leave to file a bill for an injunction against enforcement of the new state income tax law. At the same time Judge Wolf will hear the petition of Michael Cullinan of Harvey for leave to intervene in the case as an interested property owner. Assistant Attorneys General Montgomery S. Winning and David S. Kadyk are expected to file a demurrer to Attorney Bachrach's bill and a date may be set for argument on the case in about a week or ten days.

SENATE ECONOMY TALK SINCERE OR JUST HOT AIR?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—The sincerity of the somewhat sudden congressional esteem for cutting down government expenses is to be put to the test tomorrow in the senate when the 178 million dollar appropriation bill for the department of agriculture passes through the final amending stages on its way to passage.

It is going to be seen whether or not the gentlemen who have been proclaiming their zeal for "cutting appropropriations to the bone" will stand up in the face of 32 amendments proposed by Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], which if adopted will lighten the agriculture measure by $11,440,590.

Senate Blocks Economy.

To date the senate's function has been to put back in the bill a good share of the money that the house of representatives knocked out. The senate has, in fact, not only undone much of the work of the house but it has even undone some of the economies recommended by the bureau of the budget.

The house cut $1,204,591 from the $67,743,405 estimated by the budget bureau for regular department activities. The senate appropriations committee has put $1,783,832 back in the bill. Amendments by individual senators so far adopted have added another $81,921.

So that instead of being cut below the budget estimates, the appropriations for the regular activities of the department of agriculture now total $68,404,667, or $661,262 more than the budget estimates.

Many Increases Made.

With the million dollar appropriation for federal participation in the Chicago World's Fair, which was placed in the agricultural bill, the measure now carries appropriations larger by $2,865,753 than when it left the house.

And the house had cut it only $10,799,591 below the budget estimates, nearly the whole of this decrease coming from a cut of $9,000,000 in the road fund appropriation — an item which may have to be appropriated anyway in a deficiency bill next December.

In addition to making actual increases, the senate has so far also struck out three economy clauses inserted in the house: prohibiting salary increases within grade for federal employés during the depression, prohibiting the filling of vacancies except on specific authority of the President, and limiting the cost of all official passenger cars except that of the secretary to $750 apiece.

Senators Who Ask U. S. Funds.

Amendments increasing appropriations offered by individual senators and adopted by the senate to date are as follows:

By Senator Norbeck [radical Rep., S. D.], to maintain the dairy herd at the Ardmore, S. D., experiment station	$ 7,065
By Senator Connally [Dem., Tex.], for the experimental farm at San Antonio	10,220
By Senator Blaine [radical Rep., Wis.], for the forest products laboratory	2,200
By Senator Stephens [Dem., Miss.], additional for investigation of "insects affecting man and animals"	5,000
By Senator Walsh [Dem., Mont.], additional for farm management and practice	25,000
By Senator Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], for a leased wire to Boise for the market news service	27,136
By Senator Costigan [Dem., Colo.], for experiment station at Colorado Springs	5,300
Total	$81,921

Test Comes Today.

The senate, having thus proved itself expert exclusively at addition, it will be seen tomorrow when the McKellar amendments are taken up whether the senators' arithmetic also includes subtraction.

The McKellar amendments are in large part directed at doing away entirely with some of the scores of bureaus which have been created to study and eradicate or control various pests and diseases.

It is the senator's theory that many of these bureaus have been running—and growing—for a number of years: that the federal government has done its part, and that is now time for the department to confine itself to sending out information, letting the farmers do the rest for themselves.

As Senator McKellar remarked in introducing his amendments:

"There is really but one reason for keeping these appropriations and that is because a bureau has been established."

The corn borer, he explained, can admittedly never be eradicated. It has continued to spread "though not half as rapidly as the bureau created in Washington."

But Who Has Seen One?

Seven millions, he asserted, has been spent to eradicate the Mediterranean fruit fly, "yet no man in the United States has ever seen one alive."

Two bureaus, the senator found, dealt with Japanese beetles, the appropriation having increased from $20,000 in 1918 when a Japanese beetle bureau was first created, to more than $400,000 carried in the present bill. Pink boll worm control is also carried on by two bureaus.

Would Abolish These Bureaus.

The amendments proposed by Senator McKellar would, if adopted, abolish the following bureaus and relieve the tax payers of the following sums:

Cattle tick eradication	$ 724,400
Hog cholera eradication	466,380
Barberry eradication	196,400

FRATERNITY COUNCIL FORMED AT ILLINOIS; PLAN GROUP BUYING

Urbana, Ill., March 6.—Special.]—What is expected to cause considerable furor on the University of Illinois campus is the forming of an interprofessional fraternity council today. The council is an innovation in campus organizations, its prime purpose being to put all professional social fraternities on a commercial basis, to coöperate in rushing, coöperating buying and social affairs.

At a meeting of representatives of seven organizations, Alpha Chi Sigma, chemistry; Sigma Phi Delta, engineering; Sigma Delta Kappa, law; Delta Theta Phi, law; Alpha Rho Phi, architectural; Farm House, agricultural, and Alpha Gamma Rho, agricultural, the organization was formed. The following officers were named:

President, Robert F. Elrick, Elgin, Ill.; vice president, E. W. Brashaw, Woodbine, Ill.; secretary-treasurer, H. S. Kruse, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; faculty adviser, Charles R. Frederick, assistant dean of men. The officers will be installed next Friday night.

BUSINESS LAUDS GLENN'S FIGHT ON BUREAUCRACY

"We're Backing You," Reads Federation Letter

United States Senator Otis F. Glenn's activities in opposition to government bureaucracies and his campaign generally for economy in government affairs were commended by the Federation of American Business Men in a letter made public yesterday. Signed by Charles A. Wilson, the chairman of the organization committee of the federation, it was as follows:

OTIS F. GLENN.

"We appreciate the difficulties of your position and realize it is a big job to abolish these useless bureaus. But it must be done, and now is the time to make a good start. We know you cannot do it alone, and hope you can secure the necessary assistance from your fellow senators of both parties. You may tell them that their constituents are demanding action and will not be satisfied unless Herculean efforts are put forth.

Angry Over Delay.

"The news out of Washington fills them with bitter anger at the procrastination and delay. The mere thought of tax increases inflames them to an unprecedented degree.

"Never in your lifetime has the public feeling been so intense. To attempt to balance an over-swollen budget by tax increases is intolerable. The reductions suggested in press dispatches are mere trifles and arouse resentment.

"As for the farm board, it never has been popular with the farmer and is making new enemies every day. God help the candidate who supports it. He will need divine assistance.

Most Important Problem.

"Our organization desires to be helpful in the matter. Our members are clamoring for evidence of earnest efforts in this direction. They believe this is the most important matter before congress and that other things should be relegated to secondary positions.

"We have confidence in your ability to take a leading part in this action and you may rely on the support of this organization."

NEW PAN-BALTIC MOVE VIEWED BY RUSSIA AS PERIL

MOSCOW, March 6.—(AP)—The Riga correspondent of the government organ Izvestia today reported a Pan-Baltic movement which he interpreted as a resumption of an effort to create a Baltic bloc dominated by Poland and directed against the Soviet union.

In announcing that Russia was reinforcing her far eastern borders last week, the same newspaper quoted alleged Japanese documents to the effect that Japan was being urged by unnamed persons, presumably minor Japanese officials, to start anti-Russian propaganda among the Soviets' western neighbors.

The Riga correspondent said that the Pan-Baltic movement is a "political and economic union" of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania under the protection of the league of nations. The chief sponsor of the movement was reported as a former Latvian minister at Moscow who was recalled on the request of the Kremlin for the alleged smuggling of gold works of art through diplomatic channels.

GOVERNOR FIGHT IN BOTH PARTIES GOES DOWNSTATE

Seven Candidates Take to the Stump.

Announcements yesterday from most of the governorship candidates showed that the campaigning this week will be mainly in the downstate regions—the 101 counties outside of Cook county. Both Republican and Democratic candidates will reach nearly every section of the state.

On the Democratic side, Probate Judge Henry Horner will start his tour today, with the first stop at Kankakee. The other Democratic candidates, Michael L. Igoe and Bruce Campbell, went to the southern part of the state last week and are coming north, speaking and meeting Democratic voters on the way.

In the Republican Race.

Omer N. Custer, the Emmerson Republican candidate, starts today at Watseka and will spend two weeks swinging around the state before reaching Chicago. Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, Republican, will pass the week campaigning downstate except for an appearance in Chicago on Thursday for a radio address.

Former Attorney General Edward J. Brundage and William H. Malone, former chairman of the tax commission, other leading Republican candidates, have varied programs. Brundage entered the contest late and will be in Chicago perfecting an organization before starting on the downstate campaign. Malone will be downstate but will fly to Chicago on Thursday from East St. Louis for a radio talk. Former Gov. Len Small will continue interviewing delegations at his home in Kankakee.

Candidates Travel in Parties.

Traveling with Custer will be Harry Wright, candidate for auditor; C. Wayland Brooks, candidate for treasurer, and Judge Robert E. Gentzel, candidate for attorney general.

The Horner party will include Congressman William H. Dieterich, candidate for United States senator; Thomas F. Donovan, candidate for lieutenant governor; State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, candidate for state auditor, and Judge Otto Kerner, candidate for attorney general. Accompanying Igoe are Scott W. Lucas of Havana and Representative Truman A. Snell of Carlinville, candidates respectively for United States senator and Illinois attorney general.

Charles W. Hadley, former chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, Republican candidate for attorney general, is dividing his time between Chicago and downstate. Igoe plans to move into western and central districts of the state, but his exact route was not available.

Itineraries of Candidates.

The itineraries of the other governorship candidates for this week follow:

Monday: Custer—Watseka, Danville; Horner—Kankakee, Watseka, Danville; Campbell—Madison county.

Wednesday: Campbell—Sullivan, Mattoon, Charleston, Tuscola, Decatur; Custer—Shelbyville, Mattoon; Horner—Mount Carmel, Carmi, Harrisburg; Malone—Harrisburg, East St. Louis.

Thursday: Custer—Robinson, Centralia; Horner—Marion, Murphysboro, West Frankfort, Benton; Campbell—Monticello, Champaign, Urbana.

Friday: Malone—Elgin; Horner—Mount Vernon, Salem, Effingham; Campbell—Marshall, Paris, Danville; Custer—Benton, Harrisburg.

Saturday: Horner—Mattoon, Shelbyville, Taylorville, Decatur; Custer—Marion, Carbondale; Malone—Joliet; Campbell—Chicago.

Campbell Makes Statement.

Mr. Campbell, whose home is in Belleville, was in Chicago yesterday and issued a statement. He said:

"I find that Mayor Cermak has labeled his ticket 'the regular Democratic ticket' and that through his lieutenants and his publicity has labeled me as an insurgent and a rebel and has thereby intimated that I am irregular in my democracy. I do not belong to his organization and I am not subject to his political domination and control, and have never been. Consequently, I do not recognize any duty on my part to follow his determination and dictation in political affairs.

"I have no quarrel with the mayor because he is against me but I do insist that thirty-two years of regular and faithful service to my party in every campaign during that period and without being an office holder or candidate since 1910 ought to defend me from charges of insurgency and party rebellion."

Albert Indorses Malone.

Arthur F. Albert, former alderman of the 43d ward, and last year a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor, announced his indorsement of Malone's candidacy for governor. He said he does so because in his ten years of public office he has always fought the squandering of tax money by public officials and from the records of the candidates Malone is the only one who qualifies from the standpoint of honesty, efficiency and economy.

Paul E. Arnold, Republican candidate for secretary of state, announced that he would open headquarters today in the Hotel Sherman and would hold a public reception tomorrow afternoon.

BUSINESS GROUP AND 60 UNIONS BACK SWANSON

Seek His Renomination on Basis of Record.

Support of the candidacy of State's Attorney Swanson to succeed himself in the Republican primary was announced yesterday by a group of business men who have formed a nonpartisan organization, and by sixty labor unions representing more than 150,000 members.

The Business Men's Non-Partisan league, formed for the purpose of campaigning for State's Attorney Swanson, will open headquarters today at 134 North La Salle street. Its officers are Jules F. Cornelius, president; Col. Noble Brandon Judah, vice president; C. Lynn Coy, secretary, and Herman Nelson, treasurer.

Back Swanson on His Record.

"It is our intention to steer clear of factional politics and to promote the candidacy of Mr. Swanson on his record," said Mr. Cornelius, who two years ago led a fight on the boards of assessors and review. "The state's attorney recently made public facts relating to his three year tenure of office and his accomplishments are so many, and his improvement in the office over that of his predecessors so marked, that we feel it our duty, as independent business and professional men from all parts of the county, to give him our loyal and active aid."

An executive committee was announced with the following as members: Charles M. Moderwell, Leroy T. Stewart, Paul Schulze, Harry A. Dormeyer, Joseph Goldblatt, Raymond S. Blunt, August Eich, John D. Carmody, William Nelson Pelouze, Dr. Martin G. Luken, Raymond Heer, Stanley Herbison, J. Dewey Lutes, Benjamin D. Kaplan, Frank Sampson, George S. Ballard, Carlisle Durfee, Jules G. Eichenbaum, William J. Guyer, William H. Dangel, Peter G. Jacobson, Arthur Kruggel, Milton Meyers, Rollo Timponi and Richard M. Johnson.

Union Men Back Prosecutor.

A letter to all union men in Chicago, asks their votes for Mr. Swanson for state's attorney. The letter was signed by Thomas J. Murray, chairman of the Electrical Workers union, local 134; and Patrick F. Sullivan and James J. Conroy, president and secretary of the Chicago Building Trades Council.

"Swanson's accomplishments in three years demonstrate his fitness to be the chief law enforcement officer," the letter says. "He has proved to us that no influence can be brought to bear on him to prevent labor's fight to organize. The John A. Swanson Union Labor league is determined to put forth every effort to secure the support of organized labor in Cook county for Mr. Swanson's reëlection as state's attorney.

Raps "Nefarious Influences."

"Many influences are now at work with the view of the ultimate destruction of trade unionism in Chicago. The creation of dual organizations, the introduction of communism and bolshevism into our meetings, and the attempts of upscrupulous persons to obtain control of our unions by racketeers are some of the methods by which they hope to accomplish their nefarious purposes.

"Realizing that this attempt must be frustrated at any cost and that the coming election in our nation, state, and city has an important bearing on the policy to be adopted by our employers in the future, more than sixty unions have endorsed the candidacy of John A. Swanson for state's attorney."

SOUSA FUNERAL TO BE THURSDAY AT WASHINGTON

Family Accompanies Body to Capital.

Reading, Pa., March 6.—[Special.]—The body of John Philip Sousa, lieutenant commander in the naval reserves and nationally famous bandmaster, who died suddenly at his hotel here this morning after a banquet in his honor last night, was sent to Washington tonight.

His parents and other relatives are buried in Washington and Sousa's own home was in that city for many years. Funeral arrangements are to be completed tonight, it is stated. Burial will be in the Congressional cemetery Thursday morning with military and civilian honors.

Announcement Delayed.

Miss Lillian Finegan, Sousa's secretary, delayed announcement of the bandmaster's death, hoping that news of his sudden end might thus be held from Sousa's aged wife at Sanos Point, Port Washington, Long Island, until morning, but on the arrival of Dr. W. H. Ammarell, Birdsboro county coroner, about half an hour after the bandmaster's death, newspapermen who had been told Sousa was seriously stricken were admitted to the bandmaster's suite and reports of his death were confirmed.

Mrs. Sousa, her son-in-law, Hamilton Abert, and her daughter, Miss Priscilla Sousa, arrived here early today, the widow near collapse from shock and grief. With them came Harry Askin of New York, business manager of Sousa's band.

National Guard Escort.

With the body on its way to Washington were the son-in-law, Abert, and an escort of National Guard officers from this city.

Sousa's last day ushered in the first real snow storm of the winter here. It had turned to slush and rain, however, by the time the cortege formed at the Auman funeral chapel to proceed to the railroad station. The flag draped casket was viewed by thousands of people attracted by the procession and the solemn music of the Ringgold band.

Sousa came here last night to attend the 80th anniversary banquet of members and patrons of the Ringgold, a band formed before the civil war, and to lead the band at its anniversary concert this afternoon in Park theater. The concert was cancelled.

civil war veteran who was wounded in action, was a member of the Marine band which Sousa later led.

"When Sousa was 10 years old he wrote a set of waltzes. The bandmaster played them unsympathetically and young Sousa cried. His father comforted him after the performance. 'Never mind, son,' the father said, 'you'll have your own band some day and play the pieces the way you want.'"

Prediction Comes True.

Not long afterward the elder Sousa's prediction was fulfilled. Sousa never forgot his boyhood setback, and as a result was always eager to encourage American composers and especially, in his own words: "To play their compositions the way they wanted them played."

During the world war he headed the band at the Great Lakes Naval Training station with the rank of lieutenant commander.

FIRST FAME WON HERE

John Philip Sousa, the great march king who died suddenly in his hotel room at Reading, Pa., early yesterday morning, received what many admirers believed to be his real start on the road to world fame at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

The story of that beginning was revealed last night by Victor J. Grabel of Hinsdale, widely known bandmaster, for 18 years a friend of Sousa. Mr. Grabel is director of the Chicago Concert band, secretary of the American Bandmasters' association, and conductor of the annual Chicagoland Music Festival sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Sousa's Sister a Chicagoan.

Both he and James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, also a friend of Sousa, agreed that Sousa "loved Chicago." His affection was based not only on early associations and a regard for this city as a music center, but also on ties of blood. Sousa's sister, Mrs. James Bower, has been a resident here for many years. She now lives at the Hertha hotel, 1705 Jonquil terrace. Maj. Lenox R. Lohr of Evanston, general manager of the 1933 Century of Progress, is a cousin.

Mr. Grabel, telling of Sousa's start to fame at the Chicago fair of 1893, said that Sousa quit leadership of the Marine band in 1892 and organized his own group, but that his inaugural tour failed financially.

At that time Patrick Gilmore and his band were engaged as the official band at the Chicago fair. But Gilmore died suddenly. Theodore Thomas, founder of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, summoned Sousa. Sousa's engagement was only to play at building dedications preceding the opening of the fair.

Fame Assured at Fair.

His work proved so successful, however, that Thomas commissioned him and his band as the official fair band. From then on, Mr. Grabel said, Sousa's fame was assured, and all his subsequent tours, world and national, were successes.

"Sousa told me that as a result of the fair he gained much popularity," said Mr. Grabel. "He also told me of his boyhood days. His father, a

IBN SAUD'S DESERT RULE THREATENED BY BEDOUIN REBELLION

AMMAN, Syria, March 6.—(AP)—A laconic report reaching here from the northern areas of Tebuk and Theima in Hejaz, contains a threat of revolt in the desert against Ibn Saud, "the Puritan Ruler of Arabia." The message, from an unnamed source, simply said,

"The tribes are alarmingly restless."

This was interpreted here as meaning that some sections of the Bedouins, whose allegiance to Ibn Saud has been at best only nominal, were preparing to throw off his yoke altogether. British officials have recently noticed signs that have led them to wonder if the "peace of Ibn Saud" could be maintained much longer.

"Lawrence of Arabia" declared some years ago that the Wahabi kingdom was "founded on sand," but the energy and skill with which Ibn Saud has governed his realm from his capital of Riyadh seemed to give the lie to any forecasts of its failure. It has been known for some time past, however, that the world economic difficulties have affected even the wild nomads of the desert and that some outlying tribes were increasingly prone to turn to their old sport of camel raiding and staging bloody feuds.

BUY TEN ACRES FOR A CROP OF GOLD OR GRIEF

Succulent Harvest May Require Succor.

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Genoa, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—All the lures of former gold rushes with a few extra attractions added have been made the inducements by which a group of enterprising men in this part of De Kalb country are dividing up farms for which no ready sale could be found into packets of ten acres each.

So far 48 hopeful persons, possessed of a sufficient down payment, have signed up to pay $200 to $350 an acre, inspired by the promises of what a money making canning factory can be built out of either the old dance hall or the abandoned piano factory in Genoa.

State Quiz Asked.

Instead of gold, these new buyers are expecting to mine tender yellow carrots, succulent spinach, turnip greens or blood red beets. The old town is taking a new lease on life as hundreds of prospectors arrive each week. Some of them are hitch hiking several hundred miles to come in and plank down their cold cash for the privilege of setting up in the truck farming business. The state department of registration has been asked to investigate.

Interested in the sale of 2,000 acres of Illinois land in ten acre parcels are George Fox, receiver for closed banks here; A. H. Smith, farm land salesman, and P. L. Melberg. Melberg hails from Chicago, but formerly operated a canning factory in Mississippi and is responsible for the enticing literature and advertising that has drawn hundreds in from faraway sections of the midwest.

Got a Name for It.

Each grower (some of them building shacks, and one erecting a tent in which to live on his "claim") will be required to carry out the orders of the canning factory as meted out by a Mr. L. A. Graves, former co-worker with Melberg in the sunny south. They have called their newly proposed factory "Sunshine Valley Canning company," a common law trust.

By April 1, these growers will have plowed or hired plowed their patch of turf. Two acres will be sowed to turnip greens and spinach, which is expected in six to seven weeks to yield up to four or five cuttings of four to five tons each. The canners will pay $25 a ton for the expected forty tons on two acres. Half is in cash, the balance to apply on the land purchase price. Growers pay all taxes.

Then by May 1, the beans will be planted on as many acres as the growers choose. A yield of five tons an acre is expected, for which the factory pays $40 a ton. Carrots and beets follow at equally enticing figures.

"You see," explains Melberg, when asked how these prices could be expected in a season when canning companies over the nation are in despondencies over surplus and cut prices, "you see, we already have been promised by our food broker that by methods of growing and canning we intend to follow here we can furnish canned foods that will bring a premium of at least 15 cents a dozen cans over market prices."

Although farmers in this locality have come to look over the new Utopia in truck farming, the contracts so far have been with farmers, ministers and other professionally trained persons in Minnesota, Missouri, Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, and downstate Illinois.

They have been told that simple equipment, a garden tractor, truck trailer, 50 cent harvesting knife and $4 seeder, would suffice. They haven't been told of the heavy fertilizing needed on truck crops, the chance of crop failures, or the flooding of canned food markets that many existing factories are battling.

POLISH ALLIANCE OPENS ITS FETE FOR WASHINGTON

The Polish National Alliance of North America opened its nation-wide celebration of the Washington bicentennial yesterday with patriotic services at the Grand Opera house. The stage was decorated with colors and in the center stood a marble bust of Washington and paintings of Gens. Kosciuszko and Pulaski, Polish heroes who fought in the revolution.

Your tenants will demand this kind of refrigeration

Ultra-modern in appearance and appointment—down to the latest detail of shelves that slide in and out easily and conveniently—General Electric is the refrigerator that tenants most demand.... There is nothing to get out of order in a General Electric. The entire mechanism is hermetically sealed in a lifetime supply of oil—in the modern Monitor Top. A General Electric Oil Conditioner keeps the oil as it should be—always at a running temperature. General Electric never needs oiling. General Electric has no exposed moving parts to collect dust and dirt. There is no danger of injuring the spotlessly clean porcelain "Super-Freezer" when removing ice cubes or frozen desserts. General Electric all-steel, turbine-construction cabinets are built for hard usage. Whether you be landlord or tenant—whether you own your own home or rent—you will find General Electric literally the least expensive electric refrigeration.... Consider the thousands upon thousands of apartments in Chicago hotel and apartment buildings—rentals ranging from $32.50 to $2,000 a month—equipped exclusively with General Electric Refrigerators.

Equip your apartments with General Electric and rent them. Telephone Franklin 5720 today and have a General Electric refrigeration expert call and give you all the facts.

DUBLIN PREPARES FOR 100,000 AT EUCHARIST MEET

Expects 1,000,000 to Attend Final Mass.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, March 6.—The committee in charge of the Eucharistic congress to be held in Dublin in June is now in a position to be more precise as to the program and the probable attendance of contingents from all parts of the world.

Approximately 100,000 visitors from abroad are expected. On the seventh and final day of the congress, when the papal nuncio will celebrate mass in the open in Phœnix park, it is estimated that not less than a million people will be present and take part in the procession back to the city for the closing benediction. Of this million, by far the larger number will be residents of Ireland.

Fifteen cardinals have intimated they will attend the congress, as have more than 200 archbishops and bishops, and there will be several thousand priests, regular and secular.

Special Ship for Philadelphia.

Cardinal Dougherty, in announcing the chartering of the liner Lapland for the exclusive transportation of a large pilgrimage from the diocese of Philadelphia hails the occasion as one by which the pilgrims may refresh their souls by a visit to "the land whose soil has been hallowed by the blood of martyrs."

Father Stanislaus Przybysz of Chicago, well known apostle of the "back to the land" movement, will lead a detachment of 1,000 pilgrims from Chicago.

The primate of Poland, Cardinal Hlond, will be present. Cardinal Hayes of New York will be the guest of Frederick Sterling, American minister here. Cardinal O'Donnell of Boston will be a guest of Lord and Lady Esmonde.

Many Dignitaries.

Other dignitaries will include Cardinal Bourne, Westminster; Cardinal Van Roey, Malines, and Bishop O'Rourke of Danzig, a descendant of the Irish clan of that name located in Counties Leitrim and Sligo.

Archbishop Diaz of Mexico will be the guest of the Jesuit fathers at Milltown park. A Dutch pilgrimage will be headed by the primate of Holland, Dr. Jansen, archbishop of Utrecht, and Dr. Drepen, bishop of Heitogenbosch.

A touch of colorful romance will be added by a contingent of 200 members of the New York fire brigade, who will march in their uniforms in the Eucharistic procession.

Many Coming from East.

The east is sending many delegates and a special oriental section is being arranged under the direction of the Most Rev. Dr. Herbigny of the Pontifical Oriental Institute in Rome. Both the Armenian and the Russian rites will be represented. Seventy pilgrims will represent the Argentine.

Preparations are proceeding locally for the great event under the supervision of the organizing committee. The high altar, at which the papal legate will chant the solemn high mass, is already in process of erection. It will be raised above a great plain, hundreds of acres in extent, and will be visible to a vast assemblage from all sides.

BISHOP BONA LEAVES FOR NEBRASKA TODAY ON A SPECIAL TRAIN

The Most Rev. Stanislaus V. Bona, D. D., newly consecrated Roman Catholic bishop of Grand Island, Neb., will say farewell to Chicago this afternoon and start for his new diocese.

He will leave at 4 o'clock on a special train of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad. About 200 laymen and priests will accompany him. Among the group will be representatives from Grand Island. The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, will accompany Bishop Bona as the personal representative of Cardinal Mundelein.

Bishop Bona was born and educated in Chicago, and his elevation in the church was accepted by his friends as an honor to their city. He will be installed in the Grand Island diocese tomorrow at the cathedral there, the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary church.

SOVIETS ATTACK CATHOLIC MASS; 7 DIE IN FLAMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, March 6.—Reports reaching here tell of renewed activities of the soviets' anti-religious campaign, which in the past always becomes the most intensive just before Easter.

The communist atheist organization, "Bezbozniki," which means Godless, is reported responsible for an attack on the village of Polnegate, in the Zaslazski district, just across the Polish frontier, in which a Polish Catholic priest and seven peasants perished in flames. Sixteen more are reported dying.

The village is inhabited by Catholic peasants, but the soviets ordered the church closed several days ago. The priest, attended services in a large barn. The report says that while mass was being celebrated the barn was suddenly enveloped in flames. The frenzied peasants found every exit was barred from the outside. Only when the walls crashed did a few of the worshipers scramble outside. The others perished in the flames while singing hymns.

FOUR IDENTIFIED AS BANDITS AT POLICE SHOWUP

Four prisoners out of 150 who were paraded in the police showup last night were identified as bandits by victims.

James Van Pope and Max Grant were identified by William J. Sweeney, 921 Cornelia avenue, and Miss Charlotte Higgins, 6432 Magnolia avenue, as the men who held them up in front of her home last Wednesday and robbed them of $40 and $500 in jewelry.

Bernard Young and John Wilson were picked out as the robbers who held up six persons in a rooming house at 2125 Adams street Feb. 27 and escaped with $120 in loot. The complainants were Mr. and Mrs. James Aderholt, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Nichols, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reilley.

Rush Street Blaze Drives 30 Tenants Out Into Cold

Thirty persons were driven from their homes into the near zero cold early yesterday morning by fire which broke out in a store at 1127 Rush street. Damage was estimated at $1,500 by Chief James Doyle of the 2d battalion. Chief Doyle said the fire might have started from defective wiring. The tenants were sheltered by neighbors.

POPE TO REFORM ORGANIZATION OF CATHOLIC CHURCH

Will Abolish Order of Cardinal Bishops.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 6.—An important reform in the Catholic church organization will be effected with the promulgation expected next week of a pontifical "motu proprio" abolishing the order of bishops in the college of cardinals, the supreme council of the church.

Seven members of the sacred college of cardinals have been designated cardinal bishops from the fact that they were titular holders of the bishoprics of Ostia, Frascati, Palestrina, and other small towns about Rome. All of these bishoprics with the exception of Ostia will be incorporated in the diocese of Rome.

The diocese of Ostia, at the mouth of the Tiber, where Paul landed when he came to Rome to be tried, will be maintained, as it is held by the dean of the college of cardinals who has the right to consecrate the newly elected pope.

Reform Concluded Yesterday.

At the consistories, from the earliest days of the church, the cardinals have been promoted to these coveted titular "suburban sees" in the order of their seniority. The late Pope Pius X found difficulties in making the proposed reform and it has become possible only since the Lateran treaty with Italy was signed. The reform was finally concluded at a long audience yesterday which the pope granted to Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani, secretary of propaganda.

Promulgation of the reform which the pope has been considering for some time will pave the way, it is believed, for an early holding of a consistory for the creation of several new cardinals, fifteen of the seventy places in the sacred college being vacant.

In ecclesiastic circles in Rome great interest is taken in the next consistory as it raises the question of whether the pope will decide to augment the present slight majority of foreign over Italian cardinals, whether he will name many new Italian cardinals, or whether he will keep the numbers about balanced.

Nuncios May Be Honored.

Augmentation of foreign cardinals in the curia, it is said, would indicate the pope's desire to manifest clearly to the Catholic world the universality of the Catholic church.

There has been talk in church circles that several nuncios will receive the purple at the next consistory and that it is the pontiff's wish to end the monopoly of Italian representation in curia of cardinals resident in Rome by creating American, British and German members of the sacred college who would reside in Rome.

It is pointed out that another nationality now appears in the college since Cardinal Segura of Spain relinquished his post as primate of Spain and established his residence in Rome.

COAL OPERATORS AND MINERS TO OPEN PAY PARLEYS TOMORROW

Meetings of a committee of the Illinois Coal Operators' Labor association and representatives of the Illinois district of the United Mine Workers of America to iron out wage scale disputes will start tomorrow in the Hotel Majestic. A new wage contract will be discussed at the meetings, Joseph D. Zook, president of the operators' association, said yesterday. Mr. Zook said that the operators, in order to save the mining industry in the state, will ask a wage scale reduction. The prevailing scale is $6.10 a day.

The miners are expected to ask for a higher scale and a shorter working day and week, it was learned. More than 400 delegates at a meeting in Springfield last week voted to make the basic pay $7 a day.

The present contract between the operators and the miners will expire at the end of March and unless a new agreement is reached work in Illinois mines may be stopped, it was reported. Mr. Zook said that the meetings probably will continue three or four days. The operators and the miners will be represented by committees of 24 members each.

NEW ENTHUSIASM TO MARK RELIEF WARRANT DRIVE

Encouraged by the spurt shown Saturday in the sale of state tax warrants, the army of solicitors under Philip R. Clarke is prepared to return to its task this morning with new enthusiasm. Hope was expressed yesterday by Mr. Clarke that a number of other Chicago institutions would follow the example of the Illinois Bell Telephone company and the International Harvester company, and increase their original subscriptions materially. Warrants disposed of to date total $11,121,300, while the entire issue is for $18,750,000.

PHILIP R. CLARKE.

"The action of the telephone company, matched by that of the harvester company, has been a big stimulus to the drive," Mr. Clarke said. "I feel confident that other 'plus' subscriptions will be coming in right away. Really, it is good business to buy these notes—and the fine part about it is that charity will be served at the same time.

"The banks are reporting numerous subscriptions by individuals of moderate means, and there has been a better response from the smaller business concerns. Our workers continue to display a fine enthusiasm and they hope to go over their fields with a fine comb early this week.

"We hope to know by Wednesday what the ultimate result of the drive will be. The general public can lend a hand by subscribing as promptly as possible."

Purchase of the state tax warrants, which come in denominations of $100 and up, may be made at the headquarters of the emergency relief, at 10 South La Salle street, or at any bank. The notes pay 6 per cent interest, and are redeemable late this year or early next year, being backed by income from the state gas tax.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Kidney Acidity

Often Causes Getting Up Nights, Backache, Nervousness, Leg Pains and Loss of Energy

Thousands of men and women past 40, and many far younger, often feel run-down and years older than they are by neglecting to use the right medicines for such conditions as Getting Up Nights, Backache, Leg Pains, Nervousness, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sore Joints, Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Burning, Smarting and Bladder Weakness, caused by functional Kidney inactivity and excess Acidity.

To combat these conditions you really need two different kinds of medicine, because you need two results in fighting these troubles. First, you need a medicine to act as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, to help them in their function of filtering and purifying the blood, thus reducing acidity. Second, you need another medicine to soothe and heal irritation and give nature a chance.

These two special kinds of medicine, known as Cystex, now may be had from your druggist under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. They are in tasteless tablet form, easy to take, and pleasant to young or old, yet work so fast they start circulating thru the system in 11 minutes. Sufferers say they begin to feel marked improvement in 24 hours.

Your own druggist—the man you know is reliable—can tell you that these are established facts, and that Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) is a splendid medicine, containing purest ingredients, which have proved a blessing to many of his customers.

This much is certain: If Cystex makes you feel years younger and stronger by combating these conditions, the small cost of 75c is a trifle, but if not completely satisfied, merely return the empty package and get your money back. Why suffer from delay and neglect? The Guarantee protects you. Get Cystex from your druggist today.

144,000 MORE TAX BILLS TO BE RECEIVED TODAY

$82,000,000 Due from 3 of City Townships.

More than 144,000 Chicagoans living in Hyde Park, South Chicago and North Town, are to receive their 1930 tax bills in the mail today. It will require $82,000,000 to cover these bills.

Residents of the remaining five towns in the city limits, Lake, Lake View, Rogers Park, Jefferson and West, are to receive their notices of tax indebtedness as soon as County Treasurer McDonough's forces can prepare them.

Already $12,717,641 of the 1930 levy has been collected in the downtown section. It was disclosed yesterday that suburban and country townships have collected $749,500, although many towns have not yet mailed out their bills.

New Trier Gets $287,000.

New Trier township, which includes Glencoe, Winnetka, Kenilworth and Wilmette, has received $287,000 and Oak Park $250,000.

W. B. Ross and Jacob Dittus, collectors respectively for Oak Park and Proviso townships, reported that many taxpayers were remitting the old large size currency, indicating that some money at least is coming out of hoarding.

Evanston, Cicero, Hanover, Wheeling, Worth, Bremen, and Palos townships have not yet sent out their bills.

To hasten collections Oak Park and Riverside have appointed committees whose members are to make door to door canvasses of residents, urging them to pay their share of governmental expense promptly.

Other Suburban Collections.

Aside from Oak Park and New Trier, the political subdivisions reporting collections, with the amounts, follow:

Berwyn, $20,000; Lyons, $25,000; Proviso, $60,000; River Forest, $40,000; Riverside, $12,000; Leyden, $15,000; Palatine, $2,500; Niles, $31,000; Lemont, $6,000, and Stickney, $1,000. Of the entire amount collected in the county outside Chicago, all but $46,000 was from realty taxes.

BRUENING LIKENS WASHINGTON TO VON HINDENBURG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 6.—In a George Washington bicentennial celebration in the reichstag today Chancellor Heinrich Bruening urged his countrymen to find inspiration in the life of Washington as a man who never wavered in days of crisis.

He drew the attention of Germans to the similarity between Washington as father of his country and President Von Hindenburg, who now, he said, is seeking to save the republic.

Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, answering in the name of America, accepted Bruening's offer of friendship.

10 ROBBERS HELD AS RAIDERS WHO SMASH WINDOWS

Ten robbers, surrounded and captured Saturday by police as they tried to hold up the gambling house of Robert McConnell at 742 Barry avenue, will be confronted by witnesses of nearly a dozen window smashing burglaries of fur and clothing shops in the loop.

The robberies, which have been going on for months, have all been done the same way, the police said yesterday. Two cars draw up to the curb and two men stand guard with machine guns while their mates smash show windows and carry off the contents. The gang has exchanged shots with police on several occasions.

Fred Lorimer, one of the bandits, who was wounded in the abdomen when captured, told police yesterday that he was shot by his own gun, when he used it as a hammer on a lock of the gambling house door. Lorimer and four of his companions, Joseph Egan, Frank Dizan, Ralph La Porte, and Edward Kerbeck, are ex-convicts.

The body of a burglar shot and killed Saturday night when police trapped him and a companion in the home of Peter Glovis, 6823 South Claremont avenue, was identified yesterday as that of Matthew Dorsog, 23 years old, 4601 South Mozart street. His companion, who escaped, is being sought.

URGES OFFICIALS TO ASK FOR HELP FROM BUSINESS

One Way to Return Prosperity, Says D. F. Kelly.

When business men are taken into the confidence of public officials rather than politicians who know nothing of business, prosperity will have a chance to return. D. F. Kelly, merchant and leader in the city's financial fight, made this plea for more businesslike methods in government, last night at Sinai temple, 4622 South Park way. He spoke under the auspices of the Sinai Temple sisterhood.

Mr. Kelly pointed out that Mayor Cermak, striving sincerely to correct present financial conditions, had adopted this attitude. He asserted, too, that the mayor must be supported in his policies.

Honest Men Needed.

"It's time we no longer temporize with mediocrity or disloyalty in office," he said, "but insist on putting only honest men in places of public trust. We are not going to allow politicians, who don't know anything about business, run this city. One thing that can bring back better conditions is when business men are taken into the confidence of public officials rather than politicians."

Mr. Kelly spoke at length on the school board. He pointed out that in the boom year of 1929, when taxes were the largest in history, the school board received $55,000,000 from taxes and another $5,000,000 from state aid and other sources. That, Mr. Kelly repeated, was a boom year. Now, in a year of depression, he shouted, the school board passed a $90,000,000 budget.

Against Salary Cuts.

One way the board passed the budget, he added, was by telling the teachers that the Kelly committee desired salary cuts. The committee never favored such cuts, he asserted.

United States Senator Robert M. La Follette also spoke. He advocated a federal bond issue of $5,500,000,000 to be used in public works.

More than 500 attended the meeting. The speakers were introduced by Dr. Louis L. Mann. Mrs. Irving L. Stern presided.

Renaldo, Actor, in Court Today on U. S. Charge

Hollywood, Cal., March 6.—[Special.]—Duncan Renaldo, motion picture actor, will appear before United States District Judge George Cosgrove tomorrow to answer to a charge of fraudulent representation of his nationality, for which he was indicted by a federal grand jury. The government contends Renaldo's true name is Vasile Dimitri Cuchieanas and that he is a native of Rumania, although in applying for a passport in 1929 he represented that he was born in Camden, N. J.

CHALLENGE IS SENT TO EMMERSON ON STATE RUM CONTROL

Gov. Emmerson was asked in a letter yesterday to urge Illinois congressmen to vote for the Beck-Linthicum bill which would give the states control over prohibition. Those making the request were Ralph M. Shaw, representing the Illinois division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment; Ginevra K. Mitchell, co-chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, and J. Russell Forgan, divisional commander of the Crusaders.

They based their request on a statement made by Gov. Emmerson, as an explanation of his veto of the O'Grady bill repealing the state prohibition act, that national action should precede state action and that the members of congress were bound by the results of the referendum of 1930 on the prohibition question.

"The undersigned organizations now respectfully beg to inquire whether, in view of the fact that your veto message was predicated on the above reasons, as governor you will urge the representatives from Illinois to vote for its passage in accordance with the mandate of the people [as interpreted by you] in the referendum of 1930," the letter concluded.

VENIZELOS WILL RESIGN UNLESS LOAN IS GRANTED

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, March 6.—President Eleutherios Venizelos has decided to resign, it is learned, on account of the financial situation, unless Great Britain and France accord Greece a loan of 2,500,000 pounds [about $8,750,000] through the finance committee on the league of nations.

Venizelos told the chamber yesterday that without help Greece could not continue either to pay foreign obligations or adhere to the gold standard, the country, requiring both a foreign loan moratorium and easier terms for commercial debts due abroad. If Venizelos resigns he likely will be replaced by a republican cabinet formed by Alexander Papanastassiu and Admiral Kondylis, with the assistance of Venizelists.

The new government would reintroduce proportional representation, which would be to their profit in elections which would be held at once. The government would then proclaim a five year moratorium for all amortization payments on foreign loans and introduce a rigid program of economy at home.

$2,429,750 TAX WARRANTS TAKEN FOR SCHOOL PAY

Accepted by Only 21 Pct. of the Teachers.

Since last Wednesday, when the school board began issuing them, creditors have accepted a total of $2,429,750 in 1931 tax anticipation warrants of small denomination, it was stated yesterday by Arthur C. Schweitzer, assistant business manager of the board. Of the total, contractors took $1,272,400 in warrants; teachers, $805,900; playground instructors, $6,500, and civil service employés, $344,950. Approximately $10,000,000 worth of the present issue is still available.

The warrants accepted by board employés were in lieu of December salaries. Approximately 3,000, or 75 per cent of the civil service employés accepted the warrants. Only 21 per cent of the teachers took the warrants, although hundreds of them stood in line for as much as three hours.

Of those who took warrants, many said they had arranged to use them for rent. It was announced Saturday that the George M. Forman Realty Trust would accept the warrants at face value for rent in their 26 apartment and hotel buildings.

DEMANDS STORE BE MOVED BACK TO BUILDING LINE

An order directing the board of local improvements to force the removal of the Wieboldt department store building in North Ashland avenue near Lincoln and Belmont avenues back to the new building line fixed when Ashland was widened will be introduced at the next council meeting, Ald. William H. Feigenbutz [45th] announced yesterday.

The store frontage of 234 feet projects 17 feet over the new building line, the alderman said. On both sides of the store, where the buildings have been shoved back, the street pavement is 70 feet wide, but in front of the store it is only 48 feet wide, forming a bottle neck, according to the alderman.

The Wieboldt store was given an original award of $225,915 for the property to be taken by the city in widening the street. Later this award was increased to $429,802, of which $58,774 was paid by the city to apply on the assessment against the store for the widening. City officials refuse to pay more until the building is moved.

The Wieboldt company, according to city officials, wants the city to confirm an agreement made by a previous administration under which the store would be permitted to use space under the street.

Others in the machine were Robert Cameron and Robert Faber of Champaign, Rachel Fitch and Evelyn Hurberger of Peoria. The six were guests at a Knox fraternity formal dance.

"Smoke's my business...O. G.'s my smoke!"

When the cough and the choke
Of the fire and the smoke
Have been left in the distance behind,
You can bet that I'm sold
On a shift to OLD GOLD
For the smoke that I'm eager to find.

It's the one cigarette
That I'm thankful to get
When I'm resting a bit from a fight;
Its tobacco is ripe
And the smooth, mellow type,
It's a comfort and pleasure to light.

And our nerves have been ragged,
And our spirits are sluggish and cold,
There's a package of pep
That gets into our step

SCHOOLS' HIGH BUDGETING WILL COST 19 MILLION

More Outgo than Income Piles Up Interest.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Chicago board of education will pay, or rather obligate the taxpayers to pay, $19,188,000 this year, largely because of the board's failure to live within its income. That is the board's own figure, officially recorded in the $90,180,000 budget adopted last Wednesday.

Technically, the $19,188,000 is the "debt service appropriation." It includes $5,330,000 in interest on temporary loans, $642,500 in interest on funded loans and $5,207,500 for the retirement of bonds. These bonds have been used as a so-called working cash fund, that is, the money obtained from the sale of the bonds has been spent for current expenses—not for permanent improvements. These items, totaling $11,180,000, were the direct result of the board spending more money than its income.

Eight Millions Tax Losses.

The remaining $8,008,000, which brings the "debt service" total to $19,188,000, is charged up to the loss and cost of collecting taxes. Although it appears that the spending proclivities of the school trustees have an influence upon this item, the trustees contend they are not responsible.

This $8,008,000 item is a deceptive figure, in the opinion of practically every tax expert. It represents 10 per cent of the total amount of taxes the board has appropriated for 1932. The trustees assume that the loss and cost of collecting the taxes will be only 10 per cent.

Total Would Beat Records.

In order that the board may obtain $80,000,000 in taxes, the total tax bill of Cook county for 1932 will have to be $252,000,000, which is $50,000,000 more than ever has been collected even at the height of the city's prosperity. The assumption that 10 per cent will cover the loss and cost of collecting such a tax bill, is contradicted by the experience of collecting the 1929 taxes last year. The loss and cost on those taxes was more than 30 per cent.

If the board's loss and cost of tax collection for 1932 is made 30 per cent instead of 10 per cent, then its loss will be $24,026,000 instead of $8,008,000. Its budget for this year would accordingly be $106,197,000, instead of $90,180,000, because the state law requires the board to appropriate for loss and cost of collecting taxes.

Trustees Are Hopeful.

But the trustees contend that the sad experience on the 1929 tax collections should be disregarded. Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell yesterday joined Trustee Joseph P. Savage—leader of the eight who voted for the budget last Wednesday—in proclaiming the belief that the schools will have more taxes for 1932 than were levied for 1929 or 1930.

It is Caldwell's theory, as well as that of Savage, that a vast amount of personal property will be added to the tax roll. This, with real estate and railroad property, will increase the amount of property on which taxes can be collected.

While this theory of the eight trustees who put over the budget is being proved, either right or wrong, the board goes on spending and accumulating more debts. At the beginning of this calendar year its unpaid obligations totaled $134,111,194.

Part of that total is due to the delay in the collection of taxes. Another part is due to the inability of the property owners to pay the taxes levied against them, and still another part, it is charged, is due to the board's waste and extravagance. The D. F. Kelly committee has said there is "$1,000,000 or more" of waste in the cost of operating school buildings, yet that waste is continued in the $90,180,000 budget for this year.

Contrary to Experience.

The board has not made public any convincing figures to show that it will be able to collect $80,000,000 in taxes for 1932, when it was able to collect less than $60,000,000 in 1928, the heyday of prosperity. Its theory that it will be able to collect a third more taxes for this year than was collected in 1928 has been discredited by the experience of more than 200 cities and counties of the country, as compiled and published in the last five weeks. In these communities there has been no delay in tax collections, but in each one the collections have decreased. The explanation is that the people haven't the money with which to pay the taxes.

When the board meets next Wednesday it has authority to decrease its $90,180,000 budget, but Chairman James A. Hemingway of the board's finance committee has twice announced that no change is contemplated until it gets the report of the investigation of the schools by Columbia university. This inquiry is headed by Dr. George Strayer and is costing the taxpayers $100,000. The report is due next June.

DEPLORE TRANSFER OF RACKET BUREAU FROM LOOP OFFICE

The racket bureau of the state's attorney's office will be moved to the criminal courts building at 26th street and California avenue on March 14. For the past two years this division of the prosecutor's office has maintained a downtown headquarters. The efficacy of the office and the desirability of its loop proximity have been attested to by civic agencies, but financial stringency has caused its removal.

With the payment of rent for the period ending March 14, the sum set aside for the investigating office was exhausted. A monthly rental of $225 has been paid for the quarters at 123 West Madison street and the prosecutor's office decided the cost could be carried no longer.

Although quarters, now occupied by a welfare division, will be provided on the first floor of the courts building, experienced investigators expressed the belief the office might as well be closed.

"The public will suffer by the move," Charles J. Mueller, assistant state's attorney in charge of the office jointly with Charles E. Lounsbury, said. "There is a centralization of activities in the loop that enables us to confine our investigations to a relatively small area and to execute them with dispatch. All this will be lost when we move to the west side."

MOTHER COMING FOR 2 RUNAWAYS HELD BY POLICE

Martin Bernstein, 16 years old, and his chum, Kempton Field, also 16, are going back to their homes in Brookline, Mass., without a chance to use the rifles, revolvers and hunting knives which police found in their possession Saturday when they alighted from a train in La Salle street station.

A message from the Travelers' Aid society in Boston to the Chicago society had preceded them. It warned police that they had run off with $560 belonging to Kempton's mother, Mrs. Lillian Field. Mrs. Isaac Bernstein, mother of Martin, is on her way to take the boys home.

They said they were going to Albuquerque, N. M., to be cowboys.

QUINCY WOMAN SEIZED IN EAST.

Quincy, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—New York City police today notified the Adams county sheriff's office that Mrs. Sarah Golden, accused fur thief who jumped bond here in 1926, had been captured in the east. Mrs. Golden and two other women were arrested following the theft of valuable fur coats from three Quincy department stores.

MR. JACOBS ON THE SPOT.

Mr. J. L. Jacobs has been appointed assessor for Cook county under the terms of the law enacted by the special session of the legislature. Over a long period of years Mr. Jacobs has served Cook county well as an efficiency engineer. He now faces a task far more difficult and thankless than any he has had before.

Mr. Jacobs' task divides itself into two parts. He must, in the first place, discover the fair cash value of each parcel of real estate in Cook county. As if that were not enough, he must also discover personal property and place that upon the books also. The first task is possible of achievement within reasonable limits of error of judgment. The second is wholly impossible. He may place more personal property on the books than has ever been there before, but he cannot get it all or nearly all of it or even much of it.

He cannot, for example, place bank deposits on the books because to do so would amount to confiscation. The more zealously he tries to get at deposits the more certain it is that bank deposits will disappear from Cook county. He cannot find stocks, bonds and other such securities, and the harder he tries to do so the deeper they will go into hiding. A full assessment of trust estates will kill the business of trust companies in Cook county. Mr. Jacobs can find automobiles, pianos and office, shop and store equipment, but much of that sort of personal property is already on the books and the task of organizing the assessment of all of it is staggering. There is no doubt that he can add somewhat to the amount of personal property now scheduled and taxed, but to assume that he can lay his finger on $15,000,000,000 of it, as the critics of recent assessments have demanded, is fantastic.

To the extent that Mr. Jacobs succeeds in finding additional personalty to tax he will bring about some strictly limited reduction in the burden upon real estate, but it is scarcely conceivable that the redistribution of the burden will give much relief to the beleaguered taxpayer.

The fact is that there cannot be much redistribution of the burden. Some people have all their capital invested in real estate and they will be benefited; but the great majority, either as owners or renters, pay some real estate tax and own some personalty besides. To the extent that the real estate taxes are reduced, the personalty taxes will be increased. Accordingly, Mr. Jacobs' work, fair and impartial as it no doubt will be, will fail to meet the essential requirement of the situation, which is a reduction in the tax bills of the individual taxpayer.

What will it profit Jones if he saves $50 of real estate taxation, only to find himself obliged to pay $50 more than he ever before paid on his personalty? The same man, with the same resources, must pay the same amount; and, indeed, he will be fortunate if his total tax under the new dispensation is not larger than it was under the old. This much may be taken for granted: any additional personalty which finds its way to the tax books will be that much more to tax at the established rates; and as soon as the depression lifts, if not before, the tax eaters will not fail to avail themselves of the opportunity for added revenue there presented.

It must be remembered that Mr. Jacobs does not and cannot have any influence over the amount of money which the taxpayers have to contribute. All he can do is place a value for purposes of taxation upon the property, real and personal, that he can find within the county. He can adjust the burden as between Jones and Smith, but he cannot say how much Jones and Smith together must carry. That is the duty of the budget makers of the various governments, and unless and until they reduce their expenditures taxes in Cook county must remain impossibly burdensome.

Thousands and tens of thousands of taxpayers will fail to grasp that simple fact. They will turn upon Mr. Jacobs as the cause of their suffering and in their rage will accuse him of responsibility for their high taxes. They will be encouraged in this misconception by demagogues shouting about tax dodging. Bitterly unfair as these attacks upon him will be, Mr. Jacobs must expect them and must look forward to them in the certainty that nothing he can say or do will have the least effect in turning the attacks upon those responsible for the evil complained of.

There will be no end to tax complaints, tax dodging and recurring revenue crises in this community until the tax eaters curb their appetites. How much may be expected in this direction is clearly indicated by the course just taken by the board of education in passing a budget appropriating some $30,000,000 more for 1932 than disinterested observers believe the board can possibly receive in revenue.

A TALE OF TWO NATIONS.

A dispatch to THE TRIBUNE from its correspondent in Belgium reports that the Belgians still resent the official apology given Ambassador Gibson for the satisfaction of the United States, certain Belgian publications having been nasty in their comments on the altruistic adventures of the American government and people in Europe, particularly in Belgium.

Probably the only people whose squawks should astonish Americans are the Afghans. Of them we could truly say that we did not understand why they should be against us. We never tried to do anything for them. It was silly, of course, to make Belgian newspaper criticism a matter of state concern. Belgian newspapers are free to slander the United States as they please, and should be. It is a dull day pleasure in all of Europe. It is also a proper recompense for the American predilection for doing good.

Japan entered the war before America. Its objective was the German territory and fortifications in Shantung. The German garrison made a formal resistance for honor. The Japanese did the garrison the honor of an investment and assault. Japan thereupon occupied the territory, intending to keep it. After this military exploit Japan virtually withdrew from the war. Although it had a fine army the use of it in Europe was not seriously considered even in times of the greatest allied distress. Japan turned to commerce and war profits, without a reproach from Europe. Its manhood was saved from erosion. Its markets were rich. Its policy was self-interest, and that policy was accepted by the allies as an honorable one. It had no altruistic motives. It undertook no self-sacrificing enterprising. It wanted nothing for any one except for itself, and when territory was divided at the peace it took all the German Pacific possessions north of the equator. It had and retained the respect of the world.

The United States entered the war to end war. It was to make the world safe for democracy. It wanted nothing for itself it did not want for all humanity. It raised an army of 4,000,000 men. It fairly flooded Europe with money during and after the war. It made every other country its debtor and every one its enemy. It asked for nothing and got a radio privilege on the isle of Yap.

It has since been berated for what it did and for what it does not do. What it thought were benefits conferred assume the substance of injuries done. It lost men, money and good will, all of which Japan retained. The world proceeds on the motto: Always see to it that the sucker never gets an even break.

THE TRULY GOOD.

Daniel Gilday, a one man reform organization recognized as such in the moral congeries of the city, has been convicted of assault to murder. Mr. Gilday is a prohibitionist. He was intoxicated at the time he used his pistol on one of two boys who saw him staggering on the street and intended to help him. The man is important only because he is one of the aberrations which have imposed themselves on gullible people as agents of public virtue and social morality and, as such, allowed to have controlling voice in the government of the country.

In the last ten years prohibition has degenerated into an obscene spectacle of corruption, hypocrisy, brutality, and irresponsibility. Persons of honest conviction have been disgusted with it and have left it to rogues, bootleggers, blue noses, and the feeble-minded. It has destroyed not only the respect of honest people for its laws but the self-respect of government which tries to enforce them. At the best it will be ten more years before the country can begin to get the poison out of its system and dispose of the consequences.

THE GANGSTER IN ENGLAND.

An investigation of the Dartmoor prison outbreak, recognized at the time in England as a fantastic but alarming reproduction of an American crime movie, such as "The Big House," has not contributed much to ease the mind. On the contrary, it has precipitated some suspicions and misgivings into unpleasant conclusions. A new type of criminal, supposed to be peculiar to the United States, appears in England. The prison riot was the work of some of these young criminals whose mentality, character, and methods are new to English crime. Evidences of the gang, American style, are discovered. There never was any reason to assume that modern gang methods could be precluded by anything inherent in the law or the social organization of another country and be peculiarly an American evil.

The habitual criminal as heretofore known to the English had certain inhibitions. He was seldom an extremist. He recognized that the law might catch him and his common sense told him that he should not aggravate his offense. He sought a minimum of punishment by submission when he found the game was up. He was seldom a terror to the police and he was a peaceable prisoner. The "old lag" was, within the limitations of his profession, law abiding. The young gangster doesn't recognize limitations, either within or outside prison walls. He is smarter than the old fellow. He is better equipped, more distorted mentally; has fewer scruples and more desperation. He can make more chances in his favor and will run them closer. It is unmistakably with a shock that England discovers the type of gangster supposed to be a peculiar, if not inevitable, product of American political and social conditions has appeared in England.

Editorial of the Day

FEDERAL SWIMMING POOL.

[New York Sun.]

Senator Oddie of Nevada apparently is not among those members of congress who believe that the federal government already undertakes too many things. He has introduced an amendment to the interior department appropriations bill by which not more than $50,000 of the $8,000,000 appropriated for the Boulder cañon project would be available for "construction, operation, and maintenance at Boulder City, Nev., of a swimming pool, together with suitable bathhouses and other facilities, for the use of residents of such community."

The federally supervised Australian crawl and the healing waters of Washington bureaucracy would do much to make life in Boulder City supportable. It would be a pleasure to a taxpayer making out a check for his income tax to know that part of it was to go to provide a swimming pool in the desert. But it would be even better to turn the reflecting pool of the Lincoln memorial into a swimming pool and provide free transportation to Washington to those Boulder City inhabitants who want to swim.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT CERTAINLY BEGINS TO LOOK SERIOUS when a large section of the Republican party says it won't give any money for campaign expenses this year if the Sacred 18th is supported in the platform. And the objectors are those who have put up most of the jack in past campaigns. Tut, tut, tut, have things come to the place where the reformers have got to pay for their own reforms? How horrible! A reformer always gets somebody else to hold the bag and he doesn't do anything but reform. They love to reform you and me as long as it doesn't cost them anything. But if they have to pay for saving us—boys, in that case it looks as though we were going to be left for old Mister Devil to grab us right off.

It's always been said that money makes the mare go. Of course nowadays we would have to change that dear old saw and make it read that money buys the gas for the old car. Political campaigns cost money, probably not as much as in other years; lots of voters who used to get two bucks for voting right would probably come down to a dollar and a half, or even six bits, on account of the depression. And then there's all the headquarters rent and the tons of propaganda that have to be sent out and the willing workers and campaign orators' board and keep. It all costs money, and the G. O. P. hasn't any Johnny Raskob putting up ten thousand simoleons every month to keep the home fires burning. It may be, indeed, a noble experiment, but even noble experiments cost money, and the nobler they are the more they cost. If the big money boys in the G. O. P. are going to put padlocks on their pocketbooks and sew up their pants pockets until the Sacred 18th gets the air—what to do?

PURCHASES.

If I had stars instead of copper coins
I'd spend them all more lavishly than gold;
I'd buy a moon the shade of lemon pie,
I'd buy a fire to shut away the cold,
New tape to mend his broken pipes for Pan,
A rainy night and benches in the park,
Gay rows of dreams put up in colored jars,
As jellies are . . . and one lamp for the dark.

I'd buy bright words for all the rhymes I write,
A few old songs I'd like to hear again,
Some cups for tea, an amber shade or red,
A frosted cake for dinner now and then.
If I had stars the things I'd choose are many—
I can't do much . . . I'm shopping on a penny.

BLUE MONDAY! But why bring that up now? It's this way. Because this particular Blue Monday we have with us today is just a few bits darker blue than most Blue Mondays. And why? Because on this Blue Monday our lawmakers at Washington have handed us the great, big, fat new tax bill. It's got a manufacturers' sales tax of 2¼ per cent in its little insides and increases in the individual and corporate income taxes; a gift tax and higher estate taxes. Blue Monday? We'll tell the cockeyed world!

THE WORM IT TURNETH.

Sir: I am a law-abiding citizen. I work nights and it's usually about 5 a. m. when I start counting sheep and always about four hours later when some lame-brained motorist wheels up to the front of the apartment building where I live, calling for some one.

Well, now, these here Charleys park their time-payment crates in front of the place and sit on the horn until the right window opens. Then they shout up some slush to their honey and all the other windows close. It's quiet then for about five minutes and it looks like I might drop off, when the beep-beep business starts up all over again. The lug is telling her to hurry. By this time I'm trying to keep from throwing things, meanwhile thinking there must be a way to stop these pests.

I poke my head out the window and catch the license plate on the car. The police department gave me the owner's name and address and the telephone directory supplies the rest. To make the setup complete the weather is cold and nasty.

About 4 o'clock next morning, comfortably settled in my hut, I pick up the phone and call Edgewater 000262, we'll say for illustration. It rings and rings and finally a gruff voice says, "Wadda ya want?"

"Is this Mr. McParkin?" I ask, businesslike.

"Yarr," he growls.

"Are you the owner of a Frontenac sport roadster, Illinois license 9-888-777?"

"Yes," he answers, his interest picking up. "Why?" Well, this is music to my ears, I'm telling you, and I keep my attitude with difficulty.

"Were you in front of the Walvern Arms apartments at 8:30 this morning?" I ask.

He studies this one over for a minute and finally admits it.

"Is it cold where you're standing now?" I resume. He could have his phone ripped out for the answer I got to this one, but I'm eating it up.

Finally he blurts out, "Who in the heck are you and what in the heck do you mean calling me up at this hour of the morning?"

"Why," I answer in a voice like a B. & K. usher showing you to your seat, "I live at the Walvern Arms and I'm just crazy about that horn on your car. It woke me up this morning and I couldn't get it out of my mind. Could you bring your car to the phone and toot that horn some more? No! Oh, I'm so sorry, beep, beep!"

I think my idea is perfectly lovely and I don't mind other people using it; that's the kind of a guy I am.

JEROME.

My heart has snuffed its lights and closed its door.
I sit contented near the fireside

DAYDREAMING DOES NOT PAY.

R. H. S. HULBERT told this story at the annual meeting of the National Safety council: A girl who had been working on a punch press for several months was complimented on having ten whole unwounded fingers. She answered: "Yep, it's only them wot thinks wot loses their fingers." Dr. Hulbert says she meant that daydreamers—the wool gatherers, the people who indulge in phantasies—are those who are most likely to have accidents. He warns employers of men and women who work around heavy machinery to beware of daydreamers.

That they are prone to get hurt is not the only drawback. As a rule, they are not contented, happy workers. The phantasies, the castles in Spain that he indulges in are so warming and soothing that he cannot accept the drabness of life with grace. When it is so easy to build himself into a picture of magnificence and power, he becomes unhappy in the face of realities. The same contrasts which make him dissatisfied with his job make him fit in poorly with his fellow workers.

There are fairly well informed men who argue for daydreaming, saying it lifts a man out of ruts, fires him with ambition, hitches his career to a star. Dr. Hulbert says men of this opinion are wrong. Daydreaming means incapacity, failure to measure up to one's job, and if a daydreamer does hitch his career to a star it is a case of frothy ambition without capacity to make good. "Champagne appetite and beer income."

There are men of standing who think it advisable for people whose lives are drab to escape the realities in some way. I have heard this as one of the arguments for liquor. It has even been used as an argument for the use of heroin, cocaine, and other drugs. Some cults offer it as one of the advantages of their religion. Wishful thinking and daydreaming are said to be helpful for the same reason it is claimed liquor is. Dr. Hulbert says: "My objection to this type of thinking is that it is dishonest. Every one has the right to indulge in daydreaming, wishful thinking, and other types of dishonest thinking. In youth, probably mostly in later adolescence, it is so nearly natural that it is almost physiological." Dr. Hulbert warns against indulging in it until it becomes a habit.

He suggests a remedy. When you start daydreaming, call your mind back to the job at hand, and—do something motor. Unless a person is badly twisted mentally this is not difficult, except as one snoozes in the early morning. The charm of beauty sleep is in the daydreaming. On the other hand, the motor thing to do is to jump out of bed. This is not so appealing on a cold morning.

MORNING COLD BATH.

R. E. L. writes:

1. What physical or other benefit is derived from early morning cold baths?
2. Is 15 minutes setting-up exercise morning and night enough to be of benefit to one who works indoors?
3. Where can I get a list of various setting-up exercises giving physical benefit derived from each exercise?
4. Can one build up weight with just a half hour setting-up exercises daily?
5. Is cabbage fattening?
6. Where can I get a leaflet on building up the weight?

REPLY.

1. They stimulate the body to make heat, train the vasomotor system, build up the resistance to cold and to infections, and are all to the good if you are a vigorous person and get a good reaction.
2. Yes. Make it snappy.
3. There are many good books, such as McKenzie's. Probably the United States public health service has one.
4. Probably not.
5. No.
6. If you will write us, sending a stamped and addressed envelope for reply, we will send one. But diet is only one part of the specifications for putting on weight.

"SLUGGISH LIVER."

REPLY.

Sluggish liver generally means constipation. As a rule, when a person says he has such a liver he means he is constipated. There may be a condition that could properly be termed sluggish liver that is separate from constipation, but if so, it has not been defined, and no one knows just what it is—if it is.

RATE IS TOO HIGH.

Reader writes: Have just been through a physical and laboratory examination and find I have metabolic rate 21 points above the normal range. Is this too high?

REPLY.

It is.

A SEVERE OPERATION.

C. B. writes: Can knockknees be operated on and straightened?

REPLY.

Yes. However, the operation is a severe one. For some people the operation is justified. For others it is not.

MANY SUCH REQUESTS.

Chicago, March 1.—[Friend of the People.]—Would it be possible to have a few loads of cinders dumped and spread on Balmoral avenue from Harlem avenue to Neva avenue? The constant rains have left this dirt road in a deplorable condition, and it is impossible to try to drive over it without getting stuck. W. G.

Report is made that this request for filling for Balmoral avenue from Harlem to Neva avenue has been placed on file and will be taken care of at the first opportunity. There are many miles of unimproved streets and alleys in this vicinity and we have numerous requests of a similar nature on file. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

CHILD'S WELFARE PREVAILS.

Chicago, March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife and I have been separated a year and seven months. We have a baby that I've been caring for since she left. She now lives in New York. Just before Thanksgiving her mother stole my son and moved to New York to live with her daughter [my wife]. 1. Can I prosecute the mother? 2. Can I force the mother-in-law or my wife to return my son? What legal procedure would I have to use to recover the custody of my son? R. C.

1. We advise against this course.
2. The decision as to custody is largely discretionary with the court before which the question is raised. The controlling factor is the apparent best interest of the child. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEPENDS ON BY-LAWS.

Chicago, March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Could a social organization incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, at a special meeting where only a quorum was present [such quorum being about 20 per cent of the membership], legally assess members who failed to obtain a new member during a specified time an amount equal to nearly six months' dues, while any one of like membership obtaining a new member during the specified time would not be assessed? G. J. K.

Depends on the wording of the by-laws. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—The Chinese transport Chean, while proceeding to Formosa with 1,400 troops on board, was wrecked in the Che-tung pass. All the soldiers and crew were safely landed in the ship's boats.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 10.—A telegram to the Japanese legation announces that the emperor of Japan will take up his residence at Hiroshima immediately and that the headquarters of the army and navy will be moved to that place. This town is much nearer the scene of the war, and the action of the emperor in taking up his residence there is interpreted to indicate his intention of personally superintending active operations in the Japan-China hostilities.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch from Wei-hai-wei says a commission composed of foreigners, after examining the incidents of the naval fight of July 26, declares the Japanese were the aggressors. The Chinese, the commission adds, were careful to avoid the appearance of a provocation, but the Japanese waylaid them. The Chinese fleet is now collecting at Wei-hai-wei and is in perfect fighting trim.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 12.—Rumors have reached here that a battle has been fought between the Chinese and Japanese near Kai-cheng, Corea. The engagement is said to have taken place about Sept. 2. Native newspapers say the fight lasted two days and was still undecided when the news was forwarded to the native press. The Chinese papers of Sept. 12 announce that Gen. Yeh, the Chinese commander, reports having been victorious over the Japanese. It is supposed here, however, that the Chinese have met with a reverse at Pingyang.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 7, 1904.

VLADIVOSTOK.—A fleet of five Japanese battleships and two cruisers bombarded the town and shore batteries for 55 minutes this afternoon. The fleet approached from the direction of Askold island at the east entrance to Usuri bay about 32 miles southeast of Vladivostok. Entering the bay the enemy formed in line of battle but did not approach to a closer range than a mile and a third. They directed their fire against the shore batteries and the town, but no damage resulted, as most of the 200 lyddite shells failed to burst. The Russian batteries did not reply and the enemy retired in the direction of Askold island.

ST. PETERSBURG. — First dispatches from Vladivostok denied any losses to the Russian forces from the Japanese bombardment. Later it was admitted that perhaps a few Chinamen had been hit and still later that five Russians were killed. It is apparent the Japanese were afraid to risk their ships to the fire of the land batteries and it is considered probable the attack was really made for the purpose of drawing the fire of the Russian forts in order to compel them to disclose the position and caliber of their guns.

TOKIO.—The Russians are throwing up intrenchments at Antung on the north bank of the Yalu river and indications are that they will make that point the base of their first line of resistance. It is reported there are 20,000 Russians in Corea south of the Yalu but no serious encounters are expected for some time.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 7, 1916.

COPENHAGEN.—It is reported that five German generals have been killed in the fighting at Verdun.

LONDON.—The Germans began a new drive against Verdun, this time to the west of the Meuse river. The Paris official report admits that after a violent bombardment of the entire line between Bethincourt and the Meuse the Germans attacked and occupied Forges on the west bank of the Meuse, five and one-half miles almost directly north of Verdun. Attempts to carry Cote de l'Ole, which dominates the town, were defeated. An Amsterdam dispatch reports that 10,000 Germans were repulsed with heavy losses when they attempted to bridge the Meuse with pontoons and flank the French on the west bank. A little farther west, in the Argonne region, there was a violent artillery engagement around Cheppy woods and Avocourt-Malancourt road. To the southeast of Verdun in the Woevre district the Germans pounded the French lines with heavy artillery but made no infantry attacks. In the Champagne also there has been some desperate fighting, and the Germans, using liquid flame, have been able to penetrate French advanced positions at Maisons de Champagne. Meanwhile the German heavy artillery has continued the bombardment of the Verdun forts and Amsterdam dispatches say that three of them defending the city from the east have been almost totally wrecked.

LONDON.—A big sea battle in the North sea zone is expected within a short time. British and Russian warships are on the move to stop German cargoes to Sweden. A fleet of 25 German warships was seen on March 6 cruising in the North sea, according to a dispatch from north Holland.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Announcement was made at the White House that Newton D. Baker, former mayor of Cleveland, has been offered and has accepted the position of secretary of war in President Wilson's cabinet.

WHAT BUREAUCRACY COSTS.

Springfield, Ill., March 3.—The agricultural department, with its ramifications, is spending yearly as much as the value of the entire wheat crop for the year 1931 to teach the farmers how to raise more and more bushels. The department of the interior is spending billions of dollars on Boulder dam, rehabilitation of the Mississippi valley, Columbia river [now proposed], and cheap fertilizer at Muscle Shoals [now proposed], and on numerous other irrigation and reclamation projects, thereby putting millions and millions of additional acres into cultivation. President Hoover said in his speech at Indianapolis on June 16, 1931, "We plan . . . to install twenty-five million electrical horsepower, to grow 20 per cent more farm products," and yet the fertile lands of Illinois are now unprofitable, and the farmer is advised to let these lands lie idle, to plow up every third row of cotton, and veal his heifer calves.

Some critics, some farm leaders, and some politicians seem to assume that these bureaucratic activities are a help to the farmer. As a matter of fact they are doing him immeasurable harm. The land owner and farmer not only pay a disproportionate share of the cost in taxes but must compete against the millions and millions of additional bushels produced by reason of these governmental activities. He cannot long stand such competition. It will drive land values down to where they will not be purchased for the amount of taxes against them. It will drive the farmer into bankruptcy and peasantry. It is sheer madness at a time when the corn cribs and granaries are bursting with grain that is unsalable at a price that will pay expenses. JOHN M. PFEIFER.

THE CZECH DREYFUS.

Berwyn, Ill., March 3.—The biased views of THE TRIBUNE'S Czecho-Slovakia correspondent are not conducive to the good will of that nationality in America. The latest is Mr. Shirer's story in the March 1 issue about the so-called Czech Dreyfus, which is full of inaccuracies as well as prejudice. To call Prof. Tuka a fiery Slovak leader is quite misleading. Tuka was anything but fiery, very unassuming and retiring, allowing others to do his work. He neither spoke nor wrote Slovak fluently. Mr. Shirer speaks of Foreign Minister Benes as a rabid nationalist as against the more moderate Masaryk. The fact is that neither President Masaryk nor Dr. Benes are popular with Czech nationalists because they are suspected of internationalist tendencies. When Mr. Shirer says that the Czechs crushed the Slovak autonomy movement by typical Balkan terrorist methods he makes it clear that he is badly informed as well as prejudiced. V. F. CIPRA.

WILL IT SNOW NEXT JUNE?

Bloomington, Ill., March 2.—Your issue of March 1 carried an article under a prominent headline, "City's Mildest Winter Since 1878 Is Ended." This, no doubt, was true in so far as the winter was concerned, but what about the following summer? It happens that June 10, 1878, was my birthday. In the province of Quebec, Canada, my father drove five miles on that day through a snowstorm to secure the services of a country doctor. This was not in the northern wilds of Quebec, but in the good old eastern townships about 65 miles south of Montreal.

Will our freak winter of 1932 be followed by experiences next summer similar to 1878? H. H. M.

LESE MAJESTY.

Chicago, March 1.—With utmost confidence I believe our President will lead us through the present economic depression and weather the storm of undue slander and unfounded accusations, to become one of the great, if not the greatest, emancipators we have elected with God's guidance to the highest office in our nation.

It is a disappointment to see THE TRIBUNE publish such a severe accusation as is pictured in this morning's front page cartoon by Mr. Orr. To accuse our President of directing the destruction of the Union is a very drastic and in my opinion a very serious accusation.

I earnestly hope THE TRIBUNE will not adopt a policy of accusing and slandering our great President.

CLARENCE L. HOLMBERG.

THE DEPTHS.

Wilmette, March 1.—This morning's dirty cartoon demonstrates there is no depths to which a fanatical wet will not descend. A. E. WRIGHT.

VERY DISCOURAGING.

Chicago, March 1.—Your cartoon in today's paper is very discouraging.

Just why you print supposedly encouraging articles on your financial pages and knock the President on the front page is more than I can understand. It is more than I can understand also how you expect to build up public confidence at a time like this by knocking the President. WALTER O. WILSON.

JUST AND FAIR.

Galesburg, Ill., March 1.—I have been a subscriber to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, morning issue, for forty years. Recently many statements have appeared on the first page that aroused my temper and detracted from my loyalty to your paper. Is it just and fair for THE TRIBUNE to intimate day after day that President Hoover is responsible for the depression and all the suffering and loss that it has caused?

If you don't put some restrictions on Orr and others in your employ, I apprehend your subscribers will put some restrictions on your income.

CHARLES A. WEBSTER.

SPEED.

Cicero, Ill., Feb. 29. — Permit me to congratulate you on your latest plank in your platform, "Increase the Speed of Passenger Trains." If this was followed up with a lowering of passenger rates the railroads would put a lot of bus lines out of business.

While on the subject of speed another good plank would be, "Increase the Speed of Some of Chicago Street Car Lines." One notable example of snail like speed is the Roosevelt road line. The cars sit at the western terminal of the line for about ten minutes and then slowly poke along on their way. The schedule ought to be cut down at least ten minutes on the round trip.

One example of good service is the Madison street line, where the cars actually step on it and make very good time for a street car. J. L. M.

MR. NORTHUP.

Chicago, March 1.—I wish to express my gratitude to your editor who wrote the article in THE TRIBUNE on Feb. 29 on "Mr. Northup in Contempt." Some of us know what a fight that very able and fearless servant of the people encountered in putting that case across, and if he did flare up at times while under pressure, he should have the support of the people for fighting as he did. FINNISH REBELS LAY DOWN ARMS; CHIEFS IN PRISON

Fascisti Sing Hymns on Surrender March.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 6.—The Lapua [Fascist] rebellion ended tonight with the surrender of the rebels, who evacuated the town of Mantsala, and marched to a nearby garrison at Tusby where they laid down their arms.

Vihtori Kosola, peasant organizer of the Lapua movement, accompanied by Maj. Gen. Martti Wallenius, former chief of the Finnish general staff, and four other rebel chieftains, arrived at Tusby at 7 o'clock tonight. Their autos were placed under a military guard and they were taken to Helsingfors where they were imprisoned. It is not known what action the government plans to take against the leaders, but it is expected that they will be tried in a Helsingfors court for high treason.

Pastor Consoles Rebels.

The Lapua men, who are deeply religious and whose outbreak against the government was launched because they alleged the ministry of the interior was protecting the communists in their agitation against the church and state, attended Lutheran services at the village church at Mantsala this morning. The pastor consoled his congregation by saying that President Svinhufvud had promised action on their demands and that their cause was not entirely lost "since the government has already begun to take sterner measures against the communists who have been hiding under the protection of the Socialist party."

Following the services, the rebels began their last march. They sang hymns as they went down the road unmolested by government troops who accompanied them to Tusby. At Tusby they stacked their arms and silently left for their homes.

The Finns are overjoyed with the outcome of the rebellion which for a time threatened the country with a civil war. The government's prestige, which was shaken, has been restored. An investigation was opened immediately to discover the original donors of funds which Kosola and Wallenius used to stage the uprising.

Hint at Red Plot.

Some authorities expressed the opinion that while both men may have been sincere patriots in believing that all their funds were coming from Finnish sympathizers, they still suspect that part of the money came from the communist international, which is said to have been attempting to use the patriotic Lapua movement to provoke a civil war in Finland.

The authorities point out that the conflict between the government and the Lapua party began when Minister of the Interior Baron E. von Born sent 20 policemen to protect a Red agitator who had been making regular visits to Mantsala to inflame the Lapua residents. They see in this the earmarks of a typical communist provocation.

2 PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES WILL DISCUSS MERGER

A proposed merger of two Presbyterian churches—the Fullerton Avenue, at Fullerton avenue and Geneva terrace, and the Covenant, at Halsted street and Belden avenue—will be discussed at meetings of the two congregations Wednesday evening. A decision is expected as a result of the meetings. The move is recommended because of the changing character of the community in which both are located. They are only four blocks apart.

In former years both churches were outstanding in their denomination and have had in their pupits some of the best known Presbyterian clergymen, but both have lost membership. The real impulse toward the merger came when the Rev. Charles Tupper Baillie of the Fullerton Avenue church accepted a call not long ago to the First Presbyterian church of South Bend.

The Covenant church, under its present pastor, the Rev. L. W. Almy, has been known for two years as the Seminary church and has been partially supported by the Presbyterian Theological seminary.

ACTS TO BOLSTER FIRE POWER OF U. S. ARMY UNITS

Gen. MacArthur Stresses Need of Machine Guns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Two moves to increase the fire power of infantry, cavalry and engineer units have been ordered by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff. One calls for the addition of extra machine guns to peace strength and war strength organizations of infantry, cavalry and engineer combats units. The second provides that every man in these branches must be taught how to use the machine gun.

DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR. [U. & U. Photo.]

"The amount of fire power needed during combat, either offensive or defensive, varies with the situation," a war department letter issued today states.

Where Fire Power Is Needed.

"Additional fire power is needed primarily to assist the unit which has encountered the greatest hostile reaction. For instance, in the attack, some units may be held up or even forced on the defensive temporarily, while others advance. Additional fire power is particularly needed where the units are stopped.

The effort to increase the fire power of some organizations has resulted in the lengthening of columns in march, complicated tables of organization and increase in impedimenta.

The employment of additional machine guns within infantry, cavalry and engineer units, is the most effective method of securing additional fire power at the specific place and at the correct time.

To Get Machine Gun Training.

Extra machine guns carried in the combat trains of these units will insure prompt additional fire power without lengthening their columns, changing their present organization or adding unnecessary equipment.

In view of the importance of this mechanical fire, all enlisted men of regular army infantry rifle companies, cavalry rifle troops, lettered companies, engineer combat regiments, and lettered troops of engineer squadrons, will be given the necessary training in the handling and use of machine guns so that they will be able to use them in combat.

This training will be accomplished without increase in small arms ammunition allowances or change in regulations governing additional compensation for qualification with machine guns.

Equipment to Be Issued.

For peace strength organizations, two extra machine guns and for war strength organizations, four extra machine guns per infantry rifle company, cavalry rifle troop, lettered company, engineer combat regiment, and lettered troop engineer squadron will be carried in the combat train. To insure that all personnel receive combat training in the use of machine guns, these extra guns will be employed during field exercises and maneuvers.

The chief of ordnance will issue the necessary minimum equipment to carry out this training.

No animals or carts will be issued for this purpose.

INDIAN MOSLEMS DEFY BRITAIN; SET FORTH DEMANDS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

DELHI, India, March 6.—Moslem leaders in India have decided that their community shall "reconsider" its attitude toward the round table committees because of the "failure to satisfy Moslem demands."

A resolution to that effect was adopted today at the all-India Moslem conference after a meeting at which it was suggested that the Moslems boycott the round table conference. The government concern has been intensified by a new factor, which is being taken up as a political issue. Throughout India Moslems are protesting against death sentences recently passed on two young Moslems for the stabbing of a Hindu bookseller in Calcutta last year.

Another blow was struck at the federal ideal yesterday when the ministers of all the central Indian states, meeting at Indore, unanimously rejected Lord Sankey's scheme for a federation as unacceptable.

Dingy, Yellow Teeth are NOT Natural

You'll see proof in 3 days —teeth 3 shades whiter!

NOW don't be fooled into believing that yellow, ugly looking teeth are your bad luck simply because daily brushing doesn't make them white and keep them sound.

Dingy, off-color, unclean teeth are NOT natural! If you want proof start using this new scientific technique—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. Overnight you'll agree you were wrong. And in 3 days your teeth will be much whiter—at least 3 shades whiter.

Double-Action, Double Results

There's nothing in the world that cleans teeth better than Kolynos. There's no preparation quite like it. It is unique. It contains two important ingredients. One—the finest cleansing agent known—literally foams over teeth and gums and into every crevice. It washes away debris, erases tartar and removes stain. At the same time the second ingredient strikes at the source of most tooth and gum troubles. It kills millions of germs that swarm into the mouth and cause discoloration, decay and gum diseases. (In tests Kolynos killed 190 million germs in 15 seconds, protected the mouth for 3 full hours.)

In this way Kolynos easily and quickly cleans teeth right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel without injury. It stimulates lazy gums and refreshes the entire mouth.

No! Dingy, yellow teeth are NOT natural. Prove it. Start using Kolynos—a half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. In just 3 days you'll see that anyone can have clean, attractive teeth. Buy a tube of this highly concentrated dental cream today.

NOURISHINE

DANDRUFF
Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Avoid Embarrassment of FALSE TEETH

sists the World Must Guarantee Security.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, March 6.—With more of its manhood under arms than ever before in peace time history, central Europe looks on the disarmament conference at Geneva with supreme unconcern. In some quarters there was a feeling of cynicism, in others of amusement at the idea that the Geneva fathers would really do any disarming of anybody.

The part of central Europe which is armed wants to stay armed. The part that is disarmed would like the others to come down to its level.

Divided in Two Groups.

Central Europe went into the disarmament conference divided into two groups—the "haves" and the "have nots," from an armament point of view. The "haves" are the nations of the little entente, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia, with combined military forces of half a million men.

Those who believe that the great war made Europe less military may be reminded that the peace time strength of the Austro-Hungarian army was 350,000 men. Thus, the three main states which were built up on the ashes of the Hapsburg monarchy keep 150,000 more men under arms today than did the Danube empire in 1914.

Against whom?

Well mostly against their neighbors, the "have nots," who are the remnants of the old empire. These are Austria and Hungary. Austria's army this year consisted of just exactly 20,930 men, which is considerably under the treaty allowance of 30,000 men. Hungary, more belligerent and still anxious to regain some of its lost territories and peoples, maintains its army up to the full number allowed by the treaty of trianon. That is 35,000 men. Neither Austria nor Hungary are allowed any airplanes or heavy artillery. Their light armaments are drastically limited by treaty.

There is another "have not" in this territory. It is Bulgaria. It maintains an army of 20,000 men, also without heavy artillery or airplanes.

"Play Ball" with France.

These two opposing central European groups will be little more than pawns as the chess game at Geneva unravels, as indeed they have been since the war. The little entente nations, which think they owe their existence to France, will play France's game. They always do. Lately all of them have received very timely financial aid from Paris, so there is no reason to believe that they will desert their big brother at Geneva.

The "have-nots" will just as surely play ball with Germany. And why not, for they are in exactly the same boat. They have all been disarmed by force and live at the mercy of their powerful armed neighbors.

Both Central European groups have stated their disarmament aims. The little entente nations contend that the demands of "security" make it necessary for them to maintain their present military establishments, regardless of what others do. But they are willing to discuss armament limitation as it applies to the future. That is, they will not reduce, but they might agree not to increase their military forces if the rest of the world will agree to guarantee their "security."

"Security," as it is understood in Prague, Belgrade and Bucharest, means the maintenance of the status quo. Having grabbed most of the choice territory and wealth of central Europe through the peace treaties, the little entente nations quite naturally want to keep them. The status quo is their existence to them.

All Have Modern Equipment.

The peace strength of the Rumanian army is 186,143; of Czecho-Slovakia, 140,060; of Jugo-Slavia, 110,445. The equipment is first rate, the artillery, practically all of French make or design, is modern and all three nations have strong air forces built up largely with French planes and French instruction.

Besides the regular army, all three nations have large forces of gendarmerie and border guards.

Universal military conscription, which puts every man in the reserve for twenty years after he completes his year or two in the regular army, provides adequate reserves. Jugo-Slavia, for example, is prepared to mobilize a million men over night, and, what is more, equip them.

Charge Neighbors Are Armed.

One of the main reasons against reducing their armies which the members of the little entente will argue at Geneva will be that their supposedly disarmed neighbors, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, are not disarmed at all and hence constitute a threat to the peace of central Europe. France, of course, will use the same arguments against Germany. As for central Europe, there is just a germ of truth in this point of view.

Every military observer here knows that Hungary, its army restricted to 35,000 men, is trying to give its young men military training. The Levente is a semi-official organization backed by state funds. It is called a physical culture society. Actually it gives what military training it can, and all Hungarian youths have to serve in it. That is why the French claim that Hungary practices conscription, which the treaty of Trianon forbids.

But no unbiased military observer here believes that Hungary could stand up for twenty-four hours against its worst and most powerful enemy, Czecho-Slovakia. Czech planes could destroy Budapest within an hour after hostilities broke out.

The same charge is made against Austria, and here also there is just a germ of truth. The old Austrian military machine was so completely destroyed by the war and its aftermath that Austria has difficulty in getting enough recruits for its tiny army. Today it is practically 10,000 under the 30,000 allowed by the peace treaty. It is allowed but fifteen machine guns, two trench mortars, and three howitzers.

What the little entente objects to, however, is the maintenance of Austria's two private armies, the socialist Schutzbund and the fascist Heimwehr. That both have considerable stocks of small arms is well known. While they do constitute a threat to the peace of Austria, they could be of no harm to Austria's neighbors, military experts declare.

Within Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia it is, of course, easy to keep the populace frightened by simply raising the bugbear of the Hapsburgs. If we do not maintain our present armaments, say the leaders of these three states, the Hapsburgs will be brought back.

TROOPS BATTLE SAVAGES TO END TERROR IN BRAZIL

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BORBA, Amazonas, Brazil, Feb. 27.—[By Mail to Manaos.]—Federal troops, rushed here to smash an Indian reign of terrorism in the state of Amazonas, engaged in their first battle yesterday with an outlaw band of savage and half-civilized Indians. Three Indians were killed, one was wounded, and four were captured. One soldier was wounded by an arrow.

The prisoners told of plans by the Indians, led by white brigands, for a general attack soon on the city of Borba. More federal troops, equipped with machine guns, are due to arrive tomorrow, however, and the city is not thought to be seriously endangered.

Terrorism Continues.

Outside Borba, however, bands of Indians continue to terrorize the countryside. The city was filled with refugees today who have fled from their ranches in fear of the Indian menace. Reports continue to come in of looting and pillaging of farms and villages. One rich merchant has been kidnaped and is being held for ransom.

The Indian revolt got under way several weeks ago when 300 Indians swooped down on the estate of a wealthy land owner. Two white men were killed and ten wounded, the latter including the owner.

Similar raids have been repeated continually. Bands of brigands set fire to houses, murder and kidnap women and girls. Harvesting of Brazil nuts, an important industry in these parts, is being conducted under grave difficulties, while business in general in the villages is proceeding at a snail's pace.

Indian Attacks Not New.

This region has long been accustomed to Indian attacks, although not to those of such a widespread and violent nature as the recent ones. Many here believe that the federal troops will be unequal to the task of ending completely the outlaw activities other than in the cities.

THIEVES RANSACK HOME OF LATE CAPT. MORRISON

Burglars broke into the old home of the late Capt. E. W. Morrison, the "millionless millionaire," at 759 West Harrison street, last evening, and escaped with three needlework pictures made by his wife, who is also dead.

A report of the theft was made by Mrs. Dora Malz, caretaker of the property, to Detectives Frank Tristano and Patrick Gaynor of the Maxwell street station. She said the thieves forced open a side door of the frame house while she was away. They searched all the rooms, but made away only with the pictures.

One was entitled "David and Solomon" and was 4½ by 2 feet in size.

FADED BEAUTY HELD IN STRANGE DEATH OF DOCTOR

Police of Paris Order Body Exhumed.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 6.—A corner of the veil that sometimes hides the strange life of the cosmopolitan set of Paris was lifted today when police broke their three months' silence to tell what they knew about the death of Dr. Charles Wilson Prevost.

Dr. Prevost was a Canadian by birth, but considered himself an American, having practiced for many years in New York. He was a member of the American club, the American chamber of commerce of Paris, and his wife was the former Josephine Wilson of Montreal, a Paris society leader. The physician's medical activities here always were a little vague, but his distinguished manner and white hair—he was 66—and his decoration as an officer of the French Academy of Medicine were sufficient to win him the respect of his colleagues.

Meets Women in Street.

All that fashionable Paris knew of Dr. Prevost's death up until today was what it had read in the society columns of local English language papers—namely, that he died of a heart attack on Dec. 19 and was buried.

According to the police, Dr. Prevost, despite the pleas of his wife, kept a rendezvous with a woman, named Rose Foks, alias Scott, a famous professional beauty of 20 years ago who had gradually drifted from the half-world to the underworld. Leaving his swanky residence in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, Dr. Prevost picked up Rose and her companion, Josephine Le Page, and drove them in his automobile to a sordid hotel in the slums of the Temple quarter.

A few hours later and in response to a frantic telephone call from the room of the three a physician, whose name the police conceal, arrived just in time to witness Prevost's death. A self-administered injection of camphor failed to save him.

Find Empty Phials.

If the second physician had any suspicions he kept them to himself, for he signed a death certificate attributing the cause of death to heart attack. He was a friend of Dr. Prevost and the two women.

The real mystery did not develop until a few days later when a maid cleaning the room found two empty phials under a bed. They were discovered to have contained heroin. After nearly three and a half months of investigation the Foks woman was arrested. On the basis of her statements, the examining magistrate ordered the exhumation of Dr. Prevost's body for an autopsy and a check up of the prescriptions he had issued in recent years.

STUDENTS TALK SOCIALISM AMID HOTEL LUXURIES

Comfortably ensconced in the Hotel Baker at St. Charles, one hundred college boys and girls last night wound up a three day conference on socialistic topics under the auspices of the Northwestern Student Christian association. The hotel, which has every modern convenience and is also equipped with a large pipe organ, is owned by E. J. Baker, multimillionaire nephew of the late John W. Gates and uncle of Mrs. Dellora Angell Norris of St. Charles.

The conference was the third annual gathering of its type. The others were held in the same hotel. Attending the sessions, including lectures and round table discussions, were a number of students from the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois, although the majority came from Northwestern.

The consensus of the three day program appeared to be that things in the United States have reached a situation where it is imperative that some plan be evolved and put into practice that will guarantee a more equal distribution of wealth. While there was little commendation expressed for the Russian five year plan, it was felt that some type of industrial program similar in scope should be establish.

Opinions were freely expressed among the students that a far more stringent inheritance tax should be imposed, a few declaring that a 90 per cent tax would be about right. Others felt that 40 per cent would be a fair average, both for inheritance taxes and income taxes. At the same time a reduction in land taxes was advocated by the majority of the group, the sentiment being that government has been too hard on the farmer.

It was noted that of the delegates at the conference only a few are working their way through college. Most of the girls and boys are being put through college by their families.

Speakers on the program included the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, whose topic was "Contributions of Social Institutions in Building a New Society," and Dean Ralph Dennis of the school of speech at Northwestern university.

1932 Models in Packages Go on Exhibit Tomorrow

The second annual packaging exposition, conference and clinic will be held at the Palmer house starting today, under auspices of the American Management association. An attendance of 10,000 is expected. More than 100 exhibitors will display the latest styles in boxes, cases, cartons, tubes, bottles, cellophane and other wares. In addition to the exhibits there will be talks by home economists and others.

HIT-RUN DRIVER BURNS CAR AFTER KILLING GIRL, 14

Reports Truck Stolen, Then Confesses.

John Haggard, 24 years old, of Somers, Wis., confessed to police yesterday that he was the driver of the hit and run truck which struck Jewell Cannon, 14 years old, 800 South Ashland avenue, and injured her fatally on Saturday. She died Saturday night in the county hospital.

Haggard drove his truck to a highway near Bensonville after hitting the girl at Harrison street and Ashland avenue, and set fire to it, he confessed. His intention, he said was to divert suspicion from himself.

Reports Truck Stolen.

He appeared yesterday at the Warren avenue police station and reported that the truck had been stolen, and that he had discovered it later, burned near Bensonville. Police were suspicious of his tale. They asked him for further details and he eventually confessed.

The Cannon girl's death brought the Cook county motor death toll to 194 for the year.

Coroner's inquests will be held today to determine whether injuries received in automobile accidents were responsible for the deaths of two men.

Paul Kockler, 69 years old, 832 North Paulina street, died yesterday of acute dilation of the heart. Physicians said, however, that his heart may have been affected by injuries sustained Dec. 18, when he was struck by a mail truck.

Found Dead in Bed.

Charles H. Coons, 74 years old, 4455 Berkeley avenue, was found dead in bed yesterday. He was struck by an automobile a week ago at Ellis avenue and 40th street, but an examination by a physician failed to disclose any injuries at that time.

The body of a Negress killed Friday at 73d street and Exchange avenue by an automobile was identified yesterday as that of Mrs. Anna McFadden, 53 years old, 5200 South State street.

In an effort to learn how children are injured in various accidents, the Chicago Safety council has invited every child in the Chicago elementary schools who has been injured in any way to write an account of the accident in which he was hurt. Statistics gathered by the council show that 22.6 per cent of all persons killed in accidents are children. The safety council is offering prizes for the best letters, which are to include five rules prepared by the young writers for avoiding accidents.

Descendant of Newburgh Pioneer Family Is Dead

Evansville, Ind., March 6. — [Special.]—Rufus Roberts, 76, descendant of one of Newburgh's pioneer families, is dead here. He was the grandson of Rufus Robert Roberts, who built the old stone house on the Ohio river two miles above Newburgh, which until recently was used as a sanitarium. It is an Ohio valley landmark, in which the grandson was born. His widow and one son survive.

CHARLES O'DONNELL SHOT 15 TIMES BY GANG FROM AMBUSH

Charles O'Donnell, one of the brothers engaged in the beer traffic on the southwest side, walked into a death trap laid for him early yesterday in the apartment house where he lives at 1723 West 91st street, but escaped with his life. Fifteen shotgun slugs and revolver bullets struck him in the arms and legs, but failed to reach a vital spot.

Lieut. Walter Healy discovered later in the day that part of the fire against O'Donnell came from an apartment in the court building where he lives with his bride of three months, Margaret. The apartment was rented Thursday by a man giving the name of John Lawrence. Lieut. Healy found a window raised and the stone sill chipped by bullets.

Other gunmen apparently followed O'Donnell into the court as he went from a taxicab to the door of his apartment. Several shotgun shells were found behind a clump of bushes. He was taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital, where he talked to his brother Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, then told police he didn't know who shot him.

Capt. James Mooney of the Gresham district suspects that the shooting was in revenge for an attack by gunmen on Robert Nugent, a well known saloon keeper in the district, who was wounded several months ago at 59th and Robey streets. O'Donnell left town on his honeymoon soon after that, and returned only lately. Reports that a family beer row, with Charles and "Spike" arrayed against Steve, a third brother, caused the shooting, was discounted by police.

Trade Leaders of 21 Lines Tell What's Wrong

They Write Their Views on Business Needs.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A Basis for Stability," by Samuel Crowther. [Little-Brown.] Published today.

THE world is in a state of almost hysterical eagerness these days to understand its social and economic illness, and through understanding to cure itself and to avert [if possible] future recurrences of the disease. Much has been written about it and will be written, some of it theory, some of it hard sense, and some amusing recallings of the prophecies of the wiseacres of the preceding years of plenty.

SAMUEL CROWTHER. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Samuel Crowther has chosen a novel and an important way of diagnosing the patient and of prescribing for him. He has selected leading men in various phases of modern American industrial life and has talked with them seriously and intently about the matter. To a consultation of twenty-one specialists he has taken the ailing times, and he has set down their opinions for the rest of us to read and profit by.

What He Means by Stability.

First of all Mr. Crowther defines what he means by stability as: "A reasonable progression at by no means an even rate of speed, and I hold that it is posssible to avoid alternating periods of feast and famine without wholly eliminating the delights of feasting."

He explains what money is, how it is managed and how credit comes into the matter of life. Everybody, he says, agrees that business must be stabilized. With the horse having trotted out the stable door he should be attended to, in a manner of speaking. How business is to reach that goal he thinks the specialists can tell better than he can.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation, says that the present needs for manufactured goods have not been filled and we have never been able to estimate future needs. The U. S. Steel company is now employing more men on part time instead of fewer men on full time. Operating costs have not been increased thus, since men do more work because they are fresher. Providing labor for the people is a great problem of the steel industry, he says. The turnover of daily labor is 72 per cent in ten years.

Alfred P. Sloan, president of the General Motors corporation, makes the statement that the investor in stocks and bonds is just as dependent on a corporation as the wage or salary earner in the same corporation.

Henry Ford says that there is no such thing as an essential industry. The danger of mass production is that it has a tendency to become rigid and keep on producing regardless of the market. . . . Industry does not exist merely to support men—its main purpose is to create goods that will serve the people. "The abolishing of poverty is the only end of business worth considering," he is quoted as saying. Mr. Ford thinks that overproduction is really the idea to be aimed for, for at that point everybody would possess all of the goods that he needed, or wanted, and would be in a position to really enjoy and consider life itself.

This is, however, unfortunately an impossible ideal, he concludes.

Finds Coal in Town Pump Stage.

John Hays Hammond wrote of "The Hardy Perennials—Copper and Silver": John J. Davis discusses coal—says that it should be as easy to get as water. "It is still in the town pump stage," he says.

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, discusses the oil industry; the railroads are viewed with wisdom by Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania.

Investment is discussed by Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and Richard F. Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange.

Food in its different aspects from the farmer to the consumer is the subject of four earnest and impressive articles by Frank O. Lowden, ex-governor of Illinois; G. F. Swift, president of Swift & Co.; Howard Heinz, president of H. J. Heinz company, and Horace Bowker, president of the American Agricultural Chemical company.

Clarence M. Woolley, president of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Supply company, discusses the making of homes; A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, discusses the electrical industry; George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, Inc., the cotton industry, and Martin J. Insull, president of Middle West Utilities company, the manufacture and distribution of power.

Two Study Retail Buyer.

The retail buyer is considered in his relation to the department store by Samuel W. Reyburn, president of the Associated Dry Goods Corporation of New York, and to the chain store by J. C. Penney, president of the J. C. Penney company.

Carl Snyder of the Federal Reserve bank discusses a measure for business, and William R. Bassett of Spencer Trask & Co. tells us all "Where Business Is Heading."

Mr. Crowther, in conclusion, talks about foreign trade and tells us what it all means.

"A Basis for Stability" is one of the most interesting and most important volumes to come out of the depression.

Gets Chance in Movies

Donella Donaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orren M. Donaldson, formerly of Oak Park, now of Los Angeles, has taken the film name of Julie Hayden under the terms of her new contract with Radio pictures. Her film career has not prevented her from continuing to help her mother with the cooking.

Paris Buttons Tailored Jacket Suit for Spring Straight Up the Front

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Suits are important members of the Paris fashion group this spring. At Cannes and Monte Carlo, smart women began wearing them in January. These spring suits are so varied that it's impossible to pick out any one kind as outstanding. Augustabernard's suits, however, with their longish basque-like jackets look, somehow, newer and more distinctive than any others. So many suits have little pea jackets, and the longer jacket suit seems more exclusive because of this.

The Augustabernard suit is shown in our sketch, and as you see this suit has a flavor of the picturesque without being out of key with the modern street scene. The jacket is fitted in no uncertain way, and buttons straight up the front. This is the kind of line that flourished when whalebone was part of the inside life of the basque, but as it is made in 1932 it is soft and light so that the woman beneath has to be pretty much all right in the matter of figure to wear it well.

The skirt that accompanies this jacket is gored in small scantily flare gores and has a high waistline. A white blouse is worn under the jacket, and the silk ties that are attached to the jacket are made of white and emerald green silk.

Oak Park Girl Wins Contract as Film Player

Donella Donaldson Uses Childhood Name.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 6.—[Special.]—Her real name is Donella Donaldson. When she was playing childhood games 15 years ago in Oak Park, Ill., her birthplace, where her father was a publisher of neighborhood weeklies, her playmates called her "Hey, Don."

When she turned 21 and found herself an actress of stage and movie experience with a Radio Pictures contract stipulating that she find a new name to express her film personality she thought of the "Hey, Don" of pinafore days in Oak Park and you will see her billed in films from now on as "Julie Haydon."

Blue eyed, her hair natural taffy blond, slender to willowiness, and looking only about 17 instead of her 21 years this former Oak Park miss who has lived in Los Angeles through nearly all her school days is following a picture career to the most unique goal I ever heard a film girl declare.

"I want to earn enough money from films to back my brother and become his partner building racing automobiles," she says.

Brother Builds Fast Autos.

The brother is Sabins Donaldson, remembered by a past decade of Oak Park high schoolers. He's 27 now and will be at the Memorial day races at Indianapolis as an auto mechanic. He has constructed his own version of a fast automobile, not once, but several times since grammar school days, much to the delight of not only himself but his sister.

Orren Donaldson, her father, formerly published Oak Leaves of Oak Park; Austinite of Austin, and Park Leaves of Forest Park, all neighborhood weeklies of the west side of Chicago, but sold them and moved with his family to Los Angeles when little Donella, or Julie, was 8 or 9. From that time on she attended Los Angeles schools, entering dramatics via a playlet at Gordon private school six years ago.

Studies Acting at Night.

Finishing school she worked in an art shop during the day, but continued with dramatic classes at Neely-Dickson school at Los Angeles at night. Then she got a job in a costume company sketching costumes; never staying far from her goal of theatricals in any of her jobs.

Mother Donaldson finally helped convince Father Donaldson that there was nothing subversive of the family's mingled Scotch-Dutch traditions in a girl becoming a professional actress and the next step for Julie included minor rôles in the Little theater in Hollywood.

Then came rôles with the Hollywood Drama club, now nonexistent, whose head, Dorothy Cormack, helped coach the aspiring young actress.

Julie at 17 did a couple of Russian rôles at Hollywood Playshop, and was pleased almost to extinction when hand kissing Russian gentlemen came to her afterward and fired volleys of Slav, under the impression that she was one of them.

Then followed a short tour with a small time stock company headed by Howard Ralston, brother of Esther Ralston, playing southern California cities, followed by her film debut as Nancy Perry, the young pioneer mother in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Great Meadow."

Spends 5 Days Under Hose.

"I spent five days in the rain in that part," she says. "And because there wasn't any rain, that means I spent five days under a fire hose."

But she was so enthused about becoming an actress she forgot to catch cold.

Next she had a comedy stage part with the late Minnie Maddern Fiske in Mrs. Fiske's final coast appearance in "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," followed by other stage parts with Henrietta Crosman in "The Bad Penny" and with Ian MacLaren in "The Man and Superman," all in Los Angeles. These stage rôles attracted the attention of film executives and she was signed with Walter Huston and Jean Harlow in MGM's "Beast of the City." Next came a subordinate but striking rôle in "Sympathy of Six Million," a radio film, with Irene Dunn and Ricardo Cortez, which is not yet released, and the Radio MGM decided she was a prospect too good not to have her under contract.

That's how Oak Park happens again to be represented in the movies. The last Oak Park actress to be featured, as well as I can recall it, was Mary Akin, and she quit the screen to wed her director and backer, Edwin Carewe.

Famed Winnetka Garden Sets Record for Spring Blossoms

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"Chaste snowdrop, venturous harbinger of spring
And pensive monitor of fleeting years."

When Wordsworth included these lines among his "Miscellaneous Sonnets" I wonder if he anticipated the little white blossoms before the ides of March. In England, perhaps—but along Chicago's Riviera, never!

Indeed, I would be willing to wager—almost anything—that Mrs. Charles Hubbard holds a record in having picked snowdrops (and crocuses, too) from her own Winnetka garden on Feb. 29. They were in bloom when I stopped to talk about spring gardening plans and to see the beautiful and ancient Chinese things she has collected for 20-odd years.

And even more, Mrs. Hubbard is also delighting her guests with nosegays of violets, for she has them blooming in profusion under a glass cover in one corner of the garden. "O, faint, delicious, springtime violet," as William Story has said.

Of course, it was to be expected that Mrs. Hubbard would produce something unusual in the way of flowers, for she is, as you know, an authority on gardens. This is the reason, perhaps, her lovely house has such an ineffable charm. She has brought the garden indoors.

Floweriness Marks Home.

There is a floweriness in the great branches of dogwood on the mantel and in the vases of yellow forsythia that has delighted guests from across both waters and always brings return visits from Mrs. Hubbard's wide circle of north shore friends. A woman of unusual culture, she can tell of her oriental and European wanderings, display her antique pieces of pewter, converse in any one of four or five languages, or entertain with a set of 300 Chinese puppets—all of these with a simple and gracious hospitality. When Felix Salten, editor of the Free Press in Vienna, visited Chicago for only a day a year or two ago he preferred to see how our better families live rather than tour the stockyards and Chinatown. Mrs. Hubbard was his hostess.

The house, at 849 Foxdale avenue, is one of Winnetka's oldest—built by a contractor some 60 years back. It was just 23 years ago that the Hubbards purchased it—for the staircase, Mrs. Hubbard says, because it looks so much like a lighthouse. Now you would never know it was once a plain white clapboard building with an everyday veranda stretching across the front. White stucco has transformed the exterior; the old fashioned porch has given way to a cunning vestibule where garden tools and vases and pots are neatly hidden away and a great jar supports branches in leaf or in bloom and a deep garden stretches off to the right, and the interior—words will not describe it!

Iron Etchings Decorate Walls.

Vistas of while walls decorated only by the dark outlines of Chinese iron etchings, black floors spread with pale Chinese rugs, and long windows hung with pale yellow draperies. The house is full of that garden feeling. Here and again are bouquets of hyacinths and daffodils and crocuses. Then orchids, pine trees, and lotus flowers are subjects for many of the iron etchings, and in one corner is a huge jar of witch hazel cuttings clambering up the wall. Even the bathroom (really a dressing room) carries out that flowery feeling with cacti prints applied to the wall in modernistic fashion.

"I used an old and rather rare collection of prints," said Mrs. Hubbard. "There are 100 of them on the wall and the wardrobe doors. And now that my friends know I am interested in cacti, they have contributed cactus sponges and miniature plants carved in wood and ivory."

Throughout the house are the rare pieces Mrs. Hubbard and her twin sons have gathered in the orient. The Chinese pewter collection, known throughout the world and exhibited more than once at the Art institute, is grouped on shelves in a back living-room. There is a vase from the Sung-lin collection in Peking dating 400 years before Christ—probably the finest piece of pewter ever found. The collection numbered 485 pieces—many of them gorgeous specimens of brass inlaid pewter—when Mrs. Hubbard recently added a pair of tea caddies shaped like lotus flowers, a lovely Chinese lantern, and two huge tea boxes set with semi-precious stones. Signatures of the makers on many of the pieces bespeak their value.

"I think I must have something Chinese in me," said Mrs. Hubbard laughing. "I have always been interested in the orient and in gardens—at least as long as I can remember. You know the culture of flowers is said to have originated in China."

And all of the personal charm and cleverness reflected in Mrs. Hubbard's house is also to be found in her garden—private since the only entrance is through the house.

"But best of all is the way people generally are taking so much more interest in their gardens," said Mrs. Hubbard. "We are rather going back to the land, it would seem. And men, they are giving so much more thought to the development of their places. It is that fine old English feeling."

Head of National Council of Women Here to Plan Fair

Nearly a hundred representatives of large organizations of women in Chicago attended the tea given yesterday in the Palmer house in honor of Miss Lena Madesin Phillips of New York, president of the National Council of Women. Miss Phillips, who is on a speaking tour to southern Illinois, outlined briefly the preliminary plans being made by the National Council for an international congress of women to be held in the Social Science building of the Century of Progress.

Photographs of English Exhibit Are Shown Here

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

With gayly tinted silk scraps, discarded stocks of wood, vivid paints and enforced leisure, the settlements have made capital out of the depression. Half an hour spent today or tomorrow at the exhibit under auspices of the League of Mothers' Clubs of the Chicago Federation of Settlements in the Hotel La Salle ballroom is sufficient to furnish all the demonstration needed as to how it was accomplished.

From the attractive and durable housedress fashioned from a flowered laundry bag; through the smart suits for little lads made from an old pongee slip for the blouse, and a sample of cloth, for the trousers; to the child's jacket snipped from an old pair of men's trousers and closed with a zipper wrested from a pair of frayed galoshes the entire assortment of "emergency sewing" and "emergency art work" represents the triumph of industry over idleness.

Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of the Northwestern University settlement, glowed with pride in the work of "our neighbors," as she called attention to this ingenious garment or that artistic ornament. There was a set of purses salvaged from bright bits of material left over in a decorator's studio. There was the sturdy wooden bed costing only $5, in the model house furnished with articles made in the settlements. There were the masterpieces of cabinet making, a polished bench and cabinet of fancy woods, intricately inlaid. To say nothing of countless pieces of lace and embroidery, pottery and brass and weaving, made by the jobless.

On the floor below, a row of booths decorated by Mexican, Bulgarian, Polish, Czecho-Slovakian, Croatian, Russian, Swedish, and other nationalities blazed with color and bizarre costumes. Rare linens and laces, tapestries and woodwork filled the space allotted to each, and in an adjoining tearoom a corps of club members in the costumes of their native lands hurried back and forth, serving dainties they learned to make in homes across the sea.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock there will be a tea in honor of the wives of the foreign consuls in Chicago, to see the exhibits of both the American and the foreign handwork. One of the most attractive pieces among the latter is the wedding dress of silk and lace worn in 1903 by Mrs. Fannie Lakomecki of 2921 Fulton street.

The exhibit will be open until tomorrow night, with programs given at 2 o'clock and at 8 o'clock each afternoon and evening.

Engagement of Miss Knode Is Announced

Will Become the Bride of Morton Conrad.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE latest romance to be made known in what seems to be a month of romances is formally expressed as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Morton Knode of 955 Green Bay road, Hubbard Woods, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Horton Conrad, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Edgar Conrad of La Grange.

Miss Knode was graduated from Westover in 1927 and from Wellesley in 1931. She made her debut in the fall of 1929 at a garden tea at which her assistants included Jean MacLeish, who is now Mrs. John Dern II.; Charlotte Picher, who has since become Mrs. Joseph Purcell Jr., and Louise Badgerow, who was married last June to Scott Dow Jr.

Since her graduation from Wellesley Miss Knode has been prominent in both the Junior league and the Service club.

Mr. Conrad was graduated from Dartmouth in 1925. The wedding will take place next June.

Plan Affairs for French Ambassador.

Now that Chicago has extended an official welcome to the new French consul, M. Rene Weiller, local French societies are all a-flutter over the prospect of entertaining the popular M. Paul Claudel, ambassador from France at Washington.

Mrs. Ralph Winston, who is a prominent and active member of L'Alliance Française, informs us that M. Claudel is to fly to Chicago on Thursday of next week in a plane put at his disposal by the war department. He is to remain in Chicago until the following Sunday and, needless to say, there will be as many lunches, teas, and dinners for him as can be crowded into the three days.

On Friday all of the French societies will combine to give a dinner for the ambassador at the Palmer house, and after the dinner there will be a reception for the French people of Chicago and their friends. Among the other affairs scheduled are a reception to be given by the Charles S. Deweys on Saturday afternoon and a dinner on Thursday night by Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes.

Mr. Dawes will, of course, take M. Claudel on a tour of the World's Fair buildings, and the ambassador's friends here will see that he is rushed about the city on trips to various points of interest. One place that he has asked particularly to be taken to is our Board of Trade.

Miss Trowbridge Nursing Courier.

If you want to get in touch with Katherine Trowbridge these days you won't find her at her parents' home in Lake Forest nor at any of the popular haunts of young people in town; in fact, the only way to communicate with the young lady is by mail, and a letter to her should be addressed care of the Frontier Nursing association at Wendover, Ky.

Miss Trowbridge, we've just learned, is the first Chicago girl to secure one of the much sought after courier jobs for the nursing service in the hills of Kentucky. She's been down there now for several weeks and is sending back letters packed with enthusiasm for the work and the country. (From another source we learn that all the members of the service in Kentucky are as delighted with Miss Trowbridge as she is with them.)

Couriers in the service of this nursing association, which gives medical aid to mothers and children in a mountainous area of 800 square miles, act as guides to visitors who are attracted to Kentucky from all parts of the world, for the association is as well known in European countries as it is in the United States. In addition to guiding guests on horseback, couriers make themselves useful in any number of odd jobs. They are eager to turn their talents to any sort of work, whether it be medical, secretarial, or just plain hard labor. The nurses down there are still talking about the eastern debutante who sat up for 48 hours with an ailing horse and saved the animal's life.

The service takes girls for courier work for periods of two months at a time, and up to the present the couriers have all been post debutantes of New York and Boston. Chicago girls have just been added to the list of applicants for the jobs, because the association has only recently established a branch here.

Require Expert Horsemanship.

The first requisite for courier service is good horsemanship, so only those girls who are expert equestriennes are eligible. The association receives far more applications for the jobs than it can handle, for the romantic flavor of the work appeals to every one who hears about it. The waiting list is a long one, as every girl who is fortunate enough to become a courier returns home with such glowing tales of her experiences that all of her hard riding friends want to sign up immediately. Right now the younger sisters of the first couriers are riding over the Kentucky mountains, and, as Mary Breckinridge, head of the association, points out, it won't be long until the daughters of the first couriers are enlisted in the service. One application is filed now for courier service in 1937, when the applicant will be 18 years old, the youngest age for admission.

Miss Trowbridge does secretarial, as well as courier, work. Her travels over the mountains will take her to every outpost of the 800 square miles covered by the association. Later in the season there will be another Chicago courier, Miss Mary McCaughey, who is to go down with Miss Sarah Davis of Philadelphia. Both girls were classmates at Ogontz.

One of the most ardent workers for the association in this vicinity is Mrs. Martin Insull, who last week sent 8 complete layettes to the Chicago office. Mrs. Insull and a group of her friends who do fine needlework make

OUR SECRET AMBITION

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Chapelle is the owner of Flaxen's Casino, near the water front of Port Bai, which was established by her first husband of dubious color, who had fathered her daughter Aya, and was the refuge of her second husband of dubious morale though unimpeachable antecedents, who had brought his little daughter Faire to the island and remained there until his death.

Malise Bookes, aid-de-camp of Sir Philip Persian, governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bai and St. Rosario, obtained an invitation for Mrs. Chapelle and her daughters to attend the government house ball. Faire's pride makes her reject the belated honor because the Chapelles had until now been left out of the ball list. Mrs. Chapelle and Aya believe it is because she doesn't want to go in their company. Faire admits to herself with misgivings the truth of their accusations. She prefers to remain in the casino, where she and Aya had been trained to work by their mother. She strolls over later to watch the gayety of the ball from a sheltered grotto in the governor's garden. She sees Mira Worcester, a faded beauty, and young Robert Grand, the governor's secretary and ward, steal away to a secret rendezvous. The governor follows them out and finds Faire. He requests her promise of secrecy regarding the incident. Faire is stung by his formal treatment of her. She overhears him tell Bookes that he is leaving at dawn for St. Rosario, where trouble is brewing. From a high knoll over the deep water Faire waves the governor a mocking farewell, but as she does she slips and falls down the cliff and is rescued from the water by Sir Philip. The governor is anxious to save his young ward from a scandal. Worcester has become suspicious and has threatened Mira. Bookes promises to save the boy by proving it was another girl and not Mira he'd been meeting. Bookes calls on the Chapelles.

FACING RUINATION.

"Yes; first of all, alone, please."

Bookes' voice was command; courteous but deadly.

"Run onto the veranda, girlies," Mrs. Chapelle fluttered maternally. The girls went out, and she and the governor's aid-de-camp were alone.

"Now," said Bookes, meeting her watchful eyes coldly, "for some months you've been selling cocaine here."

"Mr. Bookes! Never! I swear it! O, what an awful accusation! With two innocent young girls on the place——"

"My good woman." Was this the suave official who had danced with Aya the night before? "Cut out that innocent young girl stuff. It doesn't wash."

"My girlies . . ." And she stopped, seeing all at once that Malies Bookes knew—whatever might be his reason for knowing—what she knew, that her daughter Aya was not innocent. She said, sighing: "Well, we live in a modern world. Youth is youth. My girlies are far too pretty. Far too pretty. Is it their fault, or mine?"

"I said you have sold cocaine here."

"It's a darn lie."

"Now you're talking the right language. It is not a darn lie. The governor knows a lot; he can know more. See here. You make a lot of money in this place of yours. Do you want to be deported—you and your girls? Or imprisoned?"

The woman was a quaking jellyfish.

"Mr. Bookes, I swear I—I—if anything happened that shouldn't, in Flaxen's—a place started by a fine man; and run afterwards by my second husband, an English gentleman of your own class—I say, if it's so, I know nothing. I'm only a woman. I've been deceived by that black Joe and that snake Mantigua. A woman trusts——"

"Cut it out," said Bookes. "The governor is going to stop what you're doing."

"I swear if there's any goings on like you say I'll stop it myself. I should just think——"

"You're taking the money. Your Joe and your Mantigua may be in it with you. Now listen: There's not word you can say in your defense that will help you. Keep quiet and listen. The governor will stop this trade of yours, but he'll stop it quietly. He won't ruin you or deport you, or punish you in any way if we can make terms."

"Terms?" repeated Mrs. Chapelle.

Even with that stern, merciless, incorruptible brute of a governor, a bargain could, then, be made?

"I will agree to anything, Mr. Bookes, that will save my girls . . ."

"I said, listen! I want one of your girls to come with me, tonight, instantly, and to do what I tell her. And when she knows what it is, and when you know what it is, if there is a word let out by any one of you, you understand what will happen."

"O, yes! Yes! But is it my little Aya——?"

He saw mingled distrust, pleasure, cupidity, a score of surmises in her fat face. Indeed, she was thinking swiftly, if chaotically: It'll be useful to my Aya to do this feller a service; or do the governor a service. I guess we'll sit pretty after that. She asked: "What is it?"

"Will you swear the governor himself said I was to do it?"

"You don't need to know now. That I will explain to your daughter, Faire."

"Faire!"

"The other's too dark, too round in the figure," said Bookes. "Fetch the fair one."

Mrs. Chapelle waddled without more ado to the door opening to the veranda. Faire and Aya were seated side by side in a porch swing.

"Faire! Mr. Bookes wants a word with you."

Faire came in.

"You go out," said Bookes in a direct voice to Mrs. Chapelle.

For a moment, in spite of the urgency of time, Bookes was silent, looking at the girl. He wanted her. He wanted to break down the intangible proud barriers that—interested men were agreed—protected Faire Chapelle. He wanted to proclaim openly if without a word: "This girl's like the rest." He was vexed and callous, and wanted to set the stigma of Aya and of Ma Chapelle upon her garment of exquisite pride. As Faire met his eyes she knew these things that were in his mind.

"Listen to me, Faire," said Bookes rapidly, "the governor wants a service of you."

"The governor?" And he saw her eyes blaze and she poised herself eagerly. "Yes?"

He was surprised, and further vexed with her. "You'd do anything for Sir Philip, I see. You look high, don't you?"

Faire made no answer except a curled lip, and he went on roughly: "Look here. You're to impersonate some one tonight—or rather it is not exactly an impersonation. You've to obey orders."

"Sir Philip's?"

He let that slip. "Come with me at once."

"If I don't choose to?"

He opened the screen door to the veranda.

Mrs. Chapelle almost tumbled into the room, loud, vociferous, sobbing, shaking her fists.

"Faire, if you stand there like a dam' mule and see us all ruined——"

Aya ran in. "Faire, mammy says if you don't do what Mr. Bookes asks we'll be deported. We'll go to prison. We'll be shot or something. Faire, you gotta—gotta——"

"What is it?" Faire breathed.

Bookes stood aside to let the hysterical abuse and cajoling and threats and prayers of the other women break about Faire Chapelle like an island storm. But he watched her face, and saw it quiver and soften, respond and surrender. And stepping forward he took her arm in his hand:

"No time to lose."

"Save us, Faire. Save us, darlin'. We'd sure save you. . . ."

They were ascending very quickly the narrow path between palms and casuarinas, the man and girl, he gripping her arm, full of his temper for destruction. "You understand," he said, after he had talked low and quietly into her ear as they hurried on, "You're to be found with Grand in the empty bungalow. You'll wear the cloak Lady Mira assures me she's worn for these expeditions and for no other. It's the cloak the spies who've watched have seen. When you're discovered you'll back Grand up, if it's necessary, swearing you've met him there all the other nights that come under suspicion."

"Do you swear—will you swear, then—that the governor himself said I was to do it?"

She could have sobbed; and did not. Her pride was in rage. So . . . through all her dreams—and she had dreamed—through all her secret hope that Persian, looking at her, had known, "she is different," this was how he thought of her, when at length he had cause to think. She was just a girl of no repute—like Aya—who could be suitably picked on to do this thing.

"The governor has instructed me," said Bookes shortly.

"Listen!" she cried under her breath as he hurried her on, "I'm not like that. Not like you want to make me. And you know it."

"My dear, I know what you are." He felt the furious tug of her slender arm away from his hand and held the tighter. "We won't talk nonsense. You can ruin or save your family as you like. God! What does it matter to you? It's nothing! It'll add interest to your already interesting personality."

She was not listening. She thought not so much of her stepmother and Aya, although she must, of course, save them if save them she could, as of the governor. She could see his hard face and light gray eyes keen in it as he bent over her where she lay in the bottom of the police boat at dawn. Her head still ached from the injury of that adventure. She could feel, in place of Malise Bookes' hand, Persian's quick sure hands lifting her. And he had answered her strange, her wild question . . .

But now he did this to her. Why fight? Argue? Resist? As if it mattered now! Yet she stammered breathlessly:

"Why must it be so?"

"Because," said Bookes through his teeth, "you are the build and color of Lady Mira Worcester. And, if you want to know, you're such a clever girl. You keep yourself so quiet, keep yourself to yourself, eh? You aren't seen around like your sister. She might have a dozen alibis. But you—it's easy to believe you were with Grand if you weren't seen anywhere else. You're deep, aren't you? I admire it. I admire you, Faire. Don't let's have any dam' nonsense. You won't put it over me. Tomorrow morning every man on this island will be wild with interest about you! They'll admire you like I do for your quietness. You can start quite a career."

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Mac Thomas, aged 5, was busy playing with his trains on the living room floor while the elders were discussing and comparing various noted men of our country.

Apparently Mac Thomas had been all ears, for suddenly he looked up from his play and said, "O, but daddy, St. Patrick was a better man than Fourth of July."

L. J. J.

In our house, when spoons, knives or forks fall, we say, "company is coming."

One day Frankie, age 3, fell off his stool with a thud. Although he had tears in his eyes and was on the verge of crying, he called sadly, "company's comin'."

Sophistication and Childhood Don't Agree

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"You don't know
How much I lu-hu-huve you,
When I look at you
I'm thri-hill-hilled,"

She sang, in a husky voice, gazing into his eyes. He looked at her, smiling in a sheepish and rather bewildered way.

"Now, give me a kiss," she said. But she had to do the kissing as well as the courting. He was obviously unaccustomed—shorter than she and younger.

To be exact, he was 5 and she was about 6 and they were standing in front of the microphone! You couldn't help smiling—it was funny to hear the song of thrills and love and kisses issuing from the little girl's mouth. But it was a smile that you felt fading before it got very far. It was just so all out of place.

I know a woman whose husband died and left her with a baby boy but without a penny. She struggled along, growing thinner and more worried, while the little son waxed strong and beautiful and incredibly winning.

"Why don't you put that child in the movies?" her friends would say. "He'd make your fortune—and solve all your financial difficulties. You could educate him marvelously," etc.

She was tempted again and again. And then she'd look at that unspoiled, wholesome darling of hers and she was afraid.

Avoid surface sophistication for your little boy or girl.

There's a time coming for the sophisticated thing—there's a time when doing things for public audiences may be suitable and not just the fostering of what we call exhibitionism.

Styles Accept Authors' View of Fashions

The Well Dressed Girl Will Wear Cuffs.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SHEER white cuffs and collar on a dark dress seem to be the popular masculine conception of what's what in fashion, especially in books . . . whoever read any other description of a properly well dressed heroine! And how they stress the fact that the collar and cuffs were always crisp, spotlessly white and seductively simple, dismissing the dress with one or two unimaginative and overworked adjectives.

No fashionwise female ever forgets this interesting male predilection for collar and cuffs, too many of us spend countless hours having a ripping time getting them out and sewing the second choice in. But from now on the smart sewer uses pins, saving time, temper and talk. Bibs have arrived . . . collars that are literally bibs, to dress up a plain dark dress.

Salespersons will probably giggle . . . masculine chuckles will be heard, but you will buy them and wear them for they are as new and smart and becoming as all weary sewer-inners can want. Some are of pique, expansively white, with truly infantile tapes to tie them at the back of your neck.

Embroidered Names Used.

If the sister racket ruins your peace of mind and pieces of wardrobe, you can buy bibs with your name coyly embroidered at the side. Some of them look like white pique dickies, wide and reaching to your beltline . . . these could supply comedy relief to a stern and tailored dark frock or suit.

Pampered darlings will find silk bibs, lace, befrilled bibs . . . bibs with embroidery, tucks, tatting, crochet or fagoting, each with matching cuffs, three piece sets that will completely rejuvenate the oldest frock in your wardrobe. And you even buy the baby pins to fasten the things on!

When bibs toddled in to fashion in Chicago shops . . . new blouses were ready to give them snappy competition . . . besides breaking the baby's bank to buy bibs, you'll use a good share of a grownup allowance for blouses that are new and short and full of sprightly ideas in color and stripe.

Whoever would think that a small woman would ever wear seersucker cotton, that crinkled kind of cotton that doesn't crave a hot or even cold pressing to make a well laundered appearance . . . for now it is smart to be wrinkled when a new blouse is selected.

All Sleeves Are Short.

Sleeves are short whatever fabric is used, linen, cotton, silk, sheer woolens, rough cotton weaves or jersies, as well as wool and cotton lacey effects. Pique waistcoats, trimly tailored with rows of bright buttons and deftly inserted pockets were designed especially for all kinds of street suits. Silk plaids, rather wild and hectic for good Scotch ancestry, will transform the darkest suit and weather. Red dots are warm spots on a white thin silk blouse that would go around all day long with the right blue or black suit.

There are so many white blouses that almost every one can have a different model, sleeveless, short sleeved, and long sleeves . . . plain tailored models, the dressup kind and the ones your wear anywhere . . . all priced so moderately that only the hard to heed "still, small voice" need guide you.

Jealous Wife Fails to Win Any Sympathy

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She is 29 and has been married two years. At times she feels like taking her life. There is a sick feeling in her heart all of the time. She is insanely jealous of her husband. She admits she feels like killing him when he lies to her. He lies and lies. He is out night after night, not working, just hanging around with men who can't be of any good to him. He doesn't like to work.

His father gives him money to spend, so he doesn't have to worry about his own spending money. When first married he was devoted and spent every night with his wife. Now he seems nervous and bored. She accuses him of having some one else. He says there isn't any one. She does not believe him, because he lies.

He thinks they should have a child. She says, "Not until we can rear it properly." She wonders why she can't hate a man who is so irresponsible—and sneaky about little things.

Why wouldn't a husband sneak out nights to avoid the company of a woman like that? What is there to offer to make life at home interesting for him? A woman with suicide and murder in her heart isn't a fit companion for any one. A woman with a sick feeling in her heart all the time should look for the trouble in that heart of hers—not in her husband's actions.

There is something sinfully weak and characterless about any one who wallows in unhappiness to the point of suicidal thoughts. No matter what her environment, such a woman would be the same painful weight on a man's neck.

No, lady, if you were looking for sympathy, you don't get it. What you need is a good stiff kick in the you-know-what-and-where! Of course, the man lies and lies. You drive him into it with your suspicious distrust and your accusations. You'll drive him into an affair, too. He can't very well escape being made after your own image of him. How about that child? Are you honestly postponing its arrival for the child's sake, or your own? I'll wager the latter.

Anyway, lady, there is something radically and woefully wrong with your style of wife-ing it, with your managing of the man. And you'd better shake yourself out of gloom and hate pronto or the evil genie will prompt you to action.

Expert Declares Eggs Properly Fried Are Not Hard to Digest

BY MARY MEADE.

It would almost seem as though the hens are conscious of present world financial conditions and are trying to better them by an over-production of eggs. For, even in this pre-Easter season when eggs generally prove most dear, they are cheaper than they have been in many a year.

It would also seem as though my theme song, together with other nutritionists, is "An egg a day for every one." But eggs are important, and as they supply readily digested protein, iron, phosphorous, and most of the vitamins, they deserve our consideration. The yolk of the egg is more nutritious than the white because it is the container of the minerals and vitamins.

Much has been said about fried eggs. They have been frequently maligned as being indigestible. Yet fried eggs are enjoyed and preferred by most men. The opinion has been formed from poorly fried foods, particularly eggs which emerge from the frying pan hard, frizzled, and tough. Like most proteins, eggs should be cooked at a low temperature, and this is true of fried eggs as well as soft and hard cooked ones.

To be properly fried, eggs should be well surrounded by fat in the pan over a low flame, and they should be covered. The covering insures the cooking of the egg, half by steam, and the other half by frying. The white then coagulates into a jellylike substance, and the yolk is golden and barely filmed. Such a cooked egg need not be avoided by any adult, and it has all the delicious "fried" flavor that the old style cooking evolved.

Due to the fact that eggs are rather bland in flavor, they may be happily combined with other foods to mutual advantage. You may use vegetables, meats, or fish in the combinations. Scalloped eggs in ramekins provide a good luncheon dish. Grease the ramekins before using and lay a layer of flaked salmon in each. Then add a layer of chopped hard cooked eggs, a layer of crumbs, white sauce, chopped stuffed olives, and a layer of a ready-to-eat cereal. Repeat until all the ingredients have been used. Season each layer as you go along and then place the ramekins in a moderate oven for about fifteen minutes, or until the crumbs are a crisp golden brown. For this recipe, use the following proportions to a No. 1 can of salmon: Two hard cooked eggs, one cup of bread crumbs, one cup of white sauce, one-half cup of chopped stuffed olives, four tablespoons of a ready-to-eat cereal, one teaspoon of salt, and a pinch of pepper.

For tomorrow's luncheon we are suggesting the baked eggs in tomato shells. This is a dish both attractive and nourishing, besides being easy to prepare if you are planning to take the afternoon off after luncheon.

BAKED EGGS IN TOMATO SHELLS.

6 eggs.
¼ teaspoon of salt.
Pinch of pepper.
1 tablespoon of butter.
1 cup of ready-to-eat cereal.

Wash thoroughly but do not peel them. Cut out the stem ends and centers of the tomatoes. Drop one egg in each shell. Season with salt, pepper, and butter. Sprinkle a little of a ready-to-eat cereal over each egg. Place the tomatoes in a casserole or baking dish and bake in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit] for about twenty-five minutes, or until the eggs are cooked. If you prefer your eggs less hard, shorten the time of cooking to please your own taste. This amount will serve six people.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Alden R. Ludlow and their debutante daughter, Miss Alicia Ludlow, sailed on the Aquitania for a Mediterranean cruise.

Mrs. Theron R. Strong and Mrs. George E. Wood will return from Mexico on Tuesday.

Mrs. Balfour S. Crain gave a luncheon yesterday at the Ritz-Carlton for Mrs. F. Graham Cootes.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Guthrie will sail March 22 on the Ile de France.

Mrs. Donald Worthington has left for Venice, Fla.

Will Become the Bride of Morton Conrad.

the entire layettes by hand. The baby clothes are so far superior to the ones the average frontier mother is accustomed to that they are awarded only to the women who are most likely to care for and appreciate them. They are looked upon as prizes in the frontier district, and there is much competition for them.

Junior League Social Service

The Junior league will hold a special meeting and luncheon tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at the Petit Gourmet to discuss the benefits of personal contacts in welfare work. The principal speakers will be Mrs. Leah Taylor, head resident at the Chicago Commons and president of the National Federation of Settlements; and Miss Agnes Van Driel, secretary of the school of sociology at Loyola university. Both these women will stress in their talks the need of personal service and individual interest in the cases a social worker encounters.

Their speeches will be followed by two minute talks by six Junior league members who will tell highlights of their own experiences in social agencies. Mrs. Ewing Webb will talk of her volunteer work at the Northwestern university clinic; Miss Betty Knode will represent the Juvenile court; Miss Harriet Leonard, the motor corps division of the Children's Memorial hospital; Miss Alice May Dickinson, the Joint Emergency Relief clothing distribution department; Mrs. William B. Pierce, St. Luke's clinic, and Mrs. Roger Q. White, the United Charities. The league president, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, will preside.

Maurice Hindus Will Speak.

The League of Women Voters is counting on the drawing power of Maurice Hindus to fill Orchestra hall when he speaks there on Wednesday evening, March 16, under the league's auspices. Mr. Hindus, who attracted the largest audience the Council of Foreign Relations ever assembled when he spoke before that organization about a year ago, is considered an authority on Russia. He returned just a few weeks ago from his ninth trip to that country since the revolution, and the league is confident that his talk will be enlightening on the latest developments over there. Mrs. Gerhardt Meyne is general chairman of the program and Mrs. Grant Laing is chairman of the box sale. Mrs. William G. Hibbard is assisting Mrs. Laing with the boxes and is also acting in the capacity of an ardent publicity chairman.

Among those who have made reservations for boxes are Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, Mrs. Walter Borden, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, and Miss Madeleine Newell.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. L. Curtis sailed Saturday on the California for a cruise which will take them first to Havana and then through the Panama canal to California.

Infant Welfare Campaign.

The Highland Park-Ravinia center of the Infant Welfare society will open its annual drive for contributions on March 21. The committee in charge has far more than the usual calls for help this year and is hoping that Highland Parkers will contribute generously toward the fund that buys food and cod liver oil for infants of needy parents.

Prof. and Mrs. Quincy Wright, Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, Mrs. Amos W. Walker, Mrs. Ralph Winston, and Mr. and Mrs. George Packard are among those who have made reservations for the annual luncheon of the League of Nations association to be held at 12:30 o'clock today at the Hotel La Salle. Ben M. Cherrington, head of the University of Denver Foundation of Social Sciences, will be the speaker. Victor Elting will preside.

Mrs. Edward T. Jeffery of 1344 Astor street will open her residence at 10:45 o'clock this morning for a talk by Miss Julie R. Adams on "Australia and New Zealand."

Slim Waistlines Are One of Fashion's New Spring Edicts

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The great indoor sport of the French dressmakers, it would seem, is shifting the waistline. Shifting it in such a way, too, that it will never be located exactly where nature intended! One thing you can count on is that the waistline of the dress and the natural waistline of the body shall never be found in happy embrace. You're much more likely to find the smart season's waistline 'way up under the arms or away down around the knees.

The season ahead of us finds the waistline wandering again—on the up and up, so to speak. It is several inches higher than last year's peak. High waisted dresses with large and dressy sleeves and such ultrafeminine additional touches as the old-fashioned fichu are the latest fashion events, with their shadows already well cast.

All of which means that the waistline will have no unemployment problem this year. It will, indeed, represent a perfect beehive of female industry, for the success of the season's costuming is going to revolve largely around that slim and flattened waist area. The larger the sleeves and the more fussy the neckline, the neater must be the waist and hipline.

Whether or not the new styles are a clever trick to get women to spend money doesn't matter. We'll spend if last year's dress that we intended to make "do" for sweet depression's sake, looks like something dragged out of the attic. And what's more we [most of us] will work to get that planed silhouette line demanded for wear under the high waisted dressline.

In no other part of the anatomy is there so definitely marked dividing line between youth and maturity as in that midsector. With the new inch or two hike of the dress waistline that difference will be still more marked. That bulge of flesh above the natural waistline in front is, in mature circles, what the third chin is to the neck. And like the third chin, it can be prevented and it can be eliminated.

Diet, of course, is necessary. Exercise is imperative to keep the fat from reforming after each weighing. Exercise, too, for the supple, limber quality of youth. If you don't know any good waist exercises, send to me for those I have in printed form.

Good morning!

TWO Barrymores! Now THERE'S an embarrassment of riches!

No matter what you think of story, direction, photography, or supporting players, there's no getting round the fact that one Barrymore brother in a picture can do a heap toward making that film—whatever else it may or may not possess—worthy of attention. Corral two of them in the same cinema and star dust will blind your eyes to a multitude of imperfections.

For not one moment during the unreeling of "Arsene Lupin" are you unresponsive to these two dynamic personalities. Lionel I consider the more expert technician as a rule, but this trip there are sure no flies on John. The former as the shrewd, resourceful old French police hound Guerchard, and the latter as his quarry, that silken master criminal, Arsene Lupin, keep you sitting with eyes agog, ears pricked, and mind working, despite your realization that the picture in itself is not so Hot-cha.

What's the big fault? The answer is—little ones—poor continuity, ordinary direction, sparkless dialogue, and a sort of dragged-in-by-the-tail romance which hampers John a bit, though it in no way discourages his brilliantly merry portrayal of Monsieur Lupin, whose criminal career closes as you and the Crime Commission would wish.

Supporting players acquit themselves adequately.

Let's hope that the Barrymore Brothers do not soon dissolve partnership.

"BEHIND THE MASK."

Directed by John Francis Dillon.
Presented at the Castle theater.

THE CAST.

Henderson .....Boris Karloff

Scary little melodrama, this, built of popular hokum.

The excitement starts in a penitentiary and gathers momentum as you accompany an ace federal secret service man on his quest to locate the brains behind a band of dope smugglers. A sinister doctor and his more than sinister nurse accomplice are the chief horror exhibits, and a pretty girl and her helpless, fated father furnish the romance and pity angles.

Shootings, flying trips, the operating room of a private hospital and a grave yard on a da-ark and sto-hormy night are features dripping with sensationalism. But at last all the agony's over and the finale presages one of those marriages spoken of as "made in heaven."

Suspense is effectively maintained, though, if you're smart like I am, you'll spot the "master mind" along in about the—well, let's see—third reel, I'd say.

The acting is all nicely calculated to make your hair stand on end, and the director did well with his makin's.

So, if you feel that way, the Castle theater, this week, is a satisfactory place in which to linger and shiver awhile.

See you tomorrow!

Gieseking Plays Piano Recital of Charm, Sparkle

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Walter Gieseking, the possessor of one of the most highly trained and efficient sets of fingers now in existence, gave a piano recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon. In addition to a technic that charms by its infallibility and its sparkle, he is a musician of ideas. He plays Bach with authority, he brings out the dignified sonority of Beethoven like a master, he projects the major Chopin of the Barcarolle and the miniature Chopin of the Berceuse with equal facility. Likewise, he makes exquisite beauty out of his own transcription of Richard Strauss' "Serenade," when many another pianist has found nothing but bad luck in it.

Chicago composers had considerable showing in the two piano recital of Alvena Reckzeh and Kathryn Anderson at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon. Louis Victor Saar was represented by his transcription of Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in D minor; there was a melodious and agreeable suite, "At Hampton Court," by William Lester, dedicated to the artists who played it; Adolf Brune contributed a "Rigaudon," and Carl Beecher of Northwestern university a work called "The Jester." The artists are good pianists and well versed in the art of ensemble playing.

Later in the afternoon the Beethoven trio continued its series of chamber music at the Cordon club, playing trios by Beethoven and Brahms, and featuring two movements of a similar work by Sebastian Victor Tufigno, the violinist of the organization. It is melodious in character and carefully written, and was played in the same painstaking manner that was given the more famous compositions surrounding it.

Harold Kreutzberg, one of the finest of the male dancers, brought himself and his dancing group back to Orchestra hall Saturday night. Several new dances were introduced here, but in general his fame rests upon the brilliant episodes introduced earlier in the season and repeated. Of these there can be no doubt.

THE STAGE

Fred Stone will end his engagement in "Smiling Faces" at the Grand Opera house next Saturday night, thus dropping one week out of his Chicago schedule. This arrangement will permit him to fulfill a contract for a week in Detroit and also to follow his custom of giving no performances during Holy week.

The next booking at the Grand Opera house will be the musical comedy of Broadway reputation called "Everybody's Welcome," with Frances Williams, Oscar Shaw and Ann Pennington as leading entertainers. Its première is set for Sunday, March 27, and it represents the only Easter opening on the Chicago stage calendar as thus far arranged.

G. P. Huntley Jr. has taken over from Rex O'Malley the rôle of the jealous match-making friend in "Experience Unnecessary," the comedy now at the Harris theater under the auspices of the Dramatic league. He is the son and namesake of a famous comedian of the London stage who died five years ago, shortly after an appearance here in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

The junior Huntley came to Chicago in 1924 with Cyril Maude in "Aren't We All?" and has had four engagements here since then. His most recent visit was with Jane Cowl in "Art and Mrs. Bottle."

S. Hurok, the impresario who recently brought Yascha Yushny's Russian "Blue Bird" revue to the Studebaker theater, announces that next fall he will import an Italian marionette company called the Teatro dei Piccoli. The repertory of this troupe of puppet players includes light opera, revue, ballets, burlesque sketches and vaudeville.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This smart frock was made in a diagonal woolen, in the smart new deep blue shade that has a sapphire cast, and the collar was a sheer wool crêpe in beige. The diagonal lines of both bodice and skirt are an aid to that slender appearance we all like, and the sleeves are prettily treated at the wrists. Black Canton-faille crêpe silk with white for the collar is delightfully smart for spring wear.

The pattern, 3447, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

How many times have you taken the wrong key from a bunch and tried to put it into the lock? You've done this several hundred times, I wager, and yet I do not believe that once out of those several hundred times, instead of trying another key, you've put the whole bunch in your pocket and gone off for the night to a neighboring hotel.

Yet you as a bridge player will very likely do this precise thing. Your partner will make a bid. The hand on your right will pass. And, being unable to either take out or assist your partner's bid you will let the matter go at that and pass. In other words, your partner tried the wrong key the first time and you simply stopped there. It never occurred to you to think that perhaps your partner had a second key that he would like to try if you would give him a chance. Let us look at yesterday's play-a-problem:

♥—9,8,7,4,3
♦—A,5,2
♣—J,6,5,2

WEST [dealer] EAST
♠—K,9,8,4,3 ♠—A,7,6
♥—A,K,10,2 ♥—Q,6
♦—K,4 ♦—J,10,8,7,6

SOUTH
♠—Q,J,5,2
♥—J,5
♣—K,Q,10,9

Now here West dealt and bid one heart. Ordinarily West would have bid a spade, since a five card suit is generally preferred to a four, but the four here had such strong top strength and the five is so very weak on top that West reversed the usual rule and showed the four first. North passed. Now let us look at East's hand. East has no take-out, and he cannot assist the hand. He has neither adequate support for the heart bid nor has he got assistance.

Now most Easts with this type of hand would simply pass, allowing the partner to flounder around and perhaps make his one heart and perhaps get set. This East, however, knew that his partner might have a second key to open the door to a game. He therefore used one of the most useful of all bids, which is called the no trump shift. This bid in this position does not show strength. It merely shows a minimum holding of seven no trump count. This is precisely what East had, and he therefore bid one no trump to give his partner a second chance. South passed. West now bid two spades, North passed, and East can support the spades. In addition, his two little hearts now are worth one-half trick as a side short suit. With the knowledge that his partner has a two-suiter, which is stronger than the usual distribution, East now feels justified in showing that he can assist his partner in the spade suit by a bid of three spades. After South's pass West promptly went to four spades. West is, of course, perfectly justified in this rebid, since he holds in his own hand four high card tricks, and with the equivalent of one in East's hand there should be a game between the two hands.

The play was simple enough. North opened the ♣ 2, dummy played the 7, South the Q, and West took with the A. West then led the ♣ 3 to dummy's ♠ A. Dummy led back the ♦ J, South played the Q, West the K, and North came up with the A. North led back the ♣ 5, which South took with the K, South leading back the ♣ 10, which West trumped with the ♠ 4. West now led the ♦ 4 to dummy's 10, and led back the ♠ 7 from dummy, South playing the 5 and West the 8. West then played the ♠ K. He then led the ♥ 2 to dummy's Q, leading back the ♥ 6 from dummy, on which South's J fell and West took the trick with the ♥ K. With the exception of one trump trick that West now gives to South, the rest of the tricks go to East and West for four odd and their game.

♠—8,5
♦—A

WEST EAST
♠—K,3,2 ♠—7,6
♥—A,7,4,2 ♥—J,10,6
♦—K,J,4,3 ♦—10,9,6,5,2

SOUTH
♠—A,Q,J,10,9,4
♥—9,8
♣—K,Q

Bid and play this hand and compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Eight thousand Blackhawk fans who braved the wintry blasts last night were rewarded with what undoubtedly was the best hockey game of the season at the Stadium.

They saw the Hawks defeat the New York Rangers, 4 to 3, in seventy minutes of spirited competition, which omitted nothing, not excepting a fist fight, in which the participants were Paul Thompson of the Hawks, and Doug Brennan of the Rangers.

The victory would have been sufficient in itself, for it was the first the Hawks have scored against the Broadway representatives this year. The Rangers had won three of the five games previously played, the other two ending in ties.

Hawks Strengthen Position.

The triumph also aided the Hawks in hanging onto second place in the American division, for the New York Americans held Detroit to a tie last night.

The Chicagoans took a 2 to 0 lead in the second period on two goals by Vic Ripley, both compiled in the amazing time of 15 seconds. Then the Rangers came back and with Siebert and Bun Cook doing the honors, tied the score with two goals in one minute. These four goals were achieved in a space of three minutes.

When Brennan made it 3 to 2 in the third period, it seemed the Ranger jinx was going to endure. Young Mush March and Louie Holmes had other ideas, however, and tied the score just when it appeared the Hawks were licked.

Tommy Cook and Captain Cyclone Wentworth joined the hero list with half the overtime period gone, Tommy driving the winning goal in on a pass from Cyclone.

If the Rangers had any intentions of outspeeding the Hawks, they were disagreeably surprised in the first ten minutes of the opening period. The New Yorkers started off as though they wished to make a half dozen goals immediately, but the Hawks turned the tables on them.

Ching Gets Rough.

All three of the Chicago lines assailed Roach with a vengeance, but failed to score. Johnson and Somers shared the customers' attention, doing considerable bumping, and Ching at one time seemed about to annihilate Gottselig, much to the customers' concern, although he was not even reprimanded for same.

Both teams redoubled their efforts to such an extent in the second period that the customers wondered whether they had seen such spirited hockey before.

The Hawks sent their partisans into hysteria by scoring two goals in 15 seconds. Midway through the period George Boucher took the puck up the ice and passed to Ripley for an easy shot in 9:55. Vic also delivered the second goal in a similar manner, except that Couture started the drive which led to the score in 10:10. Both were achieved with Brennan of the Rangers in the penalty box.

Rangers Get Two.

The Rangers were left somewhat dizzy by this speedy performance, but soon recovered enough to tie the score with a pair of goals in one minute. The speedy Siebert was finally rewarded for his diligence in solo attacks, when one of these rushes ended with Gardiner out of the cage and the puck in it. Then the brothers Cook and Frank Boucher made it 2 to 2, Bun scoring on a combination pass from Bill and Frank in 12:45.

The boys curtailed the checking in the third period, but failed to slow down their speed and the puck was on a non-stop schedule from cage to cage.

Presently there was weeping and

Wooden of Purdue to Seek Big 10 Scoring Record Tonight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Western conference basketball season ends tonight. First and last places already have been decided, and although tonight's schedule of four games involves six of the teams in the middle section of the standings, there is little opportunity for change in the present order.

JOHNNY WOODEN.

Purdue is the champion, regardless of the outcome of its contest tonight with Chicago at Lafayette. Since Chicago has lost ten games and holds undisputed possession of last place, there is no occasion to doubt that the Boilermakers will finish with 11 victories and one defeat, the same average Northwestern compiled in winning the 1931 title.

The game will mark the final appearance of Purdue's co-captains, Harry Kellar and Johnny Wooden. Wooden retains a chance of breaking the Big Ten individual scoring record for the season. By scoring 15 points against Northwestern, Wooden brought his season total to 133 points in eleven games, and if he can duplicate the performance he will pass the present mark of 147 points set by Branch McCracken of Indiana in 1930.

Wildcats Lose Chance to Tie.

Northwestern and Iowa finished their campaigns Saturday night. The Wildcats, with a chance to tie for the championship, were beaten by Purdue, 31 to 17, while Iowa lost an overtime game on its own floor to Minnesota, 24 to 22. This was the score of the first contest between these quintets.

Minnesota's victory keeps it in the running for a tie for second place, provided, of course, the Gophers defeat Wisconsin tonight at Madison.

If Michigan can whip Ohio State for a second time tonight it will have undisputed possession of fourth place, or a tie for third with Minnesota in case Wisconsin wins from the Gophers.

The 1932 season so far has provided only three major upsets. In the main it has served only to verify the almost unanimous predictions of the fans that Purdue had the best team in the conference. The first of these upsets was Illinois, 28 to 21, victory over Purdue.

Iowa, Chicago Score Surprises.

No other team was able to duplicate Illinois' feat unless Chicago can do what seems impossible. It will be remembered that Illinois last year was the only quintet to defeat Northwestern, the champion.

The second upset of the year was Iowa's triumph over Northwestern, 30 to 25. The other, and most surprising of all, was Chicago's defeat of Ohio State, 29 to 26, to escape the ignominy of a string of zeros.

Northwestern may feel downhearted at losing the title, but the size of the Purdue victories over the Wildcats must have convinced them the Boilermakers are champions.

Purdue Is Point a Minute Team.

Purdue has scored a point a minute in five of its eleven games. The Boilermakers hold the scoring record for the season, 49 points in the first game against Indiana, and the team in eleven games has scored 412 points. Only two teams have had fewer points scored by opponents. Purdue's record for the season, including nonconference games, will read 17 victories and 1 defeat if it beats Chicago tonight.

BABE RUTH TO BE GOLF TEACHER? HO-HO; ALSO HAW!

Just What Would He Use for Customers?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Babe Ruth has reached that stage of life at which a man begins saying farewell to his public at so much per bow, but there need be no immediate alarm about this because there is nothing legally binding about a farewell performance, or a simple announcement of an intention to resign. If there were, I suppose I could dig me up a lawyer from under some rock and sue the Babe in the courts for a large sum of money, alleging that he did wilfully attempt to deceive me one day in St. Louis about 18 months ago.

On that day—and I have witnesses to prove it—as we were riding out to the ball yard, the Babe said the season of 1931 would be his last as a baseball player. He had put by a lot of money in a type of insurance policy which would support him and his in luxurious ease forever, he was tired of the monotony of baseball and satisfied with his record and, anyway, having experienced every other sensation, he just wanted to see how it would feel to quit.

Pegler Wins a Mental Wager.

He went on for quite a spell in that strain, but as he did not at any time use the word "positively" I made a mental wager with myself that the Babe would be playing ball not only two years hence, but also five years hence. I still think I have a good wager and do not wish to sell any part of it, even though he has been toying with the idea again in a conversation with my friend, Mr. Marshall [Big Words] Hunt, the baseball correspondent down south there in St. Petersburg.

The Babe told Big Words that if the Yankees won another pennant this year he, the Babe, having then played in ten world series, would bow himself out and go into the golf business as an instructor and exhibition player. This would be a lot of nonsense because you can buy yourself a big slew of the best golf instruction on the market for $10 asked, $2 bid and close at $4.45, part cash, in the present state of the golf instruction industry and, as for exhibitions, why the answer is simply ho-ho-ho how very comical.

Should Have Golfed Before.

The question naturally would arise, "What are you going to use for customers in these exhibitions?" And that would be a trick question, because there never was any very good and proper answer to it and nowadays there is no answer at all.

The Babe did not overlook many business opportunities at the height of his career, but one that he did overlook was the golf exhibition business, there having been at that time a large element of winter league loafers with nothing more pressing to do than lie around the down south swimming resorts, scratching their sunburn and wondering what in the world they could do to get rid of a little more money. They would have been grateful for a chance to pay $5 per head to watch the Babe whang a few of his interesting tee shots, although I doubt that many of them ever would have witnessed any of his mashie shots or his putts, because nobody has yet invented a revolving golf course which will bring the play to the patrons.

It's All Changed Now.

They were very tired at all times and beside this, they shunned anything, even any pleasure, which entailed even an appearance of physical effort, feeling that effort, such as walking personally, on foot, after a golf match, was unseemly and likely to cause gossip. Possibly they would have sent their butlers or their footmen out to perform the menial work of walking after the Babe on his exhibition rounds for them, or a new and specialized class of servants might have come into being, called golf

Giants Pound Rookie Pitcher in Tenth; Defeat Cubs, 6 to 3

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 6.—The Cubs didn't do so well today in the second of their two game series with the Giants. The island fairly swarmed with tourists who stopped for a look at the struggle, and the Chicagoans naturally were trying to do their best. But when an emergency arose Manager Hornsby had to employ a rookie pitcher and the assignment was too much for the youngster, Abe Miller, recruited from the Shreveport club. The New York clique hopped on him for three runs in the tenth inning and then dashed to the boat, carrying with them a 6 to 3 decision.

LYLE TINNING.

Miller was summoned for work in the tenth after Pitchers Lyle Tinning, Johnny Welch and Leroy Herrmann had acquitted themselves in acceptable fashion. The first man Miller had to pitch to was Freddie Lindstrom, who doubled to right. This was such a shock to Miller that he passed Leslie and Jackson with an out in between. Then Eddie Marshall tripled into deep center field and everybody went home, including the 5,000 spectators.

The Giants, under the temporary management of Dave Bancroft, John McGraw having gone to see the ponies at Agua Caliente, showed the Cubs so much left handed pitching that it was embarrassing. Carl Hubbell worked in the first three innings and Bill Walker followed him for a stay of equal length. The Cubs produced only four hits against the pair. That made them familiar with left handers, so when Jim Mooney came along they gave him such a gleeful reception that he remained for only two innings. They scored three runs off him to tie the score, but then allowed old man Señor Adolfo Luque to fool them in the ninth and tenth.

There were a few Cub happenings, such as costly errors by Stanley Hack and Billy Herman, that didn't sit so well with Manager Hornsby, but these little things were offset considerably by what Tinning accomplished. Tinning hails from the Des Moines club and since training started has been the hand-picked choice of the assembled experts. He looked the part today.

Hurls Three Hitless Innings.

For three innings the Giants couldn't collect a hit off Tinning. In the fourth, however, Herman's error caused sufficient disturbance to give the Giants half of two runs. Their only other tally, barring the three in tenth, was registered in the seventh when Hack blundered behind Welch.

RING FANS PICK GOLDEN GLOVES LIGHT HEAVIES

175 Pounders Steal Spotlight in Finals.

BY FRENCH LANE.

For some reason many Golden Glove fans, an army of which will gather in the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night for the finals of THE TRIBUNE'S fifth annual tournament, expect the greatest fireworks in the light heavyweight decision.

Maybe it is because Dave Maier, a Golden Glove graduate, is getting a chance at a world's light heavyweight championship in the same arena on the night of March 18. Maier will be the first Golden Glove boxer ever to fight for a world's professional title.

Still, Maier might not have created all the added interest. More than likely a chap named Max Marek has a good deal to do with it. For this 18 year old boxer who was one of the outstanding high school full backs in Chicago football last year, has fought his way up in the Golden Glove competition in a manner that has made him one of the sensations of the tournament.

Four Good Punchers.

Besides Marek there is Adolph Winter of Green Bay, Wis., who has lost but one fight in his life, the first he ever engaged in. In the same title bracket are Floyd Jones, a railroad car repairer from Peoria, and Vernon Miller, a farmer boy from Davenport. Jones and Miller demonstrated terrific punching power in their early bouts in the Tournament of Champions.

Marek represents St. Rita parish of the Catholic Youth organization, and if he wins a place on the Chicago team, which fights the New York champions in Madison Square Garden, he will almost equal the globe trotting efforts of one J. Dempsey.

Marek, just fresh from the Lindblom High school football team, began fighting as a middleweight in the sectionals of the Catholic Youth Organization tournament early last winter. He wound up as the middleweight champion. Then he was a member of the C. Y. O. team which visited California. He whipped his man on the Pacific coast.

Marek Puts On Weight.

Back in Chicago, he began to train for the Golden Gloves. He took on weight, however, and found the task of making 160 pounds so difficult, he decided to fight as a light heavyweight. While he fights at only about 164 pounds, he has been just as much a sensation against the 175 pounders as he formerly was against the middleweights.

He can punch and he can box and he is one of those boring in fellows who has the crowd with him from the first bell.

Winter is a member of the Milwaukee team. He has rolled up 16 straight victories, eight of them knockouts. The knockout records of Jones and Miller are just as impressive.

GOLDEN GLOVES WINNERS TO BOX OVERSEAS TEAM

Wednesday Bouts to Decide U. S. Squad.

BY ARCH WARD.

The 32 young men who Wednesday night will match courage and fistic skill in the finals of THE TRIBUNE'S fifth annual amateur boxing tournament at Chicago Stadium will be fighting for something more than Golden Gloves.

Arrangements were completed yesterday to bring the champions of Germany to Soldiers' field for an international match with the Chicago Golden Gloves team on July 26.

The German boxers, who last October whipped a picked team of American A. A. U. fighters, 10 to 6, in Berlin, will arrive in Chicago July 19. They will have a week to get into condition for the bouts with the champions of Chicagoland.

Last year a combined New York-Chicago Golden Gloves squad defeated the champions of France, 5 to 3, before 40,000 at Soldiers' field. It was the largest crowd that saw a boxing match, amateur or professional, in 1931. The team that will fight Germany will be made up entirely of Chicagoans. The eight boys who survive the final round at the Stadium Wednesday night will be chosen to defend Golden Glove prestige in international competition.

Predict Strong Competition.

Informed last night of the match, Dr. H. F. Simon, German consul general in Chicago, remarked:

"I am very glad to hear that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has invited Germany's championship boxing team to meet the Golden Glove winners at Soldiers' field next July. I feel confident that my countrymen will do everything in their power to justify the confidence which THE TRIBUNE has placed in them by extending to them this kind invitation."

Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, and Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic union, both predicted the Berlin-Chicago match would stand out as one of the biggest events in amateur sport. Gen. Clinnin said he thought the Chicago team would find the German boxers more formidable opponents than the French, who came within one bout of tying the score with their American rivals last May.

While the personnel of the German team has not been definitely determined, it is probable that the group will include three boys from Berlin, two from Cologne, two from Munich and one from Leipzig.

A. Polter, the Leipzig fighter, is considered certain to make the trip to Chicago. He won the light heavyweight championship of Germany last year. His record of 73 victories in 85 bouts includes triumphs over the British and Italian champions.

Munich Has Veteran.

Another German boy with a splendid record is H. Zigiarski of Munich, a bantamweight. He is a veteran of 15 tournaments. He has won more than 180 of his 200 bouts.

The other prospective members of the team are H. Ball of Berlin, flyweight; J. Schleinkofer of Munich, featherweight; H. Donner, Berlin, lightweight; G. Kurth of Cologne, welterweight; H. Rennen of Cologne, middleweight; E. Ramek, Berlin, heavyweight.

Germany's participation in the Olympic boxing competition will depend on the team's showing against Chicago's fighters. Friedrich Burger, president of the German Association of Amateur Boxers, said his boys were concerned primarily with the bouts at Soldiers' field.

Wind Up Training Today.

The 32 boys who now are striving not only for Golden Gloves championships and intercity titles but for international honors will finish preparation today for Wednesday's tests. They will assemble at the Stadium Wednesday afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock to be examined and to be weighed. One pound will be allowed in each weight division.

The semi-finals will start at 7:45 and will be three two-minute rounds. The championships will be decided by bouts of three three-minute rounds. The luck of the draw may bring together the better fighters in the semi-finals. Chicago, with only 12 boys opposing 20 from out of town, will be hard

Kearns Recovers; Leaves Hospital for Chicago Home

Madison, Wis., March 6.—[Special.]—Nick Kearns, Big Ten basketball and football official, who collapsed in the second half of the Wisconsin-Indiana game last night, was able to leave the hospital today. He returned to his home in Chicago late this afternoon.

Kearns said he felt better and that he might officiate in the Purdue-Chicago game tomorrow night at Lafayette. A heart attack, brought on by overwork, and influenza caused Kearns' collapse.

Mrs. Green Wins, 5 and 3, in Pebble Beach Final

What! Play Ball and Wear Out Our White Sox? Not a Chance

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 6.—San Antonio's sun staged a gorgeous comeback today, and though the event robbed the boys of a Sabbath holiday, promised before the cold spell, no one was mad about things. The most finished workout of the season was the result of the weather man's largess.

More than 1,000 citizens turned out to witness the capers of the Chicagoans, though it was understood that the workout was to be purely routine exercise, with not even an intraclub tilt to give a competitive tinge to the proceedings.

And just when there will be an intraclub tilt, or something that looks like a baseball game, continues to be a mystery, though the team now has been in training for ten days.

A Little Baseball, Now and Then—

There has been some attempt to laugh off the Sox's miserable showing of last season with tales of this and that athlete having been overworked. While there are instances of overworking, the condition scarcely seems to warrant babying this year's artists indefinitely. There are many who think it wouldn't be a bad idea to play a little baseball some of these days—a little baseball couldn't hurt the White Sox a bit.

From all other spring training sectors come box scores. Some pretty good baseball teams, including the world champions, haven't been afraid they'd break down their help by putting them to work at their profession, old fashioned though the policy may be.

Understand, the players themselves are making no claims of invalidism. All this bathhouse splashing and tummy slapping has been accepted with thanks by the athletes, but few of them have insisted that they care to be coddled along indefinitely.

The formal exhibition schedule was designed to supply about all the coddling any full sized ballplayers should want. The first exhibition game with a professional team is scheduled for March 19, and not a team with as high as a double AA rating will be met until less than a week before the opening of the American league season.

So, when the Sox open the season against the Browns at Comiskey Park, on April 12, they are going to be nice and fresh, whether or not they have practiced up on throwing to the right base.

We hope this gentle spring puts the White Sox right up in first place, never to be dislodged by the A's or Yanks, but we can feel ourselves going to pieces with no spring excitement other than seeing a squad of rested athletes strapping a huge bosom protector on Smead Jolley.

Flu Scare Subsides.

The flu scare, which became acute Saturday evening when Vic Frasier suddenly was seized with a severe attack of the malady, subsided somewhat today when attending physicians announced his condition was improved and that Frank Grube, first to get the flu, would be able to leave his bed within a day or two.

Ted Lyons is suffering from a heavy cold, but the attack is said to have none of the symptoms of flu and was not of sufficient severity to keep Ted from today's workout, though he confined his efforts to shagging flies. The batting practice pitching was done by Red Faber, Pat Caraway, Jim Moore, Bump Hadley, Grant Bowler, and Paul Gregory.

Sam Jones was the first to knock the ball against the fence at League Park, and his swat was duplicated by Hal Anderson. Jack Hayes didn't go for any long ones, but showed encouraging skill in the matter of line drives over the heads of the infielders.

THEY LAUGHED AT MR. BECKER'S FISHING TACKLE—

But He Shows Floridans How to Catch Bonefish.

BY BOB BECKER.

Since specifications for tackle have been established for many kinds of salt water fishing, the northern angler who goes south with rods and reels purchased in the north on the basis of the best advice 1,500 miles from the scene of future activity, is pretty apt to receive frowns instead of praise for his collection of tackle.

Such was our experience upon arriving in the Florida keys to go bonefishing. We had a bonefish rod and two reels with us, all purchased in the north without the advice of any bonefisherman.

But Northern Rods Are Best.

Apparently the Miami Anglers' club believes in playing absolutely safe on the bonefish, which is, without doubt, one of the fastest and hardest fighting game fish for its size in the country. But the official rod which they allow for catching bonefish is in our estimation too long and inflexible.

When we trotted out this rod of ours it was immediately condemned as too light. "Can't hook 'em with such a limber rod," was the verdict.

Who Said "Can't Hook 'Em."

This wasn't very reassuring to a tenderfooot who had been reading some of the highly colored and possibly slightly exaggerated tales about bonefish, some of which have oversold the fish's ability, but we were allowed [by our guide] to use this rod, to which was fitted a 200 yard level winding reel with 200 yards of 9 thread line.

After catching bonefish for several days [we had the luck to hook and land the first four fish that struck] it was admitted that our "light tackle" was all right.

In view of our experience on the Florida banks the northern bonefish rod made by northern fishing tackle manufacturers especially for bonefishing is perfect, even though lighter than the official southern rod. Moreover, it provides more fun.

Babe Ruth as Golf Pro? It's Time to Laugh

match and exhibition watchers, to attend to such matters. These are just suggestions. I cannot say for sure.

It is no longer unfashionable to be found guilty of physical effort, but now that the Babe is thinking of going into the exhibition business people who are inclined to go for long walks are combining business with pleasure and are calling at the front and back doors and selling brushes, subscriptions to one thing and another and bottles of magic spot remover. So—this is just an idea of mine which may be just the least bit inaccurate—when the Babe now sounds out the customers to see what they will pay to follow him four or five miles, I think they are likely to say, "What will we pay you? What will you pay us?"

And Speaking of Prohibition——

Well, I don't think the matter is very imminent or important and, moreover, I have noticed that there has been another of those big prohibition conventions in St. Petersburg, where the Yankees train, and having heard them in action down there a couple of times myself, I wonder if they are still making the morning hideous with frightful squawking of their prohibition hymns when honest men and women who have been out at the roadhouses all night, trying to win a few dollars, are trying to get in their last precious licks of sleep.

As between a convention of bootleggers and a convention of water drinking prohibitionists I would hesitate to make a selection, because the bootleggers are certainly not nice people, but, on the other hand, you could frisk this wide world over and never come upon a more implacable and ferocious lot than the prohibitionists that I have seen in St. Petersburg, Fla., at convention time several years hand running.

And their cold water singing, starting as early as eight in the morning in a big plant right next door to the hotel, is the only singing I have ever heard which exceeded the horror of eight nude golfers, each containing eight drinks of paint remover, singing "Sweet Adeline" in a locker room.

No Help from John Law.

One time there in St. Petersburg the indignation among the right living element residing in the hotel reached such a point that a call was made to the office to come and break it up, but the officer on the desk only passed it off with some sneering reference to people who ought to be in God's sunshine at 8 a. m.

That night, at about 2 a. m., a retaliation service was started in a suite close by the prohibition plant, and though all the old folks' songs were sung in big volume, including "The Old Mill Stream," "The Old Red Shawl," and so forth, it did no good because the prohibitionists were strict nonspenders and were housed up in scratchy little rooming cabins way out in the outskirts, trimming a few honest dollars on their expense allowances.

Hawks Rout Rangers, 4-3, in Overtime

wailing among the upper balcony clientele when the Rangers made the score 3 to 2. It was another one of those talented rookies, Brennan, who gave the New Yorkers their advantage, Somers and Dillon getting assists. The time was 6:10.

March Ties Score.

A storm of paper, apples and such came off the ceiling ten minutes later when the Hawks tied the score with less than four minutes remaining. The curly headed Holmes took the puck past the blue line and fired it at Roach. Then the speedy March swept in from the side, and slammed the rebound home before Roach could regain his balance. The time on this one was 16:20.

Thompson and Brennan forgot hockey long enough at this point to cuff one another a couple of cuffs and then continued the bout in the penalty box. Thompson was given a major penalty and Brennan a minor, as the game went into overtime.

The overtime session found Thompson still languishing in the bastile, but this did not deter the Hawks from futilely plaguing Mr. Roach with much fervor. This could not go on forever, however, and the Hawks soon took a 4 to 3 lead.

Wentworth began a drive after Bun Cook had been penalized for slashing Tommy Cook. Cyclone dashed up the rink and passed to Tommy, who scored in 5:05. The Rangers became so excited at this point that Somers was given a major penalty for charging March in an attack on the Hawk goal.

JACK KILBOURNE BOXES FULLER AT WHITE CITY

Meet in 10 Round Windup Tonight.

Jack Kilbourne, middleweight champion of Australia, and Harry Fuller, Buffalo light heavyweight, will meet in the ten round windup bout of Mique Malloy's boxing show at White City tonight.

Kilbourne came here two weeks ago a total stranger to Chicago fight followers, but his impressive gymnasium workouts earned him a match with Roy Williams. His ability in that contest led to inquiries which revealed he fought as Herman Bundren in Australia a year ago, where he engaged in two bouts and won three Australian championships.

He whipped Jack O'Malley, light heavyweight and heavyweight champion, and Bob Thornton, middleweight titleholder. Last summer he returned to California and defeated Bert Colima. Kilbourne is six feet tall, a clever boxer, and a hard puncher. Fuller has held George Nichols, 175 pound tournament finalist, to a draw, and beaten Frankie Schoell and Henry Firpo.

The six round semi-finalists will be Mickey Patrick, East Chicago boxer, and Johnny Hoekstra of Niles, Mich. Patrick's recent fight with Clyde Chastian indicates he may reverse a decision lost to Hoekstra a year ago.

Another six round match and three four round bouts comprise the supporting card.

Tuffy Griffith, Chicago heavyweight, has postponed his bout with Louie Zack at Sioux City, Ia., from Friday to March 14. The postponement was necessitated when Tuffy injured an eye during a workout Saturday.

Ben Jeby, New York middleweight, and Frankie Battaglia of Winnipeg, Can., will meet in a ten round bout at the Chicago Stadium March 18. Two other ten round matches already closed will have Dave Maier and George Nichols in a light heavyweight title fight and Baxter Calmes and James J. Braddock in the semi-windup.

Tonight's Card

Mickey Patrick vs. Johnny Hoekstra, 6 rounds, 170 pounds.
Costas Yassis vs. Matty Matthews, 6 rounds, 165 pounds.
Hamburg Winkuny vs. Sally Dukelsky, 4 rounds, 132 pounds.
Benny Goldblatt vs. Art Donovan, 4 rounds, 133 pounds.
Bobby Allen vs. Bud Kearns, 4 rounds, 126 pounds.

pressed to defend its reputation as a boxing center. At least one title, the featherweight, will go to an out of town boy, for in this weight Chicago has no boxer.

Good Seats Still Available.

The Stadium probably will be sold out for the finals. All $3 seats now are sold. Excellent $2 and $1 seats still may be obtained at The Tribune public service office, 1 South Dearborn street, or at the branch offices, 1101 East 63d street, 4152 West Madison street, or at The Tribune Tower lobby.

The personnel of the Chicago team of 24, which fights the New York champions in Madison Square Garden on March 28, will be decided upon immediately after the championships Wednesday night. The eight champions, eight runners-up, and eight alternates chosen from the Tournament of Champions will report at the Illinois Athletic club Thursday. The team will start training Friday morning. Two weeks later the boys will entrain for New York.

Morning workouts in Grant park and afternoon sessions in the gymnasium for two weeks should put the Chicago boys in top condition for the New York fights. Condition, more than any other factor, was responsible for Chicago's 13 to 3 victory last year over New York.

CATHOLIC FIVES FIGHT 20-20 TIE FOR STATE TITLE

Kankakee, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Spalding Institute of Peoria and Trinity High of Bloomington tied for the Illinois Catholic high school basketball championship at St. Viator gym tonight. Two overtime periods failed to break a 20 to 20 score. By agreement of the two coaches the game will be re-played at St. Viator college next Sunday evening. Trailing 20 to 8 as the final quarter opened, Spalding scored six baskets to tie the score.

Routt of Jacksonville won third place, defeating St. Joseph of Rock Island, 21 to 15.

ILLINOIS SUBURBAN REALTY COMPANY
CHICAGO
December 8, 1931.
Mr. C. H. Campbell,
Classified Advertising Manager,
Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.
Dear Mr. Campbell:
I thought you would be interested in knowing of the results we have had in advertising our Hotel, The Midway Annex, 6306 Drexel Boulevard, in the Chicago Tribune.
During the months of August and September, we had been advertising in another Chicago paper, using a ten to fifteen line ad consistently with very few running a three line ad in the Tribune. At the time we took over the Tribune after six weeks of consistent advertising in the first mentioned paper, we were only three lines long, and now, we are 924 rented. What pleases us most is the fact that our advertising over a period of six weeks was only about $60.00.
From now on, when we have any vacancies, we know that the only paper in which our advertising will be placed will be The Tribune, as we have proven that in advertising, as well as anything else, one receives just what they pay for.
Sincerely yours,
ILLINOIS SUBURBAN REALTY COMPANY

MOON MULLINS—REPAYING SOCIAL OBLIGATIONS

HEY!
WHAT DID YOU BEAT IT FOR WHEN WE WENT OVER TO THE MAGERINE'S HOUSE, MR. MOOTS?
I THOUGHT WE WERE GOING TO MAKE A SOCIAL CALL ON YOUR FRIENDS, AND I DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE GOING OVER THERE TO BEAT UP THEIR BUTLER.
OH, I CHANGED MY MIND WHEN THE CHAUFFEUR COME OUT WITH THE BUTLER. THEY'RE PRETTY GOOD GUYS AT THAT.
WELL, I'M GLAD YOU CHANGED YOUR MIND, MOON. IT'S NOT VERY GOOD TASTE TO BE FIGHTING WITH THE NEIGHBORS' SERVANTS YOU KNOW.
YEH, THAT'S WHAT I THOUGHT. WE MIGHT AS WELL ALL BE FRIENDS, SO I INVITED 'EM BOTH OVER HERE TO PLAY RUMMY WHEN THEY GET OFF DUTY TONIGHT.

A brisk northwest wind and near zero weather was too big a handicap for shooters at the Glen View club traps yesterday with the result that only mediocre scores were recorded.

Kwariani and Garibaldi to Meet Tonight

Kola Kwariani, bald Russian, will meet Gino Garibaldi, Italian heavyweight, tonight in the main event of the wrestling show at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

Kwariani finds himself trying to win back some of his Chicago followers. The Russian lost to Rudy Dusek at the Fronton a few weeks ago. In Garibaldi he is meeting another tough opponent, but Kwariani is given an edge because of an advantage in weight and experience.

With prospects of the victor getting a chance against Jim Londos here later in the month, both are expected to extend themselves.

Jim Clinkstock, Cherokee Indian, and Hans Kampfer, Germany, are paired for the semi-final.

A pair of newcomers appear on the card. One is Bob Jesson, former University of Iowa star, who is matched with Frank Bronowicz, Polish veteran. The other is George Tragos, a Greek youngster. His opponent will be Floyd Marshall of California.

The fifth match is between Hans Bauer, German veteran of Chicago, and Marshall Blackstock, Georgia heavyweight.

He knocked out both Al Singer and Billy Shaw. Petrolle's last two New York appearances resulted in knockout victories over Eddie Ran and Billy Townsend.

'TIS SPRING, BUT ZEPHYRS TO KEEP PURPLE INDOORS

Despite unfavorable weather conditions, Northwestern university's football team will start spring practice at Dyche stadium today. Coach Dick Hanley expects a squad of about 60 candidates, composed of last year's squad members and freshmen, to report.

Workouts will be confined indoors until the weather moderates. The spring drill will continue for about four weeks.

To Concentrate on Line.

Development of line men, principally guards and tackles, together with the study of plays and formations to be used in next fall's campaign will be the principal objectives of the Wildcats' spring drill, Coach Hanley said.

The Purple coach is anxious to look over material from the freshmen ranks in the hope that it will prove productive of line men to replace Marvil, Riley and Engebretsen, tackles, and Evans, guard. This quartet formed the bulkwark of the Wildcat line last fall.

Freshmen Backs Get Chance.

Freshmen back field candidates will be given opportunity to show their prowess this spring since many of last year's ball carriers are competing in spring sports. Ollie Olson, full back, and Ken Mennan, half back, are on the track squad, while George Potter, quarter back, and Jakie Sullivan, half back, are out for baseball. Other gridders out for baseball are Dick Fencl and Hi Crizevsky, guard.

Coach Hanley will be assisted in spring practice by Pat Hanley, line coach; Waldo Fisher, end coach, and Maury Kent and Yatz Levison, freshmen coaches.

How many words can you make out of DUTCH MASTERS?

Here's fun for the whole family—and the chance of winning a big prize at the end. Dutch Masters—as most men know—is the name of a cigar, famous for its happy blend of choice tobacco. The contest is to see how many words can be made from the letters in D-u-t-c-h M-a-s-t-e-r-s.

Take one letter at a time and write down all the words beginning with that letter that you can make by using other letters in Dutch Masters. For example...

D	U	T	C
Dare, Dress	Utter, Usher	Tame, Taste	Cud, Cress
etc.	etc.	etc.	etc.

Read the simple rules, then get out your pencil.

CONTEST RULES

Prizes will be given for the greatest number of words made out of the letters in Dutch Masters. No word must contain a letter more times than it appears in Dutch Masters.

Mail your words with five Dutch Masters Cigar bands, or reasonable facsimiles in colors, to Contest Department, Consolidated Cigar Corporation, 730 Fifth Avenue, New York, the judges of the contest. Envelopes must be postmarked before midnight, April 11, 1932.

If two or more contestants are tied for a prize, the award will be made to the neatest entry.

READY TO CUT COMMON STOCK VALUE IN HALF

Studebaker Chiefs to Submit Plan.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Plans for revamping the capital structure of the Studebaker corporation, one of the largest factors in the automobile industry, were announced last night by President A. R. Erskine in making public the company's annual report. It is proposed to reduce the book value of the 1,905,045 no par common shares outstanding from $40 to $20 a share, or from a total of $76,201,800 to $38,100,900.

This change would enable the company to transfer a corresponding amount to surplus, which would be increased from $15,975,737 to $54,076,637. But from this surplus it is planned to write off $19,807,277 now carried as an asset under "trade name, good will, and patent rights" and also to write down fixed assets. These proposals will be considered at a special meeting of the directors in the near future and a final plan will be submitted to the stockholders at the annual meeting on April 26 in Jersey City, N. J.

Many Profitable Years.

In making known the plans, President Erskine explains that net profits for the twenty-one years since the company was organized in 1911 have totaled $159,361,931 and that surplus earnings after cash dividends have totaled $49,027,257. In addition, stock dividends declared in 1922 and 1929 were equivalent to 826,288 shares of present no par common stock. These shares were capitalized at $33,051,520, or at $40 a share, and charged against surplus.

"In the judgment of the directors, this $33,051,520 should be transferred from the common stock capital account and returned to surplus account," President Erskine says. "The transfer would leave the common capital $23.15 a share, instead of $40 as at present. The directors believe it is advisable that at the same time $3.15 a share additional should be transferred from capital to surplus to make the common capital a round figure of $20 a share.

"No part of this transferred surplus might be used for dividends on the common stock as long as any of the preferred stock remained outstanding. If the write down of plant facilities is made, substantial savings would result in depreciation and other charges, thereby benefiting the profits of future years. Last year our charges against profits for depreciation alone amounted to $2,251,586, or $38.95 per car produced."

Feels Pinch of 1931.

Like most automobile companies, the Studebaker corporation sold less cars and had smaller profits last year than in 1930. It sold 53,202 cars for $64,406,857, compared with 67,369 cars for $86,083,939 in 1930. However, considerable improvement has been shown so far this year. Car sales last month, exclusive of Pierce-Arrow and Rockne sales, totaled 5,536, compared with 2,960 in January and 4,376 in February, 1931, marking respective increases of 87 and 26 per cent.

Net profits for 1931 were $859,805, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to 20c a share on the common stock, compared with $1,000,215, or 27c a share, in 1930. However, the company paid $2,353,695 in common stock dividends in 1931, made an adjustment of $499,034 in its investment in Pierce-Arrow stocks, and paid $83,583 in premiums on Studebaker preferred stock retired. These charges resulted in a final deficit of $2,536,757, which reduced surplus to $15,975,737 from $18,512,494. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, shows current assets of $30,932,334, current liabilities $13,643,753, and total assets $118,286,448.

The Pierce-Arrow division sold 4,324 cars for $11,925,657 in 1931, compared with 6,922 cars for $19,016,971 in 1930. It had a net loss of $476,943 last year, compared with net profits of $1,317,070 in 1930. For 1931 there was a final deficit, after dividends and adjustments, of $1,713,534, which reduced surplus to $2,473,405 from $4,186,939.

Public Service of Indiana Reports $1,259,599 Income

Operating revenue of the Public Service Company of Indiana, formerly the Interstate Public Service company, in 1931 was $11,534,508, compared with $10,210,991 in 1930, the company reported yesterday. Net income after deducting operating expenses, taxes, interest on funded debt and other charges totaled $1,259,599 in 1931 compared with $1,605,141.31 in 1930. The increase in the company's operating revenue was due to the operation under lease of the properties of the Terre Haute Electric Company, Inc., beginning with July, and to the purchase and sale of properties between the company and the Northern Indiana Public Service company, which became effective as of December 31, 1930. Sales of both electricity and gas were increased as a result of these transactions.

Better Bank Outlook Cited as Trade Aid

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—The financial crisis which overtook the world last May and June, after the general economic depression had been in progress more than eighteen months, has been definitely checked in this country, according to the views of important bankers, and shows signs of improvement in several directions abroad.

The chain of banking and exchange trouble set in motion last May by the collapse of the Austrian Credit-Anstalt and which spread to Germany, England and finally last fall to this country has become in recent months the foremost economic problem, completely overshadowing the general stagnation of business out of which it grew.

May be First to Rally.

For some months it has been the expressed opinion of leading bankers and economists that a revival of commerce and industry awaits only the solution of some of the pressing financial difficulties that have arisen since last June. This market was the last to feel the full force of the financial crisis and appears likely to be the first to throw it off.

Among the most encouraging signs of financial improvement, as distinguished from business recovery, that have appeared in the last few weeks are the reduction in bank failures, the decline in hoarding, the improvement in bond prices, the recovery of the dollar in the foreign exchange market and the restoration of confidence among bankers.

Sets Brakes on Deflation?

The passage of the Glass-Steagall bill has enabled the federal reserve to take up its anti-deflation efforts in the last two weeks where it had been forced to abandon them in mid-January due to the heavy exports of gold to France and other European countries. Rediscount rate has been reduced to 3 per cent, bill rates have come down, and last week it was revealed in the Thursday federal reserve report that the system had purchased $19,399,000 of United States government securities in a further effort to relax credit.

Bank failures, which reached unprecedented proportions last December and January, declined by approximately two thirds in February. During the first three days of March only two such suspensions were reported. Reports to the American Banker listed 11 bank closings last week, and only 9 the week before last. These figures show a marked reduction from the records of earlier weeks. In January there were 370 supensions and by weeks the record since then has been: For the week ended Feb. 4, 70; Feb. 11, 34; Feb. 18, 28; Feb. 25, 9, and last week 11. At the same time bank reopenings have increased with 7 reported last week against 6 the week before.

More Money in Circulation.

Money in circulation, which totaled $5,583,000,000 last Wednesday, still is abnormally high, an increase of $1,008,000,000 over the figures for the corresponding date a year ago being shown by last week's report. The tendency for circulation to increase in greater than seasonal amounts has, however, been checked in the last few weeks. Last week's total represented a decline of $9,000,000 for the week which compared with an average advance in circulation of $17,000,000 during the corresponding weeks of the last three years.

In the foreign exchange market the dollar has shown great strength in the last two weeks and the leading continental currencies which a short time ago were above the gold export points with relation to the dollar have fallen sharply, leaving no exchange at a position where gold could profitably be taken from this market. Gold continues to be exported but only for the account of the Bank of France and the National Bank of Belgium, which are repatriating their dollar balances in the form of gold for reasons of policy.

The recovery in the bond market has taken a great weight off the banks which have the bulk of their funds invested in bonds.

Diamond Shoe Reports 1931 Net Profit of $557,640

Consolidated report of Diamond Shoe corporation and subsidiaries for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, shows net profit of $557,640, after depreciation and federal income taxes, equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.78 per share on the 210,000 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of the year. This compares with net profit of $882,344 in 1930, equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.31 a common share. Sales were given as $17,442,993 for 1931, in comparison with $18,071,748 in 1930. Current assets were given at $3,658,332, against current liabilities of $922,697, a ratio of 3.9 to 1. Cash alone was carried at $961,243.

WHEAT TRADERS AWAIT EVENTS TO STIR MARKET

Expect Better Buying from Europe.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat trade is patiently waiting for some new and striking development to stir the market. More and more the belief is gaining ground that this must come from the new crop. The statistical position of the latter, according to local statisticians, cannot under the most favorable conditions furnish anything of a bullish character.

Action of the wheat market of late has convinced a number of traders that there would be an increase in the buying power and probably a higher level of values were a real crop scare to get under way. Why the market has held up so well in the face of the most depressing statistical position is a mystery to some observers.

Await Growing Weather.

Until there has been a period of growing weather, the traders believe reports of damage to the winter wheat crop will be more guesswork than anything else. There is, however, a strong belief that the groundwork of a major crop scare was laid last December in the western parts of Kansas and Nebraska, eastern Colorado, and northwestern Oklahoma, due to the prolonged drought which resulted in the crop getting a poor start.

A local expert estimated during the last week there are about 4,500,000 acres of winter wheat in that area where there are serious doubts as to the outcome of the crop. Also he estimated about 3,000,000 acres in the adjoining territory as ranging from poor to good; a total of 7,500,000 acres out of the aggregate of 38,700,000 acres seeded in the United States for this year's crop.

As indicated by the private reports of the last week there was less than average deterioration between Dec. 1 and March 1 this season. Practically no complaints as to the condition have been received except from the area which was dry last fall. Lack of subsoil moisture tends to accentuate the poor outlook in the more western sections, but in other parts of the belt the subsoil reserve is now practically normal.

Area Chiefly Conjecture.

What the spring wheat acreage will be in the American and Canadian northwest will be this year is largely a matter of conjecture, and is expected to be determined largely by weather conditions and the price. With good spring rains, little or no decrease is anticipated in the three prairie provinces. The crop of 284,000,000 bu harvested in 1931, in the face of the greatest drought of all time, shows what that section can do with favorable weather. Moisture conditions in the American northwest are said to be the most favorable in several years.

Look for Better Demand.

The trade continues to look for Europe to become a free buyer of cash wheat in the immediate future, due to the steady reduction being made in home grown crops. At the present time Argentina and Australia are shipping heavily, and it is believed the recent heavy clearances cannot continue for any length of time, owing to the fact that the yield in 1931 was smaller than in the previous season. This may tend to throw the demand to North America sooner or later, regardless of financial conditions, but so far the call has been largely for Manitobas.

Wheat futures fluctuated in an erratic manner during the last week, and closed ¼c higher to ¼c lower as compared with the previous week, May showing the decline. March was 58c at the finish on Saturday, with May 61⅛@61⅝c; July, 63¼@63⅜c, and September 65⅛@65¼c. Range of prices follows:

Local Trade in Corn.

Conditions in the corn trade have seldom been less favorable for an upturn in the price, according to a number of observers. That is owing to the relatively heavy receipts, the slow shipping demand and the fact that there are large supplies in the

NORTH SHORE ELECTRIC REPORTS LOSS FOR YEAR '31

The Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad company had a net loss of $746,579 in 1931 after all charges, including interest, according to the annual statement given out yesterday by Britton I. Budd, president. This compares with a net income of $597,855 in 1930.

Operating revenues of the line fell from $6,672,508 in 1930 to $5,181,393 last year and non-operating income dropped from $1,387,368 to $606,124. Non-operating income last year included $263,647 profit on the sale of real estate which was used to reduce mortgage indebtedness. The funded debt was reduced $788,000 during the year and now stands at $21,522,600. The outlay for dividends on the prior lien stock declined to $419,364, payments having been suspended in the final quarter. Surplus now stands at $226,971, against $1,033,326 at the end of 1930.

At the close of 1931 the road had current assets of $867,658, including cash of $104,250, against current liabilities of $3,319,988. This compared with current assets at the end of 1930 of $2,468,962 and current liabilities of $3,106,094.

Current liabilities at the end of last year consisted of loans and notes payable of $1,154,777, accounts payable of $1,700,203 and accrued interest and taxes of $465,007. The road recently applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $2,300,000 to pay off bank loans and notes.

Daniel Reeves, Inc., 1931 Net Income Close to 1930's

Daniel Reeves, Inc., reports for the year ended Dec. 26, 1931, net income of $1,028,607, after depreciation, federal income taxes, etc., equivalent, after preferred dividends to $3.01 a share on the 300,000 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with net income of $1,152,443, reported in 1930, equivalent, after preferred dividends to $3.29 a share on the same number of common shares. Sales in 1931 were placed at $31,149,208 in comparison with $34,007,497 in 1930. Current assets were reported at $3,461,259, against current liabilities of $850,712, a ratio of 4.0 to 1.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—The pamphlet report of Stone & Webster, Inc., for 1931 shows net consolidated earnings of $3,291,785, equal to $1.56 a share, excluding losses equivalent to 60 cents a share on the sale of certain securities acquired prior to 1931 and charged to reserves set up at the end of 1930. These earnings compare with earnings of $3.82 a share on the average number outstanding during 1930, or $3.43 a share on 2,103,820 shares at Dec. 31, 1930.

Gross earnings in 1931 amounted to $59,522,087, compared with $52,509,294 in 1930, and net earnings after expenses and federal taxes were $24,855,980, against $22,036,652. Interest and amortization was $9,086,109, against $3,905,637.

Losses on write-off of miscellaneous investments were $461,863, contrasting with a profit on sale of securities, less federal taxes of $780,836 in 1930.

WM. WRIGLEY JR. COMPANY PROFIT IN 1931 $10,147,535

Profits of the William Wrigley Jr. company, world's largest manufacturer of chewing gum, for 1931, showed a decline from the previous year along with business generally, according to the pamphlet report of the company issued yesterday. Net earnings for 1931 totaled $10,147,535, or $5.07 per share, in comparison with earnings of $12,296,158, or $6.14 per share, in 1930.

After payments of dividends amounting to $7,888,429 and deducting $775,467 for loss on conversion of net current assets of foreign subsidiaries, $1,483,898 was added to surplus, bringing the total surplus to $34,668,638.

As of Dec. 31, 1931, the company had quick assets of $42,917,343 and current liabilities of $4,005,148 in comparison with $43,398,555 and $4,312,788 for 1930. Current 1931 assets included $8,978,607 in cash.

Railroad Credit Corporation Active in Aid to Needy Lines

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—The amount of receipts and loan authorizations of the Railroad Credit corporation disclosed to date indicates that body has been active in making funds available to needy railroads at this time.

Funds for the corporations are provided by freight surcharges that went into effect Jan. 4 and these yielded about $4,500,000 in revenue for the month. On the other hand, the corporation issued $21,819,000 of loan certificates to railroads.

Allowing for the fact that January is a month of low revenues for many railroads and that the surcharge was not effective for the full period, it would seem from the surcharge receipts that the amount to be realized by the railroads from this source this year will probably be below the $100,000,000 minimum which it was previously estimated the surcharge would yield.

To Meet Interest Charges.

The Railroad Credit corporation is empowered to make loans solely for the meeting of interest charges. It is to this purpose that the $21,819,000 advances it has authorized will be applied. Because the corporation will not be in possession of substantial amounts accruing to it from the surcharges until some months hence, it met the immediate needs of railroads applying to it for aid by issuing them loan certificates which were then used by the applicants in obtaining funds from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The railroads pay 6 per cent for loans from the government body but only the current rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve which is now 3 per cent, for loans from their own organization. Hence, there is an inducement to transfer their obligation from the government to their credit institution. Speed with which these transfers may be made will depend on the rate at which the railroad body accumulates funds.

Same as Previous Loans.

The interstate rate the government is charging the railroads now for accommodation is the same the government charged them on loans made after the cessation of war-time federal control. Most of these postwar loans were rapid, although some railroads, notably the Seaboard Air Line, now in receivership, still owe the government under the former arrangement. Because the Seaboard is in receivership, it cannot apply to the railroad credit corporation for aid, but it may apply again to the government.

Results of Rate Advances.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Railroad earnings in January directly traceable to the increased freight rates which became effective January 4 on specified commodities were considerably in excess of $4,000,000, according to incomplete returns to the Interstate Commerce commission. All roads have not yet been heard from on the amount of their revenues resulting from the increase.

The Pennsylvania railroad with $570,217, showed the largest earnings resulting from the increases, and it was followed by the New York Central with $460,212.

SEVERAL SIGNS SHOW ADVANCE IN CONFIDENCE

Wall Street Feels Rising Trend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—In last week's otherwise colorless financial picture a few incidents stood out rather strikingly.

The gradual but continuous rise in domestic bond prices was one. That obviously reflected the waning of blind terror among investors.

The very emphatic recovery on the French and English stock exchanges was another. That indicated subsidence of the similar European panic. Along with these developments in markets came two statements bearing in different ways on the general situation—the increase of the French bank's gold to a figure at which for the first time since the war it rose above the gold fund of our federal reserve, and the monthly compilations of the course of wholesale prices, showing a virtually stationary average.

Another New Record.

The achievement of the Bank of France is highly interesting to those financial watchers (and they are numerous) who are impressed by anything in the nature of "new records." Otherwise it caused no surprise, since the week before England's action on gold payments, the federal reserve had lost $546,700,000 gold and the Bank of France had gained $643,000,000. This remarkable shift reflected partly sale of American securities by frightened Europe, partly capture by Paris of the incoming Transvaal gold, which no longer went to the Bank of England, and partly recall by the Bank of France of its foreign balances, which have been reduced $315,000,000 since Sept. 18, when they stood at almost exactly the figure of a year before.

Rate of Decline Slower.

Both private compilations of prices, and the labor bureau's weekly averages, indicate that the wholesale "index number" was reduced in February only a trifle more than one-half of 1 per cent. According to one computation, it was left 2¼ per cent above last October. Such slackening in the movement of decline directed attention again to the influence of the recent rapid fall in prices on the present economic difficulties, and to the possibility of a change.

No one has doubted that the problem of readjustment, after the excesses of 1929, has been greatly complicated by the 25 or 30 per cent de-

STANDARD GAS NET EARNINGS LOWER FOR 1931

General conditions last year had an adverse effect on earnings of the Standard Gas & Electric company, one of the largest public utility holding concerns. Net income, including undistributed net income accruing from subsidiaries, was $15,272,436, which was equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $4.02 a share on 2,162,607 shares of Standard Gas & Electric common stock outstanding. Net income for 1930 was $19,490,384, or $6.04 a share. Gross earnings for the whole system were $159,070,293 in 1931, compared with $172,406,693 in 1930.

The preliminary consolidated balance sheet of the Standard Gas and Electric system, as of Dec. 31, 1931, shows current assets substantially in excess of current liabilities. The system has cash on hand totaling approximately $18,000,000, while total bank indebtedness amounts to only $6,500,000 [of which $5,500,000 is the obligation of Standard Gas and Electric company]. None of the electric light and power or gas companies in the system has any bank indebtedness. Standard Gas and Electric company has no indebtedness to its subsidiary and affiliated companies.

The Standard Gas and Electric company has no funded debt maturities until 1935. Maturities of the subsidiary and affiliated companies during 1932, aggregating only $10,600,000, are apportioned among four quarters.

BRITISH DISCLOSE MAGNITUDE OF GOLD SALE RUSH

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 6.—First authoritative figures showing the extent of the gold-selling rush which has been drawing thousands of Britons to the offices of bullion merchants in the last few weeks were published tonight.

Registrations of exports of gold sovereigns to France and Holland in the last three weeks total £3,576,000 [$17,379,360], of which £2,374,000 went to France and £1,202,000 to Holland. The refineries report they have been melting down £550,000 to £650,000 worth of gold each week.

Treasury authorities never believed such large sales were possible and few believed when Great Britain went off the gold standard in September that such big gold sources were waiting to be tapped. Bullion merchants expect the sale of sovereigns will fall off soon, but believe the sale of jewelry will be maintained for some time, providing the price of gold remains high.

Weekly Board of Trade Stocks

With few exceptions stocks closed with small net gains for the week. Standard of Indiana furnished nearly one-third of the total business and closed ⅝ higher.

FEDERAL LOANS ADD STRENGTH TO BOND PRICES

U. S. Issues and Rails Advance.

New York, March 6.—(AP)—A better feeling for bonds, attributed partly to a belief that an easy money central banking policy will continue for the remainder of the year, and to hopes of business recovery held out by the credit expansion measures, gave the loan market a firm tone throughout last week.

Led by United States government securities, a number of which reached new highs for the year, all classes of bonds advanced substantially and dealers are forecasting further improvement in the higher grade classes during the next few weeks.

Law Helps Market.

Impetus to the upturn in federals was given by the provision in the Glass-Steagall legislation which makes government loans the basis on which federal reserve banks can issue new currency. Also it was generally believed the tax problem would be up for solution this week in congress and that forthcoming treasury financing would be in the form of short term notes.

The railroads, as a whole, did better than either the utilities or industrials, although substantial gains were recorded by both of the latter. Nickel Plate 6s, due this year, staged a runaway performance early in the week and at one time were more than 50 points above their low of last December. Canadian Pacific and Canadian National bonds also were in heavy demand. The majority of other carrier liens advanced moderately.

U. S. Loans Aid Roads.

The fact that the Reconstruction Finance corporation already has lent more than $2,000,000 to meet interest charges, principally, and a somewhat better outlook for increased traffic revenue aided in the recovery of rail liens.

The rise in Canadian railway bond prices was due to reports that the consolidation scheme is being worked out successfully and that the government may guarantee some of the Canadian Pacific obligations.

Gas and electric and communication company loans attained some popularity. Sinclair Oil, Goodrich, Goodyear, and all of the New York traction issues raised their prices.

The Argentines and the British dominated the foreign department. Brds of the principal countries made new high records for 1932. Canadian governments also moved to higher levels. European obligations were somewhat mixed.

110,000 Attend Leipsic Fair Opening; Set New Record

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 6.—The Leipsic fair opened today with an attendance of 110,000 from all parts of the world. Business men at the fair take this as a sign of improvement in the times. Leipsic announces that this figure is higher than at previous fairs.

Bright Spots in the Day's News

The New York Central railroad has practically completed estimates for rail requirements in 1932 and plans to make inquiries public this week. The inquiries will be for about 50,000 tons. The railroad has returned 465 men to work in its shops at Beach Grove, Ind., and 565 more at its West Albany shops. This was in addition to 1,205 men returned at West Albany and 1,500 at Cleveland recently.

Reports from Youngstown say that leading steel producing companies in that district will show an important change in operating schedules this week. Youngstown Sheet and Tube company is expected to run at 21 per cent of capacity, an increase of 1 per cent over the current week. Carnegie Steel will continue around 35 per cent, but Sharon Steel Hoop is expected to advance to 53 per cent, against 50 per cent this week.

Chesapeake and Ohio shops at Huntington, W. Va., have just put 1,000 men to work. Big Four has taken back 317 men in its Indianapolis repair shops.

More than 1,500 men will be reemployed in plants in nineteen Illinois cities alone within the next ten days, according to a report forwarded to the industrial development division of the Illinois chamber of commerce. Nearly all of these workers will go back into factories, although some will be reemployed by building and modernization campaigns carried out in accord with a state-wide program urged by the state chamber.

The Pacific Fruit Express, jointly owned and operated by the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific systems, plans construction of 100 new refrigerator cars to cost approximately $500,000.

Trade circles hear that the Endicott Johnson company since the beginning of the current selling season, Dec. 1, has shipped about 20 per cent more shoes, measured in units, than a year ago, and 15 per cent more in dollar value.

United Electric Coal company established a new production record in February, registering a gain of 26,319 tons over January and exceeding the previous record set in December, 1931, by 13,693 tons.

Stutz Motor Car company here has more unfilled orders on its books than at any other time in the past nine months, officials of the company announced.

Bank failures continued at a low ebb during the last week as the government's various economic-aid policies began to be felt. Eleven banks closed, according to the American Banker, compared with nine in the preceding week. Total failures in January were 370. Seven banks were reopened last week, six the previous week.
